TRUSSES

Four Clippings

"One man in every seven is ruptured but only four of every seven ruptured men wear a truss."

"Every man who is ruptured should wear a thoroughly reliable truss. One which can be depended on."

"The man who wears a truss which does not 'hold' his rupture is taking mighty big chances, to say nothing of the pain and inconvenience he suffers."

"Farmers and farm laborers who are ruptured are strongly urged to provide themselves with reliable trusses before commencing the heavy harvesting."

For only one dollar and fifty cents we can supply a most comfortable truss and guarantee it to "hold" your rupture. This truss has an elastic web body strap (similar to the web in suspenders) and a soft pliable pad filled with distilled water to make it "fit" the spot. "It is as comfortable on your body as your suspender on your shoulder."

Special Trusses with large pads for large ruptures $2.50.

CONDITIONS OF SALE.—We allow you to try them for a few days and if they are not satisfactory we will refund you your money.

Farewell Social.

On Friday evening last a farewell social was given to Dr. Cross at the Baptist church and it proved a very enjoyable occasion. Tables were set in the basement and a more appetizing spread could not be wished for. There were upwards of three hundred who took an active interest in this part of the programme.

A ter refreshments were served all repaired to the audience room of the church, where the second part of the programme was given. Mr. J. W. Hutchinson took the chair and in a neat speech set the key note to the addresses that followed. Short speeches were given by Deacon E. L. Chute, W. S. Caron, Blake Miller, and F. A. Ashbaugh. All spoke in very complimentary terms of Dr. Cross as a christian gentleman and a citizen, each adding his own warm appreciation of his worth and work as a pastor and teacher. Regrets were expressed at his leaving Aylmer, but these were mingled with expressions of satisfaction and gladness in his being chosen to the high position of professor in McMaster University, a position his scholarly attainments eminently fit him for. Complimentary references were made to Mrs. Cross, of which she is worthy as a representative christian woman. The concluding address was given by Deacon Geo. Lemon and was accompanied with a purse of $75.00 in gold presented to Dr. Cross by Mr. Blake Miller.

Mr. Lemon read the address, which was as follows:
Dear Pastor,—During your pastorate here you have endeared yourself to us by your devotion to the church in all its interests, by your earnest and noble declaration of the truths of the gospel, and by the fact that these truths manifestly dominated your own thought and life. Your ministrations and experiences have been strong, tender, reverent and full of uplifting power. And while there is a general regret at your leaving us, we feel that you are entering upon a wider sphere of christian activity and that it is a high hour to the church to have your "solid and varied" gifts recognized by that cultured body—the Board of Governors of McMaster University. It is gratifying to us to have the assurance that your attainments are such as to enable you to do acceptable work as a professor, and in the near future, to take a high rank among historical specialists. But we would neglect a great part of the life which you have lived if we did not express the high esteem in which Mrs. Cross is held. No lady has won the confidence of the people to a greater degree than she has. In her home life, church life and in whatever capacity she has acted, she has proven herself an earnest, christian worker, kind, generous, forgiving, charitable; and that modesty which highly adorns a woman, she possesses. Neither would we forget the two children, your dear little girls. They reflect the religious teaching and wholesome training that father and mother has given them. And so parents and children constitute a household, the crowning glory of which, is the sacred sanction which christianity has invested it with as an earnest of a holier and happier home above. As a tangible expression of our esteem and regard we present you with this purse of gold, desiring that you accept it not so much for its intrinsic value though it has that but for the love and respect it represents. May the "God of peace be with you" now and always.

During the evening a very pretty soprano and alto duet was sung by Miss Alma Clark and Mrs. Chas. Clark, and a choice soprano and tenor duet by Miss Mabel Clarke and W. S. Lemon. The opening anthem was given by the choir. The singing of the doxology closed this very interesting and enjoyable social occasion, which will long be remembered.

Dr. Cross preaches his farewell sermon on Sunday next. The ordinance of the Lord's supper will be observed at the close of the morning service.

The Farewell Said

The many friends of Rev. C. T. Scott and family, met at the parsonage grounds on Tuesday evening, to further show their appreciation of the work done in connection with the church. It took the form of a free and easy assembly and at 9 o'clock was called to order by Mr. Wm. Warnock who made a few well chosen remarks. He then called on Mr. Alex. Connor, who came forward and read the following address:—

Rev. C. T. Scott:—
Dear Pastor I have heard somewhere a homely and somewhat unlikely story of a man whom his wife found crying, and when urged for an explanation, said that he had been contemplating the sad time when she should die and he would be left alone. The poor woman tried to comfort him, but the only reply obtained was that it made him feel so badly he wished it was all over with. Now I hope Bro. Scott does not find himself tonight in the same spirit regarding this farewell reception, for while there is always a tinge of sadness connected with gatherings of this kind, the sentiment is perhaps none the less to be desired, just as the clouds heighten the glory of the sunset the thought of parting adds sometimes a depth of feeling to our pleasure. Think a moment and see if you do not find some of the most cherished spots in your memory to be those of farewells. The farewell of the mother to her son starting out from the parental roof to build for himself a name among men. Though he lives to become a patriarch the memory of that scene is always an inspiration and a blessing. Were it not for our farewells we could have no grand reunions, no home coming, no joyous meetings after months or years of separation, no glad renewing again of old acquaintances.

I once heard a prominent business man remark that if he had any friends who held him in high enough regard to present him with flowers, he sincerely hoped they would do it while he still lived, and there is a great deal in the thought. Why wait until our friends are dead to speak well of them. Do we appreciate their work. Do we admire their lives? Then let us say so. The boy or girl is delighted with the welcome words "Well done," and the man or woman is but the boy and girl older and bigger grown. We believe that many a man has allowed the members of his own family to hunger for an occasional word of encouragement, and when it became too late discovered to his surprise that he had been entertaining angels unawares, and many a well meaning congregation has allowed its pastor to resign because the members failed to look and speak their approval. Hence the pastor has never perhaps learned the place he has won in the minds and hearts of people until he comes to say farewell.

Our neglect to praise our friends for faithful effort is due very often to want of thought and not on account of any fixed purpose or coldness of heart.

Sometimes all that is needed is a leader to sound a note of good will and we suddenly find the whole community joining in a glad chorus. Did it ever occur to you how quickly one courageous voice can change the sentiment of a multitude? Let me illustrate by a story of the great Chicago fire. When many strong minded men found their homes their fortunes, and in some instances their families, swept away by that cruel conflagration they gave up in despair, and in not a few cases committed suicide. At a large meeting called in the interests of the city, the opinion prevailed that Chicago was ruined and would not be rebuilt. A young man, a son of one of the many prominent families, was present. Arising amid most depressing circumstances he made the following remark: "Chicago is not ruined. Our fathers raised her from the bog and we will build her from her ashes." His friends caught the inspiration, and who shall say that the magnificence of the great city by the great lake to-day, is not in some measure due to the courage of that young man.

When our soldiers return from the seat of war, it is right that we should hold enthusiastic receptions in their honor, and what shall we say of our brother and his devoted wife who have so gallantly, persistently and gracefully, carried their King's colors in our midst, before our eyes, making many friends, and strange to say, no enemies; influencing this people by their lives more than words can tell. By common consent inside and outside of the church "To know them is to love them." We believe that in future when comparing pastors with pastors, we will all hear the remark, "he is not like Charlie Scott." We have the consolation that Aylmer's loss is London's gain.

We desire to present you with this purse of gold, not in payment of services, God alone can repay you, but as a token of our appreciation of yourself and estimable family. Someone has wisely said that the purest satisfaction we can have on earth is the assurance of duty well done. And Brother Scott you have that joy in your heart, and of which you cannot be robbed, and which is the most perfect endorsement of your work in Aylmer.

Signed on behalf of Quarterly Board,
A. CONNOR, Sec.
Little Lena Monteith presented Mr. Scott with the purse, to which he made a suitable reply. Mrs. C. Bingham then read an address on behalf of the Women's Missionary Society, and Mrs. Jas. E. McDonald presented Mrs. Scott with a life membership in the society. The evening's gathering was brought to a close by wishing Mr. and Mrs. Scott "God speed" in their new home.
