THE BANNER ANSWERED.

The light burned late in the editorial room of the Banner Monday night. There was something doing. A bold, bad scheme was being hatched, and the editor and his crafty band of gallants were the only ones next. A merry chuckle passed around the heroic bunch as they thought of the morning. For once in several months they had struck upon a subject for an exclusive front page thriller. No more would they listen with fear and trembling to the heavy tread of the proprietor's foot on the painful creaking stairway, and see him enter the room with a copy of this Great Home Journal in his hand, and hear him ask, in a voice of pointed clearness, if they were ever going to wake up, at the same time indicating with decided emphasis the various "coups" which have appeared in the Planet with unerring regularity of late.

Awake, such painful experiences! They had visions of walking down stairs, with an air of justifiable importance, and asking for much needed and substantial increases to their weekly allowances. We presume it was the inevitable reactionary influence of their unusual and enervating midnight effort, which caused them to fall into a somnolent state while walking around on the streets yesterday, when they missed any reference whatever to the fact that a man was almost fatally injured at the Grand Trunk Depot Monday evening. Mayhap the proprietor awoke them from their unnatural torpor when he made his regular call after The Planet arrived last evening, containing the full particulars. Alas, how short are the joys and pleasures of this strenuous life!

Vanished were the sweet visions of more money! And now for a short explanation of the Banner's short exultation. It has been known for some time that the farmers of this section of the country have been working at a disadvantage, on account of the fact that they have been practically unable to secure communication with the outside world during the busy seasons, and at times when the roads are impassable. A short time ago a number of the farmers and merchants of Merin and Fletcher, realizing these unfortunate circumstances, went to H. S. Clements, M. P., whom they knew as a man always anxious to do everything in his power to promote their welfare, and asked him if he would interest himself in establishing a telephone line between Fletcher, Merin and Tilbury. That gentleman promised to do all in his power to secure this line.

Mr. Clements petitioned the Bell Telephone Co. for relief for these farmers, just as he did in the case of the Dover farmers on a similar occasion, at which time he was successful in securing a telephone line for the Dover farmers, and which, as everyone knows, is of great benefit to that community. The answer of the telephone company in the Tilbury case, was that so many subscribers would have to be secured before the company would do anything towards extending the proposed party line.

In the meantime, the farmers and oil men were suffering. What is Mr. Clements' next move? Determined not to be fooled by the Bell Telephone Company in a matter so urgent, he displayed some of the energy and enterprise which have always characterized his actions during his public career, and, enlisting the services of P. D. Laurie, as we have before mentioned, worked assiduously in securing the necessary number of telephone subscribers required of him by the company, and the result is that the line will have to be built, and the people of Tilbury are thanking Mr. Clements.

This was the foundation for the Banner's wonderful dream. After wading through a fearfully dense and rapid conglomeration of stupid errors in English, disgusting inconsistencies, mis-spelled words, and senselessly constructed paragraphs, the average reader of the Banner is inclined to believe that the Liberal organ is trying to create the impression that Mr. Clements is in the employ of the Bell Telephone Company. What a silly conclusion to come to. No one but a Banner scribe would have the impudence to suggest it. It is one of the most vile and despicable slurs ever cast upon a public man by any so-called newspaper. The Banner's attitude is one which is roundly condemned by every fair-minded man in Kent, both Liberal and Conservative. The Banner quotes alleged statements of "prominent citizens," in an attempt to give some sort of foundation to the untruths it utters. No doubt, as has been the case upon innumerable other occasions, the "citizen" is the Banner editor himself. The article in yesterday's Banner was not only a humiliating disgrace to that journal, but it cast a reflection upon newspaper work in general. People do not wish to read such editorial fabrications. It is, to say the least, revolting.

We presume the article was intended to serve as a means of knocking Mr. Clements, and of boosting Mr. McCole. The Banner is in an awkward position. They hear from all sides how Mr. Clements is working night and day in the interests of the people of his constituency, while they have the practically impossible task of supporting a man who has done nothing for his constituency since he was elected to the Ontario House. The people know this, and they cannot but notice the contrast between the two men who will meet in the next Dominion election. It would not do for the Banner to remain silent, especially when they themselves have admitted in an unguarded moment that "public benefits have followed Mr. Clements' appeals for various municipalities and localities." They therefore try to belittle the actions of the popular member, but they will do well if in the future they keep their editorial knocks free from slander.

JUST A LITTLE BIT OFF THE TOP

What more could mortal man desire? These cool nights divine? When on his downy bed he flops And snoozes sound till nine?

Tobacco growing bids fair to become a great industry in Kent. Smoke up.

Lots of money and good times. There has even been some small change in the weather lately.

Some complaint is being made that Canada is not appreciated by England. What's the use? Jolly is cheer, and this country is past the age when it should cry because it is not petted.

Carrie Nation says that she has no apology to make for having been in jail 29 times. No, but one is due from the authorities for not keeping her there.

A society has been formed for the protection of fish, but as land lobsters are not mentioned on the list coming under their care, the easy mark will still have his leg pulled without fear or favor.

When you read of all the gold that is being found in our country, does it not exasperate you to think of the tall hustling and scarping you have to do to get a piece of it?

The terrorists have killed off a Russian general by the name of Ljerdjarski. Through the inference doubly suggested in his name, we are inclined to think he missed his vocation when he joined the army. If there is anything in a name, he should have been a politician.

A large number of marriage certificates were destroyed in the San Francisco earthquake. As there is now nothing legal to bind them, perhaps some of those involved will experience another kind of shake.

THE RULING PASSION.

Dan Cupid cries:
O maids, behold!
I offer here
Some hearts of gold!
The maidens soon
With critic frown
His stock and ask,
"Are they marked down?"

THE BANNER'S RARE-BIT DREAM

The Banner took of its goat Monday, and in a jumble of poorly constructed, and hitherto unknown grammatical terms, proceeded to heap fifteen kinds of wrath on the holder of H. S. Clements and the Bell Telephone system.

The poor, dear organ, in its fit of ungovernable rage, literally ripped, chewed and ground all kinds of imaginary enemies to pieces, and then looked around for fresh victims to massacre. But the Banner's molars are sadly out of repair; we foresee another attack of its chronic ailment, and we fear that such highly spiced diet, when partaken of so freely and undisturbedly by the dear, sensitive body, may result in a fit of bilious melancholy.

Will not some one be kind and in Christian charity, hand the hungry organ some more crowd, which for long has been a favorite repast of, while it will prove highly entertaining to their dozen or so old subscribers, will not be so injurious to the organ's sensitive digestive apparatus.

When You Owe a Bill in China.

A Chinese statute enacts that debts which are not settled on New Year's eve cannot subsequently be recovered; but, according to recognized usage, a creditor who has vainly pursued his debtor all through the night may still follow him after daylight, provided he continues to carry his lighted lantern, as if he believed it was still night. This, however, is the creditor's last chance.

By the Aid of Science.

The fair amateur palmist looked at the left hand of the sweet young girl long and earnestly. Breathlessly she waited for the palmist's next words.

"Ah, I see by your hand that you are engaged to be married!" said the palmist.

"How wonderful!" exclaimed the bride to be.

"And," continued the reader of the future and the past in a more cutting tone, "I see that you are engaged to Mr. Loony."

"Oh, it's perfectly extraordinary," burst out the blushing girl. "How could you know that?"

"By my long study of the science," was the reply.

"But surely the lines in my hand cannot tell you the name!"

"Who said anything about lines?" replied the prophetic one, with withering scorn. "You are wearing the engagement ring I returned him three weeks ago!"—Answers.

The innocence of some men is apparent in their countenances.

JEWELRY TIDBITS.

Novel Necklaces of Dull Silver—Bling Match Gown—Pink Quartz Pins. Beautiful cut amethyst beads for the neck and turquoise matrix ones are just now being shown. A novel necklace of dull silver, consisting of a small silver chain around the neck and in front five quite plain silver disks set with large green stones and ending with three pendants of silver and green stones, is also being received with much favor.

Exposure to sunlight has a curious effect on some gems, and garnets lose much of their color in the course of time if they are worn continually. To make, on the contrary, become a shade darker, but part with a great deal of their pristine brilliancy after they have been exposed to a bright light for any length of time.

Some time ago fashion decreed that the finger that was adorned with a ruby should not have its beauty further enhanced by a ring of diamonds, that turquoise should not mingle with emeralds, and so on. Now, however, there is a new law, and the hand that carries one pearl ring must wear no other rings than those of pearls. According to the robe that is worn, the hands show a blaze of diamonds, a mass of rich red rubies or soft toned pearls, all quite unrelieved and showing as little as possible of their gold or silver setting.

As a rival to the huge hampers of amber which have accompanied the winter millinery comes the pink quartz in delightful tones. Large balls, long drops and even simple flowers are cut out of the quartz to serve as hatpins, making effective touches of light color among the trimmings of spring toques and hats.

Low shoes when new often blister the heels by slipping just a little as the wearer walks. To prevent this it is well to rub the inside of the shoe at the heel with soap before putting it on. Raised ribbon embroidery gives a touch of supreme elegance on silk or cloth Eton or empire jackets. The necklace in the cut is a charming design carried out in amethyst and dull silver. SARTORIAL NEWS.

Pongee in Great Demand For Gowns and Wraps—Motor Costumes.

Just at present the material most in demand is pongee in all its different qualities and colorings. House dresses, handsome reception gowns, coat and skirt costumes, traveling dresses—it does not seem to matter for what purpose, no varied are the summer models in pongee and rajah cloth.

One girl who motors a great deal has costumes to match all through. For example, one is all lavender or mauve. Her long, loose storm coat is of mauve satin with big smoke pearl buttons. Her veil is an enormous mass of lavender chiffon, yards and yards of it, arranged upon a small automobile turban of mauve straw. Her suede gloves are mauve and her linen garters are the same color. Then she has gray, tan, rose, brown and white costumes.

Plaid belts in leather and silk are smart to wear with white linen shirt waist suits, and plaid stockings are rumored to be equally stunning worn with the dress.

There is a new shade which goes by the name of biscuit, but it must cer-

BOYS' SUIT.

No. 4168.

The blouse is cut in two pieces, and closes either at the side-front with buttons and buttonholes or in the diagonal closing indicated by the dotted line. The sleeve shows fullness only at the wrist, where it is confined by tucks. The pattern provides a standing or rolled Eton collar, and a breast pocket with a flap closing. An elastic tape adjusts the fullness about the waist, and the bottom of the knickerbockers. The knickerbockers fasten to the waist by means of buttons and buttonholes. Notches show where the pockets are to be inserted. Serge, corduroy, flannel, duck, crash, linen, plain checked mohairs and pique are serviceable materials.

The quantity of material required for size 8 is 4 yards of 27-inch goods. Pattern No. 4168 is cut in sizes 4 to 12 years.

For a light weight traveling suit rajah is excellent. It does not show dust readily, and it will stand a tremendous amount of wear. There are a few models made up with the box reverser smitted coat, but the majority of designs have the Eton or bolero trimmed with ruchings of taffeta or lace.

The attractive suit in the cut is in chestnut brown rajah silk with vest and strappings of cloth a shade darker. The buttons are small enameled affairs, and the tie is of a lovely burnished copper color. JUDIC CHOLLET.

The Trade Winds.

Allusion is often made in books and in newspapers to the trade winds, but comparatively few young people know exactly what those winds are. They are produced by the rush of cold air from the poles to take the place of the column of heated air that ascends from the equator. The daily rotation of the earth toward the east makes the air from the north a northeast wind and the air from the south a southeast wind, and these winds nearly always blow in the same direction on the Atlantic and the Pacific ocean, where there is nothing in their way to obstruct or divert them. For this reason they are relied upon and made use of by sailors. Many persons suppose that their name, "trade winds," comes from their value to commerce, but it is more likely that the allusion is to their trading or "treading" in one direction.
