RUBBERS!

A Billion Dollars Lost Each Year.

Dry Feet Could Save The Most of It.

The International Congress on Tuberculosis that met in Washington last winter discussed the financial side of consumption as well as its medical aspect. Prof. Fisher, Professor of Political Economy at Yale, made the statement that tuberculosis cost the United States a billion dollars a year. He based his figures on the cost of doctors' fees, medicines, nurses, etc., and added the loss of earnings during the patient's period of sickness. He went into the question in great detail, and nobody disputed his figures.

A billion dollars every twelve months! That's a stupendous national loss, and all the doctors agree that this disease could soon be stamped out as effectively as yellow fever and cholera, have been. There are four very simple things that will prevent consumption: Pure air, wholesome food, cleanliness and avoidance of colds. AND THE SUREST WAY TO AVOID COLDS, ESPECIALLY IN WINTER, IS TO KEEP THE FEET DRY.

There were 10,000 deaths from tuberculosis in the United States last year. Probably one-half of these unfortunate people would have been alive and well today if they had taken so small a precaution as putting on a pair of rubbers every time they went out into the rain or snow.

Being Proud of the Right Things.

By RUTH CAMERON.

Pride is a queer thing, isn't it? Queer in its results, I mean. Milton called it "The last infirmity of noble minds." I can't see why it is an infirmity at all if you are proud of the right things. And that is just the point I am coming at. So many people are not proud of the right things.

It seems to me that I know as many people who are proud of their faults as of their virtues. For instance, I know a man who is generous, honest and brave. Of any one of these virtues he has a right to be proud; but he isn't. His greatest fault is that he has a fiery temper. He ought to be ashamed of that, and he pretends to be; but he isn't. The tone in which he speaks of "my uncontrollable temper" is as full of unconscious pride as it can stick. By the way, let me seize the opportunity to say what I think of the phrase "uncontrollable temper." I think it is one of those catch words that do more harm than a bad law. I had almost said there is no such thing as an uncontrollable temper, but I'll modify that a little and put it this way: nine hundred and ninety-nine times out of a thousand, when a man speaks of his uncontrollable temper, he should say "his uncontrolled temper." Now, I suppose, if an one of my readers is in the habit of using that phrase, he will justify himself by deciding that he is the one in a thousand.

To return to the main road; there is a little woman not far from here, who has the sweet temper of an angel, the patience of a saint, and the gracious charm of a very human woman; but who possesses by all these perfectly good reasons for pride to be proud of the hypersensitiveness, which is her worst fault.

And yet again, I know an honest, kind-hearted, altruistic gentleman, whose greatest pride is in the unfortunate fact that he is an atheist.

To be proud of the right things is a mighty good rudder for the voyage of life.

How much better it is to be proud of having paid your dreamer liberally and treated her considerably, than to be proud of having squeezed an extra gown out of her.

How much better to be proud of the fact that you invariably pay your bills on the dot and will have nothing you cannot pay for, than to be proud of making a bigger show than your neighbour.

Or to be proud of reaching the end of each day, "weary and content and undishonoured," and keeping your self respect untainted to the end, than to base your pride on the multitude of things you possess.

What a man is proud of is a measure of his worth.

What are you proud of?

Ruth Cameron

Seek Probate After 75 Years.

Dublin newspapers to hand contain an account of one of the most curious cases ever registered on the books of the Historic Four Courts. The matter came to public notice when an application was made to Mr. Justice Gibson, in the Probate Division, to presume a death which was supposed to have taken place as far back as the year 1838.

Mr. Swayne applied on behalf of John Knox Wight, of Oneida, Exmouth, Devon, for an order presuming the death of James Dundas Wight, Counsel, said it appeared that, as far back as 1838, and before the proceedings were in the Court of the Master of the Rolls, and in the course of these proceedings a sum of £122 8s. 6d. Consols were ordered to be transferred to the name of James Dundas Wight. It was transferred in February, 1838, and had been there ever since.

Mr. Justice Gibson expressed surprise at hearing of an application after such a lapse of time.

Mr. Swayne said Mr. John Knox Wight was the nephew of the man whose death the Court was asked to presume. The affidavit of the applicant stated that James Dundas Wight was a son of Robert Wight, an official of the Colonial Bank in London. Robert Wight, in 1836, married again; family quarrels arose, and some of the sons left the country—one going to Canada, and another to the West Indies. James Dundas Wight, one of the sons, in or about the year 1838, set out on board a whaler from Glasgow. The whaler was supposed to have been lost at sea, as no news of it had ever been received, and James Dundas Wight was believed to have been drowned. The affidavit went on to say that applicant's father had often related particulars about the matter, and that

The Quickest, Simplest Cough Cure

Easily and Cheaply Made at Home. Saves You $2.

This recipe makes 16 ounces of cough syrup—enough to last a family a long time. You couldn't buy as much or as good cough syrup for $2.50.
Simple as it is, it gives almost instant relief and usually stops the most obstinate cough in 24 hours. This is partly due to the fact that it is slightly laxative, stimulates the appetite and has an excellent tonic effect. It is pleasant to take—children like it. An excellent remedy, too, for whooping cough, croup, sore lungs, asthma, throat troubles, etc.
Mix two cups of granulated sugar with one cup of warm water and stir for two minutes. Put 2½ ounces of Pinex (fifty cents' worth) in a 16-ounce bottle, and add the Sugar Syrup. It keeps perfectly. Take a teaspoonful every one, two or three hours.
Pinex is one of the oldest and best-known remedial agents for the throat membranes. Pinex is the most valuable concentrated compound of Norway white pine extract, and is rich in gualic acid and all the other natural health elements. Other preparations will not work in this formula.
The prompt results from this recipe have endeared it to thousands of housewives in the United States and Canada, which explains why the plan has been imitated often, but never successfully.
A guaranty of absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded, goes with this recipe. Your druggist has Pinex, or will get it for you. If not, send to The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

being prepared for burial it was taken home, and arrangements were made for its burial to-morrow morning.

About 5 o'clock this evening, John Thompson walked into his home after having read that he was dead, and looked at the remains that were supposed to be his.

The son informed the members of his family that he had read while in Toronto that he was reported dead, and did not reach the city until today. He explained that he had not sail on the Carruthers, but left here on the Canada, which he left when she reached the Welland canal.

The remains brought from Goderich were removed to undertaking rooms and will likely be sent back to Goderich for identification.

Man and Woman

An Ontario paper says: "Rev. A. G. Hudson, of Toronto, is a minister with views of his own out of the ordinary stereotyped nature, and he is not afraid or ashamed to make them public. In a sermon, recently, to members of the Royal Black-Preceptory, Loyal Orange, he declared that a woman should not be made to promise to 'obey' the man whom she married. A woman ought to be allowed, he said, to have a mind of her own, and she had as much right to use her own judgment as had her husband. He maintained that a woman had a proper right to have a mind of her own on occasions, and that therefore the word 'obey' should be taken from the ceremony, or that if it was left that the man should also be obliged to take the promise to obey his wife. Of course this is flying in the face of the Pauline doctrine that wives should obey their husbands, and that husbands should have the rule over their own households. But the world 'do move,' and Mr. Hudson is moving along with it. Mr. Hudson also objected to the question in the marriage ceremony, 'Who giveth this woman away?' We object to that ourselves. Nobody has any right to give her away but herself, and the pity of it is that she too often gives herself away to some useless, spineless, shiftless ne'er-do-well, and the ceremony as it stands gives her a chance afterwards to blame somebody else for her misfortune.

But the Toronto minister has another idea that is worthy of consideration and perhaps commendation. He believes that married men should wear rings to distinguish themselves from single men, just as married women do. This is not a bad idea, and if made compulsory might save complications. There are a few married women who 'play off' that they are single, and perhaps not many married men who do that. But the danger is ever present, and the ring as a badge of bondage would prevent any guileless heart from being snared. Mr. Hudson might have gone further and demanded that married men should have a title to distinguish them from single men. We have 'Mrs.' for the married lady and 'Miss' for the single, but we have no such nomenclature for single and married gentlemen. Why?

Holding these views, we are not surprised to learn that Mr. Hudson would give every woman in Canada a vote if she wanted it, and that he would rather give an intelligent woman the vote than a man who was unable to write.

On Monday, Thomas Thompson received a message from his daughter at Sarnia, that her brother, John, was aboard the steamer 'James Caruthers' when it sank last week on Lake Huron. He at once left for Goderich, where a number of bodies from the Carruthers had been washed ashore, and were in the morgue. He reached that place late at night and was at once shown a number of bodies that lay there awaiting identification. He noticed that the toes on the foot of one of the corpses were crossed, as were his son's, and decided to further examine it. On the arm was a tattoo mark with the initials 'J.T.' This was identical with one on his son's arm. On the nose was a mark similar to one his son bore, and besides this there was a similarity in the teeth. Lastly there was on the leg of the corpse a scar from a burn similar to a mark on his son's.

With so many remarkable marks of resemblance, in addition to the appearance of the body, both in stature and features, he was convinced that it was his son.

Mr. Thompson made arrangements for the conveyance of the body to this city, and it arrived yesterday. After
