HEROISM IN THE NAVAL RAID.

London, April 25-The official ad-miralty reports on the sealing of Zee-brugge harbor says.—The Thetis led the blockships Intrepid and Ipsegenia. Her propeller fouled and she became unmanageable. The shore batteries pounded back into the channel where, while sinking, she signalled invaluable instructions. The report continues —"The Intrepid, smoking like a fol-cano with all her guns firing, was vol-lowed by her motor launch which faild to get alongside in the outside harbor the tatter was blinded and going a little wild with a barge moored beside it, which lay in the western arm of the canal. She got clear thru and enterd the canal, pushing the barge before her. It was then that a shell hit the steam connections of her whistle and the seeaping steam, which followd drove off some of the smoke and let her see what was doing. The context of the soname Carter, com-drove off some of the smoke and let her see what was doing. Lieut. Stuart Bonham-Carter, com-manding the Intrepid, placed the nose of his ship neatly on the mud of the western bank. He ordered the crew away and blew up the ship by switches in the chart room. Four dull bumps was all that could be heard. Immediately afterwards there arrived of the deck the engine-room and reported all was as it should be. Lieut. Billyard Leake, commanding the Ipsegenia beacht her, according the arrangement on the stern side, the Ipsegenia beacht her, according to arrangement on the stern side, blew her up and saw her drop nicely across the canal and left her there with her engines still going to hold her in position until she should have settled well on the bottom. The first attempt of the Iris, which was conducting operations with the Vindictive, was to make fast to the mole ahead of the Vindictive faild, as her grapnels were not large enough to apan the parapet.
