

THE JUNE

CANADIAN

Our Other Royal Duke

In the importance of our present Royal Duke as Governor-General, we almost forget the gay young Prince of the Blood Royal who lived in Canada 121 years ago—the Duke of Kent, father of Queen Victoria and grandfather of our present Governor-General.

“‘Royal Edward’ loved sweet lips, and in his Graciousness he sampled many” writes DANIEL OWEN, who relates how the Prince kissed a young woman at Annapolis Royal and thereby ended her engagement to be married.

Confidences of a Woman Lawyer

By J. Sedgwick Cowper

A fascinating interview with Miss Mabel French, showing how she became a “person” in her native Province of New Brunswick and has been at last admitted to the bar of British Columbia.

Regina: the Capital of Saskatchewan

By Emily P. Weaver

An entertaining account, well illustrated, of how this bare spot on the prairie has grown into a keen, throbbing, wide-awake modern city, surrounded by some of the best wheat-land in the world.

The French-Canadians and the Constitution

By Professor W. S. Wallace

A concise statement of the rights and privileges of French-Canadians in Quebec Province and in the Dominion as a whole.

Place-Names of the Maritime Provinces

By F. A. Wightman

Quatawamkedgwick is one of them and Chipnitneticook is another. Mr. Wightman tells about their origin and about many others equally interesting.

A Lover's Quarrel.

A charming short story by Ethelwyn Wetherald.

THE CANADIAN MAGAZINE

TORONTO, CANADA

TO ANY ADDRESS IN GREAT BRITAIN, IRELAND AND MOST OF THE COLONIES THE SUBSCRIPTION PRICE IS TWO DOLLARS AND FIFTY CENTS POST PAID.