

General Hewson's route has been thoroughly tested under the American system of cross-section surveys, followed by several trial lines, which he states can be done at a cost of not over $150,000. We shall reserve for another issue a brief description of the country to be traversed by General Hewson's line, together with a review of the evidence upon which the General rests his case.

—:O:—