The True Witness. and the preacher. Catholic or even infidel sources. The True Witness, said the preacher, should have at least twice the present circulation. Other papers are sought as eagerly as the evening meal while the only Catholic paper in the English language printed in a city the size of Montreal appeared week after week with very little encouragement from those who should give it a helping hand. Indeed it might be saud of the True Witness as was said of the Dambury News, that its circulation is greatest outside its own home. ST. JOSEPH'S HOME.

Father Holland's absence from Montreal for the past six weeks is the reason why our readers have had no news from our columns of the bright little institution which seems to thrive whether he be here or away. The number of proteges has diminished also of late, homes having been found for some of the younger ones. The number of working boys, for whom the Home, was founded, still remains the same. Contributions have been coming in founded, still remains the same. Contributions have been coming in slowly in different ways, but the most singular one from a town in Massachusette. Some time ago Father Holland, after inking the rubber stamp of the Home, tried the effect on a few dollar bills, leaving the imprint and disposing of the bills in the regular way, and here is a letter that he received lately:

Montreal Welcomes Laurier.

Montreal extended to Sir Wilfrid Laurier an elaborate welcome on Saturday night, and from the time the Premier stepped down the gangway of the Government cruiser Lady Grey to two hours later, when he entered the Windsor Hotel, he was the central figure in the demonstration which was participated in by thousands. Sir Wilfrid appeared to be delighted with his reception.

be delighted with his reception.

At the City Hall, where addresses of welcome were tendered by the City Council, the Board of Trade, the Chambre de Commerce and the Reform Club, Sir Wilfrid made a brief speech, in which he thanked the People for the manner in which they had greeted him. The Premier appeared to be in excellent health, and after the first few sentences his voice rang out clear and strong, and his words were heard easily by the large crowd which had gathered in front of the City Hall.

Shortly after 8 o'clock the main entrance of the City Hall was illuminated by hundreds of electric lights, which, in their many single and double rows, flamed out a "Welcome." The decorations were simple. One side of the entrance was flanked by a huge Union Jack, and the other by the Tri-color, and above them was the imperial coet of arms. The regulation strip of crimson carpet was run down to the sidewalk, and at the top of the stone steps Mayor Ekers, City Clerk David, Assistant City Clerk Bauset, and a delegation of aldermen awaited the arrival of the Premier. The street in front did not fill until later, as the crowd seemed to be at the river front, in which direction could be seen the long row of red electric lights along the top of one of the seen the long row of red electric lights along the top of one of the wharf sheds, to which Sir Wilfrid wharf sheds, to which Sir Wilfrid made reference in his brief reply, to the three addresses.

Gentlemen and fellow citizens—Let me offer to you my hearty thanks for the very enthusiastic and kind reception which you have been good enough to offer me this evening. There would naturally be many things on this occasion which it would be my privilege and my pleasure to comment upon, but you will understand that this is not a day for a very long speech; but let me at once tell you how deeply and how once tell you how deeply and sincerely I feel and appreciate sincerely I feel and appreciate the heartiness of your welcome and your expressed appreciation of my labors and conduct at the Imperial conference in London. Let me tell you turther that when I let my country three months ago I felt pnoud of it, but I assure you I feel a great deal prouder of it to-day (loud cheers). I am proud of your welcome and value highly your appreciation of my efforts at the Imperial conference. It is a metter of congratulation that in this country of ours where years ago our fathers ours where years ago our fathers were bitter enemies, we are now were bitter enemies, we are now friends and brothers.

"You have alluded in your addresses to a scheme which I have advocated, and which I see has been accomplished already in Montreal. I allude to the All-Red Line (loud cheering). This emblem (referring to the red lights on the Reford shed) which shall be true some day, and before many years, is one worthy of your interest. I have read in one of the newspapers of this city that the committee which was apone of the newspapers of this city that the committee which was ap-pointed by Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman has already reported against it. I think that newspaper report is not correct. Another paper said this was a check for Sir Wilfrid Laurier. If it were true that this was a defeat, I would not acknowledge defeat, but it would not acknowledge defeat, it would not acknowledge a defeat, I would not account to defeat, but it would only urge me to greater efforts and greater vigor, and with undiminished hope. It greater efforts and greater vigor, and with undiminished hope. It would not be the first time in .my political career that I had suffered defeat. I have been accustomed to it (laughter). But defeats never discouraged me (cheers). They only lead me to renew my efforts. But I can tell you, gentlemen, that the All-Red Line will one day be an accomplished fact (cheers). I will not dilate upon that subject further to-night. Let me say to my fellow citizens that I return them my heartfelt thanks for the very enthusiastic welcome which they have as generously offered to me on this occasion (cheers).

This reply in English was preceded by one in French which was substantially of the same nature; however, the Premier made reference in his mative tongue to the great improvement in his health over what it was the Premier made reference in 'his native tongue to the great improvement in his health over what it was five years ago, when he said it was thought he was suffering from an incurable malady, and was on the point of making that voyage from which none return. He was stronger now than ever, which remark was greeted with enthusiasan. Another reference was also of a personal character. Premier Laurier said he had read in the Montreal papers that it was possible he might succeed Lord Strathcone as High Commissioner, and he raised to the peerage. As to that he would say he had already several letters following his name, signifying honors, but he wished to have no letters in front of his name, or to be anything else than a Canadian citizen (cheers.)

Sir Wilfrid and party attanded high Mass at St. James Cathedral Sunday and on Monday took their shearder of Ottawa.

OBITUARY.

LATE MRS. KENNEDY.

(From our Own Correspondent) On July 12th, Mrs. A. H. Nels On July 12th, Mrs. A. H. Nelson Kennedy, of Buckingham, daughter of the late Wm. O'Neill, passed away to her eternal reward. Mrs. Kennedy had keen in good health, and her death came as a great shock to her friends far and near, but particularly to her husband and to her two brothers, Messrs. William and John L. O'Neill. Deceased was just in the prime of life. She was young to have been called to answer that last dread summons, but it is not a long life that counts hereafter but a life given to the practice of Christian virtue. The funeral, which was one of taxelargest ever witnessed in Bucking-ham, took 'place on Monday,' the 15th, at nine o'clock, to St. Gragory's Church, where a grand requiem Mase was chanted. A very large number of people from the surface number of people from the surfac quiem Mass was chanted. A very large number of people from the surrounding neighborhood seized the opportunity to exhibit their respect for and sympathy with the bereaved husband and surviving brothers and accompanied the remains to the church and thence to the cemetery. Deceased leaves two little girls, the eldest but two years and the youngest not yet a year old. The bereaved husband and her brothers, Messrs. William and John L., and sister-in-law, Mrs. John L. O'Neill, and relatives, have the sincere sympathy of the whole community in their hour of sorrow, and with them we will pray that God be marciful to her departed soul.
