WRITTEN ON THE DEATH OF THE LATE WILLIAM BLATCHFORD.

BY MARY SMALL, MANITOBA.

Stricken down in manhood's prime, The eldest of our flock; Why will nature still smile on— Our misery seem to mock.

How could death's relentless hand Thus quench his precious life; And in a moment call him thence To quit this vale of strife.

Remembered forever shall his name Be around these hearts of ours; Till our enraptured spirits fly To that bright land of flowers.

It is there we must meet the loved and lost; The ones that went before— And join with them in songs of praise, To Christ forevermore.

But soon we will meet our brother dear, And with the ransomed saint, While praises shall burst from every harp, Swept by an Angel band.

A GOOD HIT.

A friend, says a contemporary, criticises the habit of ladies stepping in church aisles to gossip after service, and on this subject relates a personal grievance. On Sunday his wife stopped his chat with a friend in the aisle of the church, and, both being attired in modern costume, obstructed the passage to all who came after them. But the ladies were immersed in the subject of their discussion, and were therefore utterly unconscious of blockade. He finally left in disgust, and passed some 15 or 20 minutes in waiting, before he could get through.

The ride home was enjoyed in the most delectable silence, but at dinner the long pent-up wrath burst forth.

"Nothing reminds me so much of Balaam and his ass," exclaimed the fraile old gentleman, "as two women stopping in church to indulge in their everlasting talk, stopping the way of those who wish to get out, and making themselves the subject of criticism."

"But you forgot, my dear," replied his wife, meekly, "it was the angel that stopped the way, and the ass spoke afterward."

Then there was more silence.

SIR JOHN MACDONALD.

The Mail concludes a very well written article on the services rendered the country by Sir John A. Macdonald, as follows:—

"(The Sir John) found his country a province, and made it a nation. He found it small; he made it great. He found it divided; he gave it a name that the world is familiar with. He found it on the shores of our inland lakes; he expanded it till its borders reached the Atlantic Ocean. He found it a land of conflict; he made it a land of peace. He found it a land of poverty; he made it a land of wealth. He found it a land of ignorance; he made it a land of knowledge. He found it a land of darkness; he made it a land of light. He found it a land of despair; he made it a land of hope. He found it a land of death; he made it a land of life. He found it a land of sorrow; he made it a land of joy. He found it a land of pain; he made it a land of pleasure. He found it a land of trouble; he made it a land of ease. He found it a land of confusion; he made it a land of order. He found it a land of disorder; he made it a land of harmony. He found it a land of discord; he made it a land of concord. He found it a land of strife; he made it a land of peace. He found it a land of war; he made it a land of peace. He found it a land of blood; he made it a land of life. He found it a land of death; he made it a land of life. He found it a land of sorrow; he made it a land of joy. He found it a land of pain; he made it a land of pleasure. He found it a land of trouble; he made it a land of ease. He found it a land of confusion; he made it a land of order. He found it a land of disorder; he made it a land of harmony. He found it a land of discord; he made it a land of concord. He found it a land of strife; he made it a land of peace. He found it a land of war; he made it a land of peace. He found it a land of blood; he made it a land of life. He found it a land of death; he made it a land of life. He found it a land of sorrow; he made it a land of joy. He found it a land of pain; he made it a land of pleasure. He found it a land of trouble; he made it a land of ease. He found it a land of confusion; he made it a land of order. He found it a land of disorder; he made it a land of harmony. He found it a land of discord; he made it a land
