

24. When the attendance of a senator is not at the table on the day of the debate, the Senate is notified by the Secretary of the Senate. The Senate may then decide to suspend the senator or to refer the matter to the Committee on Privileges and Elections. The Senate may also decide to refer the matter to the Committee on Privileges and Elections if the senator is absent for more than 10 days. The Senate may also decide to refer the matter to the Committee on Privileges and Elections if the senator is absent for more than 10 days and the Senate is notified by the Secretary of the Senate. The Senate may also decide to refer the matter to the Committee on Privileges and Elections if the senator is absent for more than 10 days and the Senate is notified by the Secretary of the Senate.

24. No change

25. When the attendance of a senator is not at the table on the day of the debate, the Senate is notified by the Secretary of the Senate. The Senate may then decide to suspend the senator or to refer the matter to the Committee on Privileges and Elections. The Senate may also decide to refer the matter to the Committee on Privileges and Elections if the senator is absent for more than 10 days. The Senate may also decide to refer the matter to the Committee on Privileges and Elections if the senator is absent for more than 10 days and the Senate is notified by the Secretary of the Senate. The Senate may also decide to refer the matter to the Committee on Privileges and Elections if the senator is absent for more than 10 days and the Senate is notified by the Secretary of the Senate.

25. A senator shall not speak at a Conference with the House of Commons unless he is a member of the Committee.

The words "according to Parliamentary usage" are deleted because they are not in the original text.

26. The Journals of the Senate may be printed by the House of Commons, as the Senate may decide.

27. The Journals of the Senate may be printed by the House of Commons, as the Senate may decide.

27. The Journals of the Senate may be printed by the House of Commons, as the Senate may decide.

The words "according to Parliamentary usage" are deleted because they are not in the original text.

28. A bill of the House of Commons may be referred to the Senate if the House of Commons so decides.

28. No change

29. A bill of the House of Commons may be referred to the Senate if the House of Commons so decides.

29. No change

30. The Journals of the Senate may be printed by the House of Commons, as the Senate may decide.

30. No change