FREDERICTON, N. B., November 19, 1884.

The Presidential Contest.

There is no longer any doubt, that the Democratic party in the United States, have elected Grover Cleveland to the Presidency. While there existed a shadow of hope for a different conclusion, the Republicans obstinately and tenaciously clung to it, but they have at last thrown than one section of voters. The Demoup the sponge. The official count in crats certainly made the best possible time yet. New York which the more sanguine Republicans anticipated would give a pluits effect is said to have been the loss to rality for Blaine, is announced, and it Blaine, of at least ten thousand votes in settles the question of the Presidency for New York city and State. the next four years. It was a slender thread upon which crats are believed to be favorable to a to hang so great an issue. The change reduction of the tariff, and possibly to of six hundred votes to the Republican party in New York, would have given victory to Blaine. The President elect not only captures a majority vote in the Electural College, but has a large plurality of the popular vote, as will be seen from the following table which is made up from the latest figures published :---
