THE QUESTION

With your present knowledge and attainments and with your present prospects for advancement, do you expect a bright, successful and satisfactory future? If you answer YES, all well and good; if you cannot, what of it? Of what value to the world and of what value to themselves are men and women without a future? If you are just starting in life, start right, and a successful future is sure to follow. If you have already started but not in the right route, change to-day. Success in life consists in doing something that everybody cannot do; in learning to do something for which there is a great demand, and in learning to do it unusually well. We have helped thousands on the way to bright and successful futures—we are helping them all the time.
