The Story of a Gown.

By RUTH CAMERON.

RUTH CAMERON

My neighbor, like Flora McIlmsey, has nothing to wear. "What," said I (like Flora's interlocutor), "has become of that pretty blue crepe?" "Mercy," said she, "that's so indecently scant, I can't move in it." "You could last year," said I. "Oh, but it's much scarier than it was last year," said she.

"I know it," said she. "Isn't it funny? It really looks about half as big as it did last year to me, and all because I'm seeing wide skirts. Isn't style the queerest thing that ever was?"

And I agreed. We know that it is absurd to cease to admire an attractive, becoming gown because the lines are different from the lines the greatest number of people are wearing to-day. But somehow we just can't make our eyes see it as they saw it yesterday. And yet the gown hasn't changed a particle. It is just as becoming, just as attractive.

Look At Your Picture Taken Ten Years Ago.

Look at a picture of yourself taken ten years ago. Do you remember how you loved that gown? Do you remember the day you brought it home, how smart you thought it was, and how graceful? And to-day how ridiculous and awkward that gown looks. It does not seem to you now that you could ever have felt well-dressed in it.

The history of a single gown—what a range of emotions and memories it would contain.

Start from the day the idea of the gown was first conceived. Even before it was materialized as an actual gown it had a big place in your thoughts. The cut, the color scheme, the lines, how much thought you put into them! And then there were the delicious hours in the shop when you coqueted with one possibility and another, and finally made your choice and came home elated, and then, in the reaction which your weariness made inevitable, regretted your decision and almost hated the whole business.

While You Affected to Depreciate It. And then the day when the gown arrived from the shop or the dress-maker, and after trying it on and permitting all the family to admire you took out the satin covered, sweet-scented Christmas present hanger and hung the gown in the best clothes press. There it hung for a few hours until you took it out to show your next friend, pretending to her not to think much of it, while all the time you felt in your heart that it was the prettiest dress in town.

Next came the first day you wore it. What a sense of power, what self-possession it gave you! How much more wittily and easily than usual you talked! They who say that beauty is only skin deep should remember that the health of the skin is the health of the body.

The Paths of Story Lead To The Rag Bag.

How long it was before the best dropped back into the second best depended on the length of something else—your purse.

Some or later, however, its freshness wore off, perhaps something defaced it, familiarity bred contempt, and a new gown usurped its place on the best hanger. By-and-by you wore it on minor occasions and no longer felt dressed up when you put it on. Perhaps it got a second wind from making over, but eventually the paths of glory led in the inevitable direction. The rag bag or the charity bag yawned for the prey and received it minus any salvageable portions, which were to appear later in a reincarnation.

The story of a gown—sordid in some ways, full of vanity, and yet with its big moments and its romance. After all, much time and money as we would save, one can't quite wish we were born with our clothes on like our dumb friends.

Obituary.

WILLIAM McDONALD. One of our best known seamen, William McDonald, crossed the bar at noon yesterday. The deceased was 43 years old, a native of the West End of the city, and a son of the late John and Ellen McDonald. For many years he sailed from this port, boat-swain and mate, of the best of our marine fleet. He was of a genial disposition, never ruffled in temper, but always had a smile and a kind word for all. He had been ailing with a brief period when Providence, whose wisdom is all-wise, deemed it fitting to call him to that bourne from whence no traveller ever returns. Michael McDonald, contractor, is a brother of the deceased, and to him the Telegram extends its sincere sympathy, as well as to all the friends of the family.

POLEY-MCGUIRE.

Last evening Miss Nan McGuire, daughter of Mr. J. B. and Mrs. McGuire, Henry Street, was united in matrimony to Mr. James T. Foley, Manager of Bowring Bros. Coastal Department. The ceremony took place in the Archbishop's Oratory, and was performed by His Grace the Archbishop-Elect Roche. The bride looked charming, as she was dressed in saxe blue velvet with cream hat and carried a bouquet of lilacs of the valley. She was attended by her sister, Miss Chrissie McGuire, who was also handsomely costumed. The groom was supported by Mr. P. C. O'Driscoll, Jr. The groom's present to the bride was a gold chain and pendant and to the bridesmaid a turquoise ring. After the ceremony a reception was held at the residence of the bride's parents, only the immediate relatives and friends of the contracting parties being present, at which the bridal party motored to Williams' Hotel, Bay Bulls, where the honeymoon will be spent. The bride and groom are exceedingly popular and were the recipients of numerous valuable and useful gifts, including a cheque from Mr. Geo. McGuire, brother of the bride, and the beautiful silver services from the Directors of Bowring Bros. Ltd. and the officers of the coastal steamers Portia and Prospero. The Telegram joins in wishing Mr. and Mrs. Foley an unclouded future.

Ball Game.

SHAMROCKS WIN FROM RED LIONS.

The second league baseball match for the season was pulled off on St. George's field yesterday afternoon. The competing teams were the Shamrocks and Red Lions, the former winning by the narrow margin of one run. The game was a bit slow owing to the condition of the arena. In spite of the unfavourable weather there was a large gathering of fans present. After eleven innings for both sides the score stood 18-17. A feature of the game was the splendid batting of Munn, who made the first home run for the season; also the excellent catching of Chas. Quick, as outfield. The officials, players and scorers were:

Shamrocks: 1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9 10 11
Shamrocks: 14 5 0 2 2 1 1 0 1 1-18
Red Lions: 9 0 4 7 2 0 1 1 0-17
Umpires—Chesman and Montgomery.
Scorers—Hartnett, Peddigrew and Grace.

Wednesday's

The Conference assembled at 2.30. After the usual morning devotion, the Conference went into business. The retiring President addressed the Conference upon the year of his office. In has been a wonderful year, filled with many heavy tasks and responsibilities, but the past should prepare us for the future. We have had financial difficulties, stringency has been felt, yet we have had a rich spiritual increase. The War has cast a shadow over all phases of our work, but these difficulties but fit us for the work. One man of the Brotherhood has been taken from our ranks, the Rev. M. Muir. The end came altogether unexpectedly, and we mourn his passing. Altogether we can report optimistically, and the President retiring having conducted the work of the year with much credit.

The Conference then went into session on the officers for the coming year.

Rev. Charles Howse was elected President by a vote of 50 out of 53. Mr. Howse was born in Gooseberry Island, B.B. After spending several years at the elementary school, he then came on to the Methodist College of this city, where he spent two years, and then went into the teaching profession, and spent 4 years at Salmon River School, Blackhead. Mr. Howse went from this place into the Ministry. He started his work at Hopedale in the Barin District. After spending a very successful term of years there, Mr. Howse went to the same District. Then, after the years of Theological Training, in which Mr. Howse went to Sackville University. At the end of one year he went for a summer to the Moody Bible Institute at Chicago, fully intending to return to Sackville after consideration he turned steps to Garrett Biblical Institute, Evanston, Ill., instead. After spending two years' instruction at the named place, Mr. Howse entered the full work of the Ministry, and was stationed at such places as Tilt Cove, Rin, Blackhead, and at Bonaville, where he labors at present. "Howse is a strong personality, and there is no doubt of the wisdom of the Conference in choosing him. The new President has a very intensely spiritual man, a man of vision, and broad outlook. The destiny of the Conference's hands in these days of darkness, not suffer, for he looks upon the world with a sublime faith in the Righteousness.

In reply to the vote of confidence the President spoke out of the modesty and humility of his soul, said he had never sought office, could look at calmly in the face, say, the office came unsolicited, responsibility belonged to the Conference, they had elected him, but he had not sought the office, could boast of no Methodist and was one thing stood out clearly in his life—his conversion, which he doubted. It was to him a new experience, and he was turned to the Church he now loves, and is to be two considerations. First, Methodist teaching was more in harmony with his experience. Second, Methodist form of service and the sphere of the Methodist life was better suited to his nature, and the new usefulness, hope and inspiration for spiritual things born of that experience.

The Conference then proceeded to elect by ballot the Secretary of the Conference. The honor fell upon Jabez R. Saint, S.T.D., a young and strong man of the Conference. Mr. Saint was born at Westville, and after spending two years at Sackville University, he came to Wesleyan College, Montreal. Saint entered the full work of the Ministry, and did faithful and successful work at Glenora, Fogo, Fogo, Wesleyville and Bonaville, where he labored at present. Rev. C. A. Whittemore, who was re-elected as Conference
