"OFFENSIVE PARTISANSHIP."

Lord Dufferin's View of Civil Servants as Party Healers.

The success of a political party ought to depend upon its public policy and the ability of its chiefs, and not upon the advantages likely to accrue to its individual adherents. In fact, the more the area of personal profit consequent upon a change of government is limited, the better for the country at large.

On the other hand, the independence thus conceded to the members of the civil service imposes upon them a special obligation, namely, that they should serve their successive chiefs—no matter to which side they may belong—with a scrupulously impartial zeal and loyalty.

There is no offence which should be visited with swifter or more condign punishment than any failure in this respect.—Lord Dufferin, Sept. 24, 1878.

A REGULAR TUPPERITE.

A Hog With Heads Enough For a Whole Litter.

J. M. Jones, a farmer residing near Columbia, Mo., rejoices in the possession of a hog with three heads. Apart from its value, considered as a freak, a three-headed hog has advantages not to be overlooked. The hog eats with all three mouths and grunts and squeals in concert. This might appear to be a disadvantage at first thought, but it is not.

FUNCTION OF THE SPLEEN.

It is a Delicate "Governor" to the Human Blood Engine.

The spleen, of old, writes Dr. Andrew Wilson in the Illustrated London News, formed an organ which puzzled the classic physiologists. It did not seem to manufacture any secretion, like the liver or sweetbread; and they knew, as we do to-day, that removal of the organ is not necessarily attended by much disturbance of the vital functions—a fact due to the duties of the spleen being supplied by Prof. Schaffer, F. R. S., and Mr. B. Moore. They have proved that the spleen acts as a kind of safety valve to the blood circulation, and it responds at once to all variations in the blood pressure, whether these variations are from heart or lungs. It is an organ which shows its function in the most delicate way, and it appears to be a kind of delicate governor, analogous in its nature to the self-acting mechanism of that name in the steam engine.

A Noteworthy Event.

There will be an interesting meeting when the ancient and honorable artillery of London entertains the ancient and honorable artillery of Boston, beginning July 6th. The London company was incorporated by Henry VIII. in 1537, and it is the oldest military body in Great Britain with the exception of the yeoman of the guard, whose history dates back to 1485. It is a noteworthy fact that the Boston company is the first armed force from another country, which has been given permission to parade the London streets, and fully equipped.
