Autumn Garments

The stock of Suits we are showing includes all the prescribed styles for autumn, in cut, materials, trimmings, etc., etc. They also bear the stamp of smartness conferred by their New York origin. Another good feature—the prices are adjustable to everyone's circumstances, ranging $16.50 to $65.00.

In the Coat and Cloak Section our display is adaptable to every purpose of wear. The Sturdy Tweeds and Heavy Cloths, in Blacks and all Colors for general wear, and the Rich Velvet, Sik and Satin Garments for state occasions.

Through the whole stock the matter of price has received careful consideration, giving the purchaser the best value obtainable anywhere.

When we got up yesterday morning we knew that Mother Earth had been treated to a generous shower or two. The pavements were wet, everything was damp, and the air was pure and fresh. Just as soon as you got accustomed to the fact that it was a fall day, and you were assured that some-body with a good guessing head on his shoulders was looking after the weather, you felt more confirence in what was to follow.

It was a good prospect, as far as the man about town was concerned; there was nothing to fase him, nothing to cause him a moment's regret, for all his girls could come out if they wished; and, by the way, there was an endless array of girls out, from the sweet little exquisite kind, all the way down to the most confiding kind of girlle that leaned for support upon her young man.

A short time ago Toronto called Mr. Shaw to the Board of Education. In a vote taken from the whole city he stood second only to a man whose family name was a household word in Toronto long before W. H. Shaw ever saw it. The people evidently trusted him.

After a short service on the Board he was elected Chairman. His colleagues trusted him and honored him.

Now comes the nomination for North Toronto. If one duty has been so performed that the people wish him to assume another, he is willing to try.

The nomination may come from a party, but the call comes from the people. In entering the campaign he does so with a desire to serve the whole people of North Toronto.
