PANDORA
RANGE

Train up a girl in the way she should bake, and when she is married she will not depart from it.

"My mother taught me how to bake, and told me why she always used a McClary Range.

"Now I have a 'Pandora', and, as with mother, my troubles are few. After fire is started, I simply bring thermometer to desired heat and leave the oven in charge of the baking. It's built for faithful service.

"While housewives with other ranges are poking fire and changing dampers, I sit and read the 'Joy of Living'."

THE SPICE OF LIFE.

A breezy and unscrupling Western politician applied to the U. S. Secretary of State for a consulship at one of the Chinese ports.

"You may not be aware, Mr. Blank," said the Secretary, "that I never recommend to the President the appointment of a consul unless he speaks the language of the country to which he desires to go. Now, I suppose you do not speak Chinese."

The Westerner grinned cheerfully. "If, Mr. Secretary," said he, "you will ask me a question in Chinese, I shall be happy to answer it."

He got the appointment.

A halt is being called upon the custom of throwing rice at departing brides and bridegrooms. Pullman car conductors are complaining of the trouble it gives them. A unusual simile reminds us that Adam and Eve had no rice thrown at them on their honeymoon, and a physician denounces rice-throwing as dangerous to life. Very recently a bridegroom received a handful of rice in his ear, with the result that he had to spend his honeymoon in a hospital and undergo a serious and dangerous surgical operation. Old shoes are also dangerous missiles, and in the hands of an envious and revengeful rival they may easily prove mortal to the happy man or woman. In fact, it is not clear that rice and shoe throwing is a kind or elegant proceeding.

Courtesy is always proper, and always wise; and those who use uncourteous words cannot tell who will hear them. It is said that years ago, when political strife ran high between Mr. Gladstone and Disraeli—Lord Beaconsfield—the latter was walking one day on the terrace of Buckingham Palace in his easy coat and old slouch hat, when two ladies of a certain age and of most pronounced Gladstonian opinions, entered the gate.

Supposing him to be a keeper or gardener, or something of the sort, they enquired if he would show them over the place, which he at once undertook to do. While they were walking about, they overwhelmed him with questions as to the habits of his master, and one of them finally said:

"Do you think you could manage to get us a sight of the old beast himself?"

"Madam," said Lord Beaconsfield, "the old beast has the honor to wait upon you now."

The ladies fled. They had learned a lesson which ought to last them for a lifetime. We may learn it in a less mortifying school by reading the first epistle of Peter, third chapter and eighth verse.

AN UNSELFISH HORSE.

A doctor and a clergyman were exercising their horses one morning in a country lane when an argument arose between them as to which of the animals possessed the sweeter disposition.

"I'll wager that if their respective tempers could be tried," said the doctor, "mine would be far away the better."

"That's all nonsense," retorted the clergyman. "My mare has the best temper of any horse in the neighborhood."

"Well, here's a stone hedge; let us try their leaping capabilities," suggested the doctor.

"Right you are," agreed his friend.

The doctor's hunter quietly refused to jump, although put at it again and again. The clergyman's little mare also refused, but at the same time put back her ears and exhibited considerable ill-temper. When repeatedly urged to jump she finally accomplished a clever back jumping feat, which threw her master over the hedge. Strange to relate, the reverend gentleman was quite unhurt, and, scrambling to his feet, commenced to scrape the mud from his broadcloth, while the doctor laughingly remarked:

"Perhaps you are convinced now that any animal has a better disposition than yours?"

"Not at all," replied the clergyman. "My mare is such an unselfish little brute that, although unable to take the fence herself, she had no desire to keep me from going over. In fact, she facilitated the mode of my transit, while your horse displayed a dog-in-the-manger temperament by not going himself and not allowing you to go either."

STEEL SHINGLES

FIRE, LIGHTNING, RUST AND STORM PROOF

SIMCOE, ONT., April 9th, 1906.

"We have handled your 'Eastlake' Shingles for nearly a quarter of a century. They have been on the Court House, Free Library, and other public buildings in this town for 18 years. We have used very large quantities during the past 25 years, and they have always given first-class satisfaction, and have never required any repairs."

The New Model Marlin No. 24

Repeating Shotgun

This new 6-shot model is the simplest, surest, and fastest 12-gauge repeater made. It has the solid top, side ejection and double extractors—special Marlin features of comfort and convenience. The closed-in breech keeps the action clean and the shells dry—keeps out rain, snow, dirt, leaves twigs and sand.

The new take-down construction allows you to take gun apart in ten seconds for cleaning or packing, yet the joint is always as firm and rigid as in a solid frame, non-take-down gun. The fat forearm fits your hand, and helps quick operation.

The full choked guns are guaranteed close-shooting, hard-hitting guns, and are unequalled for ducks, geese, foxes and all long-range work.

A rural manufacturer duns his subscribers in the following novel manner: "All persons knowing themselves indebted to this concern are requested to call and settle. All these indebted to this concern and not knowing it, are requested to call and find out. Those knowing themselves to be indebted, and not wishing to call, are requested to stay at one place long enough for us to reach them."
