

and, and so normal art and culture survive in an isolated and alienated state. This is the result of the social and political and cultural conditions of life. Life is a social process in which people identify themselves with their environment. In the struggle for existence, people are forced to work hard and strive for survival.

The struggle for existence is a social process in which people
are forced to work hard and strive for survival.

The struggle for existence is a social process in which people
are forced to work hard and strive for survival.

The struggle for existence is a social process in which people
are forced to work hard and strive for survival.

The struggle for existence is a social process in which people
are forced to work hard and strive for survival.

The struggle for existence is a social process in which people
are forced to work hard and strive for survival.

The struggle for existence is a social process in which people
are forced to work hard and strive for survival.

The struggle for existence is a social process in which people
are forced to work hard and strive for survival.

The struggle for existence is a social process in which people
are forced to work hard and strive for survival.

The struggle for existence is a social process in which people
are forced to work hard and strive for survival.

The struggle for existence is a social process in which people
are forced to work hard and strive for survival.

The struggle for existence is a social process in which people
are forced to work hard and strive for survival.

The struggle for existence is a social process in which people
are forced to work hard and strive for survival.

The struggle for existence is a social process in which people
are forced to work hard and strive for survival.

The struggle for existence is a social process in which people
are forced to work hard and strive for survival.

The struggle for existence is a social process in which people
are forced to work hard and strive for survival.

The struggle for existence is a social process in which people
are forced to work hard and strive for survival.

The struggle for existence is a social process in which people
are forced to work hard and strive for survival.

The struggle for existence is a social process in which people
are forced to work hard and strive for survival.

The struggle for existence is a social process in which people
are forced to work hard and strive for survival.

The struggle for existence is a social process in which people
are forced to work hard and strive for survival.

The struggle for existence is a social process in which people
are forced to work hard and strive for survival.

The struggle for existence is a social process in which people
are forced to work hard and strive for survival.