ALLIES PUSHING STEADILY NORTHWARD

First Crack Has Appeared in the Stone Wall Defence of Von Kluck's Army
RUSHED TO RESCUE

British Soldiers are Despatched in Haste to Aid in Repulsing Terrific Onslaught of Germans on Allies' Centre.

(Special to The Journal of Commerce.) Paris, September 24.—The complete official statement follows:
1—On our left wing, between Somme and Oise, our troops have advanced in the direction of Roye (about 25 miles southeast of St. Quentin). A detachment has occupied Peronne, and is maintaining itself there, despite sharp attacks from the enemy. Between the Oise and Aisne the enemy continues to maintain important forces solidly entrenched. We have advanced slightly to the northwest of Berry Au Bac.

2—On the centre between Argonne and Rheims there is no change. At the east of Argonne and on the heights of the Meuse the enemy continues the attack with peculiar violence. The combat continues with alternative recoil at certain points and advance at others.

3—On our right wing there is no notable change in the region of Nancy and in the Vosges.
The bloodiest fighting of the great battle of the Aisne, which is now in its twelfth day, is going on along the German right wing, where the British and French are struggling furiously to surround and cut off the army of General Von Kluck.

According to military authorities, this is the first direct assault which the Allies were able to deliver against the important German line of communication. Desperate fighting is going on, especially around Courchelette, where the thirteenth French army corps, under General Alft, is attempting to smash the invaders' front.

The Germans are continuing their terrific attacks against the Allies' centre in the vicinity of Rheims, in an attempt to pierce it, but the French and the British, who were rushed to that point to support them, are holding valiantly. The announcement by the War Office that the Allies were advancing along the Oise has heightened the feeling of confidence here, and General Gallien, the Military Governor of Paris, declared that the first crack had appeared in the stone wall of defence which the Germans have been putting up.

The centre of interest now is the fighting north of General Von Kluck's army, where the French are making savage attacks to cut the German line of communications. This is the northernmost supply route of the Germans, and most important, lying through the Valenciennes-Mauberge-Mons-Namur region. If General Von Boehm's troops are unable to withstand the assaults of the Allies, the German right will be thrown into confusion, and the whole invading host will be compelled to retreat.

DEMAND EXPULSION OF HENRI BOURASSA

Dramatic Moment At Canadian Club Meeting When Drastic Move Was Proposed

Mr. Andrew McMaster Making Himself Heard Through Cheering Asked That Motion Be Declared Out of Order Till Mr. Bourassa Could Be Heard in Own Defence.

A dramatic turn was given the proceedings of the Canadian Club to-day, when Mr. Lansing Lewis arose and moved that Henri Bourassa be expelled from membership in the club because of his anti-Canadian sentiments. Mr. Lewis based his reason for taking this action on clauses two and three of the Constitution, which define what membership in the club involves.

Tremendous and prolonged cheering greeted the motion, and it looked for a few moments as if the motion would be rushed through, but Mr. A. R. Mc-Master arose and pointed out that one principle of British fair play and justice was never to condemn a man unheard. He therefore proposed that the chairman should declare the motion out of order and suggested that if necessary it be brought up in a regular way at another time. Dean Adams concurred in Mr.
McMaster's view and declared the motion out of order.

The incident caused a great deal of comment. The enthusiastic reception of the motion showed that the temper of the audience was in sympathy with the sentiments expressed.

The address of Mr. Henri Carton de Wiart, Minister of Justice of Belgium, and of Mr. Paul Hymans, leader of the Liberal party, aroused great enthusiasm.
The former, who spoke in French, dealt in a general way with the situation, while the latter gave concrete examples of the atrocities practised by the Germans.

He also showed the duplicity of the German authorities. Belgium was made neutral by the great Powers of Europe, of which Germany was one. Germany tore up the treaty when it suited her purpose.
Even the very day on which Germany sent her ultimatum to Belgium some of her leading officials assured the Belgian Government that Germany would never take action against her neighbor.

He then gave detailed accounts of the ruthless barbarity of the German soldiers, of their utter disregard for life and property, their fiendish delight in committing atrocities of every sort and their total disregard of the conventions of war. It was a scathing arraignment of German war practices which for unparalleled brutality and fiendishness eclipsed anything ever practised by Attila and the Huns.

Zinc Oxide and Lithophone Heretofore Bought From Germany Now Secured From Great Britain and the United States.

To-day the third of a series of letters from prominent Canadian manufacturers appears. This is from another paint manufacturer, Mr. Jos. R. Henderson, president and general manager of Brandram-Henderson, Limited, in reply to enquiries from the Journal of Commerce as to what was the status of his business in regard to German and Austrian products, and as to what move was being made to supplant German and Austrian material by domestic product, writes as follows:—

Montreal, P.Q., Sept. 17th, 1914.
Managing Editor, Journal of Commerce, 35 St. Alexander St., City.

Dear Sir,—In reply to your favor of the 16th inst., we would say that as far as Canada is concerned, there has been practically no imports of paint or varnish from Germany or Austria for some years past.
Previous to the preferential tariff, a considerable quantity of white lead was imported from Germany, but the British preference put a stop to that business, and since then, whatever white lead has come in to this country has come from England.

Before the war, there was quite a quantity of zinc oxide and lithophone imported from Germany.
Neither of these articles are made in this country, and at the present time, supplies are being obtained from the United States and from England.

We have been going into the question of the German exports to South American countries, and find that they send considerable quantities of goods such as we manufacture, to those places. We are now considering the advisability of getting after some of that trade.

you any information along these or other lines at any time, we will be glad to do so.
Yours truly,
BRANDRAM-HENDERSON,
Jos. R. Henderson,
President and General Manager.

CHANCELLOR'S WARNING HAS HAD ITS EFFECT

Threat to "Name" the Banks Which Had Not Been Fair to Traders Brought Guilty Ones to Time.

(Special Correspondent W. E. Dowding.)
London, September 16.—The meeting of Parliament after the short recess gave the Chancellor of the Exchequer the opportunity to utter a note of warning to the financial houses. When he said that some of the banks had not been over generous in their treatment of traders, if anything, he understated the facts.
His threat to "name" the black sheep has caused considerable fluttering in banking circles and already signs of improvement are visible. So far as the big London institutions are concerned, there has not been at any time a disposition to restrict operations soundly backed. Requests for loans to buy materials and produce in a way likely to increase prices were refused by several of the banks, and in the same way facilities were denied to customers desiring to embark on purely private speculations by filling up credit with the banks. But where money was wanted for ordinary trade requirements it was supplied unhesitatingly.

In the country, things did not run so smoothly and there was a slight tendency on the part of provincial banks to regard the Moratorium and Treasury guarantees as measures intended specifically to strengthen the banks rather than to make normal trading an actual possibility. The decision to end the existing moratorium did not surprise anyone. All the retail traders and most of the industrial houses were strongly in favor of its repeal, as it was being made an excuse for refusal on the part of wholesale provision merchants and dealers in raw materials to refuse all business except upon a basis of spot cash.
In many cases payments, undoubtedly, had to be postponed, but it was the means to pay and not the will that was wanting. With the decision to repeal the moratorium came the passing of the courts (Emergency Powers) Act, leaving the enforcement of judgment orders entirely at the discretion of the Court, and forbidding distress for rent without previous application to the Court.

oxide and lithophone imported from Germany.
Neither of these articles are made in this country,
and at the present time, supplies are being obtained from the United States and from England.

We have been going into the question of the German exports to South American countries, and find that they send considerable quantities of goods such
considering the advisability of getting after some of that trade.

you any information along these or other lines at any time, we will be glad to do so.
Yours truly,
BRANDRAM-HENDERSON,
Jos. R. Henderson,
President and General Manager.

CHANCELLOR'S WARNING HAS HAD ITS EFFECT

Threat to "Name" the Banks Which Had Not Been Fair to Traders Brought Guilty
Ones to Time.

(Special Correspondent W. E. Dowding.)
London, September 16.—The meeting of Parliament
after the short recess gave the Chancellor of the Exchequer the opportunity to utter a note of warning
to the financial houses. When he said that some of the banks had not been over generous in their treatment of traders, if anything, he understated the facts.
His threat to "name" the black sheep has caused considerable fluttering in banking circles and already
signs of improvement are visible. So far as the
been at any time a disposition to restrict operations
and produce in a way likely to increase prices were refused by several of the banks, and in the same way facilities were denied to customers desiring to embark on purely private speculations by filling up
credit with the banks. But where money was wanted
for ordinary trade requirements it was supplied unhesitatingly.

In the country, things did not run so smoothly and there was a slight tendency on the part of provincial banks to regard the Moratorium and Treasury guarantees as measures intended specifically to
trading an actual possibility. The decision to end the existing moratorium did not surprise anyone. All
the retail traders and most of the industrial houses were strongly in favor of its repeal, as it was being
provision merchants and dealers in raw materials to
refuse all business except upon a basis of spot cash.
In many cases payments, undoubtedly, had to be
the moratorium came the passing of the courts (Emergency Powers) Act, leaving the enforcement of
judgment orders entirely at the discretion of the Court, and forbidding distress for rent without previous application to the Court.
