Produce and Provisions

(From Saturday's Trade Review.)

Codfish.—The total export of dry codfish from Newfoundland this week was 30,984 quintals, as follows: From Outports—By schr. Geo. A. Wood, 3,902 qts. from Messrs. W. & T. Hollett, Burnt, to Montreal; by schr. E. May, from A. E. Hickman, Ltd., to Breton, 2,227 qts. to Oporto; by schr. Kristina, from P. Templeman, Catalina, 2,598 qts. to Alicante; by schr. Helen Valr, from Butt Bros., Bonne Bay, 2,110 qts. to Halifax; and by schr. Workman, from Messrs. Lazo & Co., St. Anthony, 4,500 qts. to Seville. From St. John's—By schr. Herbert Warren, from Messrs. Jas. Baird, Ltd., 5,794 qts., to Pernambuco; by schr. E. E. Martin, from T. M. Barr, 3,428 qts., to Bahia; by M. Rosalind, 6,427 qts., to Liverpool; from Messrs. Harvey & Co., Balne Johnston & Co., A. H. Murray, James Baird, Ltd., C. F. Bennett & Co., A. S. Rendell, A. E. Hickman Co., Ltd., E. M. Shipman, Jas. Ryan, T. H. Carter, Terra Nova Co., A. Hearn, and G. P. Barnes.

Cod Oil.—The export of common cod oil by the s.s. Rosalind since last week to New York, was quite heavy and amounted to no less than 35,091 gallons. Mr. A. Ebsary sent out 20,000 gallons, and the rest was made up by Messrs. Job Bros. & Co., Ltd., and the Franklin Agencies, Ltd. The foreign demand is somewhat improved, but the local price seems to be about at its highest for this season.

Flour.—Imports are now increasing. The consignments by the steamers Sable I., Seal and Manoa last trips amounted to 8,131 barrels. The wheat market has been declining steadily in Canada and the United States, but as the latter country has exported about all that can be spared, United States dealers will henceforth be drawing on Canada, which circumstance is likely to halt the decline. Leading brands in the St. John's market are now down to $12.00 wholesale. The imports for St. John's are 47,000 barrels in excess of last year at this date.

Beef.—American packers' cables indicate a quiet demand with prices showing little change. Local stocks are considered ample for the anticipated fall demand. These stocks include purchases of beef now on the way here, which are said to be considerable. It is expected that the fall demand will run principally to beef this season, owing to its relative cheapness compared with pork, especially as enforced economy will be more practiced than ever. Prices are: Bee Brand, $26.00; Boneless, $21.75; Family, $21.35; Choice Boneless, $19.50.

Pork.—The market is quiet with demand limited. The undertow is bare-

PAINS IN SIDE AND BACK

Caused by Woman's Ills and Helped by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Grafton, Pa.—"I was troubled with inflammation and pains in my side and back. After doctoring with different remedies and not getting relief, I had almost given up hope when my sister told me of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I had heard of it before, but I had not tried it. I bought a bottle and took it. I am now well and my health is improved. I give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound all the praise for my health."

Working early and late—lifting, carrying, and the heaviest of household duties—is it any wonder that you get backaches and rheumatism? Put every woman who suffers as Mrs. Fisher did should know by her experience and give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a fair trial.

by steady. This is the latest advice received during this week by various local brokers. The imports to St. John's to date total 14,532 barrels at this date, against 21,949 barrels at same date last year. Heavy Moss is difficult to obtain and local stocks are small. This week's prices are: Moss, $31.00; Short Cut, $31.00; Ham Butt, $38.00; Fat Back, $31.00; Family, $37.00; Spare Ribs, $27.00.

Melasses.—The schooner Gaspe arrived from Barbados this week with 558 puncheons, 25 tierces and 50 barrels to Messrs. Bowring Bros., Ltd., T. & M. Winter, Jas. Baird, Ltd., A. Harvey & Co., Monroe Export Co., and Knowling. This will make the total for St. John's about 5,600 as against 7,131 this date last year. The Agnes P. Duff loading at Barbados, was driven to sea. The local price is still 25 cents a gallon wholesale, fancy.

Sugar.—The large surplus stock of raw sugar held in Cuba is having the inevitable effect on the market in spite of all efforts to sustain prices. This week an important decline in prices was noted from American Refineries. How far this weakness may go it is difficult to forecast. Present quotations are: $11.50 for American Granulated in barrel lots, and $11.75 for single barrels. If the duty were same as last year, sugar would now be selling at 7 cents per pound.

Potatoes.—There is no change in the market. Farmers here are selling freely now at $4.00 per barrel, and at $2.30 the half barrel, and $1.20 the quarter from small farmers and milkmen at the doors. The local crop is quite up to best expectations and only needs the next 10 or 15 days' dry weather to be perfect.

Feeds.—All feeds are very cheap just now. The wholesale quotations in St. John's are as follows: Bran, $2.50; Corn Meal, $3.15; Homco, $3.10; Table Meal in barrels, $10.30. The present is evidently a good time to buy for winter requirements.

OATS.—The market at present is well supplied, 1,247 sacks having arrived this week. There is no change in the local prices. The wholesale quotations are: $4.10 to $4.20 per sack for White, and $3.80 to $3.90 for Mixed. The Canadian crop for this year is estimated at 7,355,000 bushels, against 347,000 last year. The price can hardly advance in the face of the figures.

Apples.—There is a big stock in the local market at present and we are in the height of the Gravenstein season. The price declined 50 cents a barrel this week and No. 1 Gravenstein can be bought at $6.25 wholesale, and Domestic at $5.75, and No. 3 at $4.75 per barrel in lots. The retail price (this dozen) is now down to 17 cents.

Hay.—The Canadian market shows more firmness, but the local quotations are unchanged. The wholesale ton according to quantity at purchase, and at the rate of $5.00 to $5.50 by single bales. According as the season advances no doubt prices will be higher. The imports this week were 1,172 bales from Montreal.

Arrived by last steamer, a new shipment of Ladies' Coats in assorted Tweeds, from $6.50 up. Also a few manufacturers' samples of Ladies' Coats, worth $40.00. Sale Price $14.00 to $19.50. I. LEVITZ, 252 Water St., opp. Dicks & Co.—sept23,21

"Enumerator" Takes Exception.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir.—Will you please allow me space to reply to a severe castigation in your paper of yesterday's date by one "Pro Sono Enumerator!"

Not being acquainted with foreign languages I endeavored to do some dissection in order to get what English I could out of it, and the only conclusion which I came to was that the person writing that name must be closely related to the rodent family as the surname would suggest, and the full name must be Bonehead Rat, by which name he should in future be designated.

Could anything be more ridiculous than for a person by quoting a phrase easily found in any ordinary dictionary, to attempt galling the public with the idea that he or she is in possession of phenomenal scholarly ability. The writer of that article expresses pity for me, because I am deficient of a very necessary qualification of competence for Census enumeration, namely, humour. I wonder if it is possible for this local Mark Twain to become aware of the fact that one is very apt to carry that qualification too far.

The Census Act says that any person refusing to answer questions will be liable to fine or imprisonment, and my friend may find that facing to lawlessness would be no joke. I have been politely called in said article a fool by using a very familiar quotation.

What an extraordinary individual, that even the Angels would quail in his presence. I would not advise him to go to a cold storage to reconsider his articles published as the temperature would not be suitable, for if he doesn't mind, his manners and personal decisions of his company will have to go to where the temperature will be exceedingly high.

Yours respectfully,
ENUMERATOR.

"SEEING A WOMAN ACT LIKE A FOOL."

A young friend of mine, a nervous high strung girl, was very much afraid of lightning. After being one of touch with her for some years I happened to be with her the other day when we had a bad thunder storm. When the thunder began to mutter I expected her to get nervous and excited but she did not show the slightest sign of fear, and went on with what she was doing as calmly as anyone in the room.

Even when the loud crack came she did not show any more dislike of them than the ordinary person.

"Why, Mary," I said, I thought you were terribly afraid of thunder.

What made you get over it? The Feet of the Chalks Put Into Tumblers. "Seeing a woman act like a fool," she answered simply. Then she went on, "When I was living at the J's taking care of their little girl, Mrs. J. used to almost go into hysterics whenever there was a thunder storm. She had every door and window in the house shut tight, and she put the feet of the chairs in tumblers because she had heard that glass was a non-conductor and that was a good thing to do and she trembled and cried, and—oh, just generally acted like a fool. I made up my mind I would never be such an idiot and coward."

"Don't you mind them any more?" "I don't like them but I don't mind them the way I used to."

How is that for an instance of what I have always claimed to be the incalculable value of the bad example?

Is The Good Example Any More Valuable?

They tell us about the value of a good example, but I have always claimed it has no more power for good than the value of a bad example, if as much.

I have seen several people give that girl the help of a good example when she used to get all worked up over her terror of thunder storms but I never observed that it had the slightest effect. It took a "woman who acted like a fool" to cure her.

Nothing ever helped me to stand up straight like the bad example of a neighbor of ours who stood all lopped over.

Cheapsness of Public Quarrels. Nothing ever impressed upon me the dreadful cheapness of quarrelling among members of a family before outsiders (not to imply that it is desirable in the privacy of the family) so much as a day I spent with a family who frankly and vulgarly and hideously quarreled all day long.

Of course you have got to recognize the bad example as bad before it can help you. And I suppose in order to do this you need the background of unobtrusive good examples to help you distinguish. So both play their part.

But the praise of the good example has been sung in copy books and moral tales for ages, while I insist that the bad example is my original discovery.

World's Richest Island.

No matter how rich you are, how powerful the nation to which you belong, and to what height of civilization you have reached, unless you can get enough to eat, you will die.

In other words, unless the world can obtain sufficient supplies of fertilisers there would not be sufficient food.

Every year the population of the world is increasing, and every year the amount of "virgin soil" is decreasing, which means that to make the land sufficiently productive, we must have more and more fertilisers.

There are several fertilisers, but the most important is phosphate. Our Government realised this and sent an expedition to a tiny island in the remotest part of the Pacific Ocean at the very start of the war.

The reason for this was that for untold years millions of sea birds, attracted by the loneliness of this spot, had nested there, and their inability to leave had left a huge deposit of phosphate, something like sixty feet deep, and amounting to three hundred million tons.

Armies, navies, and wealth are all very well, but a nation wants something to eat!—Pearson's Weekly.

Second Thoughts. Bride to Take a Holiday Before Marriage.

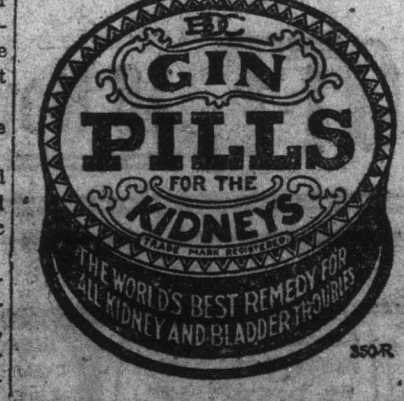

A wedding which was to have taken place in a North London register office was put off in a novel way.

The bridegroom with his friends arrived for the ceremony and waited for the bride. Nearly an hour later she rang up the office and asked to speak to her fiancé.

The bridegroom went to the telephone and was told by his bride-to-be that, having thought the matter over, she did not intend to come along and be married. The registrar was asked to hold the licence over as the woman might be induced to change her mind, and the bridegroom hurried off to reason with her.

An hour later he came back and told the registrar that the marriage could not take place as his fiancée wanted to have a long holiday before she was married.
