PLENTY OF WATER NOW

A Glance at the State London Was In In 1908 as Compared With This Summer. There is "water to burn" in the city today, a state of affairs in vivid contrast with former years. Last year, at this time, there was little water in the reservoir. It was impossible to run elevators. It will be remembered that the elevator in St. Joseph's Hospital was out of commission because there was not enough pressure to keep it going. The supply in the reservoir had to be protected, and the water was pumped lirectly from the ponds, rather than draw on the reservoir supply, which was at its best extremely low. Lawns were parched, streets were abnormally dusty and conditions were far from pleasant. Now there is an abundance water. The streets are well watered. The reservoir has 13 feet 8 inches at the present time, and there is more
