A FINE NEW HOME FOR SOUTH END SOCIETY

St. John The Baptist Society to Have Commodious Club house on St. James Street--Will be Gotten Under Way at Once.

St. John the Baptist Society has taken the initial step towards the erection of a fine new hall, by the purchase of a piece of land situated on St. James street, between Charlotte and Germain. The site which was the property of the Bartholomew Cemetery estate was taken over today, the deal having been put through by James H. Doody.

The society's new home which will be a commodious structure designed and equipped along strictly modern lines will rank among the finest of its kind in the city. The formation of the land is such that but little excavating will be necessary thus saving a considerable outlay.

The intention is to devote the lower portion of the building to the society's apartments, which will consist of meeting room, bowling alley billiard room, etc., while above these will be situated the auditorium, which will be equipped for concerts and various kinds of entertainments.

Just when building operations will be started is uncertain at present, but the structure will be gotten under way at the earliest possible moment.
