CLINTON E. BRUSH FAILURE.—The failure of Clinton E. Brush &amp; Bro., Toronto, wholesale dealers in fancy goods, although a surprise here and there in some social circles, has not taken business men unawares. It was known to the trade that the firm had been hard-pressed for some time and, apart from the assistance of friends, had to solicit partial extensions from their business creditors. The total liabilities are about $65,000, of which about one-half is due to one or two business friends and relatives on this side and some relations in New York in the shape of money borrowed. Mr. Clinton E. Brush was for some time in the firm of Hastings, Bosworth &amp; Co., of New York, and on retiring from that concern, some nine years ago, opened a small sample office in that city and started out to drum up customers. Some little time afterwards he fancied he saw a good opening in Toronto, and soon ventured out in full blast in that city, with a reputed capital of about $12,000. The business was supposed to be proving fairly prosperous. Last year the concern was reported to have made $40,000, but their imagination had been fired by the enormous profits said to be made in corset manufacturing and they accordingly, about a year ago, undertook to start the "Bell" a-rolling and set up a factory of their own. They had been reducing some of their lines for some time. But the corset business does not appear to have prospered, although they claimed to have sold some $50,000 worth meantime, and at a profit of 25 per cent. The brothers do not seem to have lived extravagantly.—Clinton drew $3,500 a year and Sealey Brush, $3,000. The keeping of an office in New York and two sets of books, or rather one set of books divided between that city and Toronto, may be open to the charge of unnecessary expenditure, and moreover as the paternal relative in charge of the New York office has been drawing more than his salary for some time, thus gradually recouping the few thousand dollars which he appears to have lent the young men. The father-in-law of one of the partners is also a creditor for $4,000 to $5,000. The troubles of the concern are attributed to too much reliance on the leniency of their lending relations, but more immediately to the great falling-off in trade during the last two months, which turned out but a fraction of what they had expected, and left them, as a practical business friend remarked, with "buttons" and "trimmings" enough on hand to sink a ship—a poor class of stock in these days of rapid changes in fashion.
