A DOUBLE CURE FOR DOUBLE TROUBLE

Father Morrissey's No. 26 Cures Catarrh by a Combined Treatment.

The sudden weather variations in our climate result in a great many cases of catarrh—a troublesome disease usually considered hard to cure, and one which often leads to serious pulmonary and intestinal troubles.

A neglected cold in the head weakens the nasal membranes, so that at every future exposure the trouble returns. At length these conditions are fastened onto the system, and the sufferer undergoes the annoyance and danger of chronic catarrh.

Some doctors confine themselves to prescribing external applications, and thus do not reach the seat of the trouble. Others give internal treatment exclusively, and thus do not promptly relieve the affected parts.

Father Morrissey, the skilled priest-physician, rightly regarded catarrh as a double trouble, consisting of unpleasant local effects and of fundamental causes, the latter being due to impaired general vitality.

His famous remedy, No. 26, is a combined cure for catarrh. It consists of tablets to be taken three times a day, and an especially comforting ointment.

The salve is antiseptic, and quickly heals the inflamed membrane of the nasal passages. The tablets go to the seat of the trouble and restore the system to its normal state.

Instead of neglecting a disease that is unpleasant to yourself and to others, and one which often leads to pneumonia and consumption, it is surely the part of wisdom to take timely steps to do away with the effects and at the same time remove the cause. No 26 does just that.

Ask for the combined treatment. At your druggist's, or from Father Morrissey Medicine Co., Ltd., Chatham, N.B.

Loyalist Society

There was a large and enthusiastic meeting of the members of the New Brunswick Loyalist Society, held in their rooms in the Market building last evening. Being the annual meeting, the election of officers took place, as follows: President, W. P. Dale, 1st vice-president, D. J. Seely, 2nd vice-president, C. A. Macdonald, 3rd vice-president, C. E. J. Jarvis, chairman, Rev. W. O. Raymond, LL.D., secretary and historian, D. R. Jack, treasurer, H. W. V. Fink, marshals, J. S. Flaherty, W. R. Drake, standing committee, W. E. Vroom, A. O. Earle, H. S. Wallace, H. J. Anderson, J. B. Eagles, Rev. J. W. Millidge, Kendall Hall, G. Chivers, Corman, L. B. Millidge. Dr. Raymond was elected to represent the society at the meeting of the Royal Society of Canada at their annual meeting to be held at Ottawa on the 16th, 17th and 18th instants, and was requested to report fully on the work of the society during the past year.

A committee was appointed to arrange for the church celebration of Loyalty Day, on the Sunday following May 18. The historian, D. R. Jack, reported on his recent trip to Ottawa. Mr. Jack was requested to prepare a paper to be read in the city schools on the day prior to Loyalty Day. A vote of thanks was tendered to Mr. Jack for his services.

Mark Twain's will was probated yesterday. He leaves all his estate to his daughter, Mrs. Catherine Fitch. The house is valued at $50,000 and there is thought to be $150,000 in the funds. No estimate as to the value of his books has been made.

FRENCH SOLDIERS HONOR QUEEN OF PORTUGAL

Touring recently in her car near the Franco-Spanish frontier, the Queen of Portugal reached the shores of Las Drienas, and, noting the beautiful character of the scenery, determined to alight and wander for a while along the margin of the lake. No sooner had she alighted than she discovered that she was within the lines of a French manoeuvre camp occupied by reserve officers and men of the Forty-ninth regiment of the line in garrison at Bayonne. The queen was quickly recognized and was received with military honors by the young officer in command. The queen very much enjoyed her brief inspection of military camp life. The artist has succeeded in catching an excellent likeness of Queen Amelia, who is forty-five years old this year.

SCAREMONGERS ON COMET HAVE THEIR INNINGS

Facts About The Visitor of the Heavens Which Will be of Much Interest Just Now

(Toronto Mail and Empire.)

Certain writers have taken advantage of the appearance of Halley's comet to harrow the feelings of readers with speculations as to a possible collision between this wanderer and the earth. They harp on the speed of the comet, the deadliness of the gases which make up its atmosphere, and, as far as astronomers have been able to determine, it is hurtling through the same groove this minute as it was the day before Adam was born. Many hundreds of years ago it was observed with terror by astrologers, associated its appearance with some terrible event in history. If anything unusual occurred the year before or the year after, there would be all ways enough superstitions people to hold this ghostly visitor in some degree responsible. It was not until long after Newton's and Halley's day that Bunsen and Kirchhoff invented the spectroscopic means by which astronomers have been able to analyze the component parts of comets.

The Comet's Tail

As the comet approaches the sun from a distance no tail is visible, but within a certain range the tail begins to develop. It is not a cloud of red-hot particles driven off by friction with an atmosphere, the same as those of a meteorite, that is consumed by the friction of its own velocity through our atmosphere. In that case it would extend in a direction directly opposite to the direction of travel. As a matter of fact the tail is always developed on the side opposite the sun, as if some repulsive force from the greater mass were blowing off particles of the envelope of the comet, or rather charging it with electricity, so that we are able to see parts that are ordinarily invisible. We have kindred phenomena on a large scale in the aurora or northern lights, and on a small scale, when, during certain conditions of atmosphere, the tips of the yards and spars and in fact every projecting point on a ship at sea will be tipped for a time with a glow of St. Elmo's fire that never since went down to the sea in ships. This auroral and mystified phenomenon.

Streak of Gas

This tail of electricity charged particles may be a mere streak, a bright gas, matter which envelopes the nucleus of the comet on all sides to the same extent. It may be only the most ordinary particles that show as the tail, for the same reason that a high-tension electrical discharge, which may be visible in ordinary atmosphere gives a pale glow to the whole in

FAREWELL SAID TO REV. A. B. COHOE

Good Words For Minister and His Wife Held At Reception Held In Brussels Street Baptist Church Last Evening

Brussels street United Baptist church was well filled last night by the members of the congregation and their friends who had come together to say farewell to Rev. A. B. Cohoe, whose departure from the city. During the evening a purse containing $125 in gold, which had been subscribed by 250 persons, and an address, was presented to Rev. Mr. Cohoe in the hall of the members. Addresses were delivered by Rev. Wellington Camp, in behalf of the Baptist Ministers' Association; Archdeacon Hartman, president of the Evangelical Alliance; Rev. Dr. C. T. Phillips, A. M. Belding, in behalf of the Every Day Club; Mr. W. H. Moore, secretary of the boys' work in the Y. M. C. A.; A. H. Chipman was in the chair. During the evening a quartette of little girls sang and George Brown sang a solo. At the close most of those present pressed forward to shake hands with Mr. and Mrs. Cohoe. Rev. W. Camp referred to the fact that during the three years he had been in St. John most of the ten Baptist churches had changed ministers, some of them more than once. Rev. Mr. Cohoe had been seven years in the city and he was sure that he could say in behalf of the members of the association he represented that during all that time they had been an inspiration to them. They had prized very highly his Christian character and scholarly attainments and they had expressed their sentiments by a resolution recorded on their minutes. Personally he regretted to part with Mr. Cohoe but he was sure that he could say in behalf of the members of the association he represented that during all that time they had been an inspiration to them. They had prized very highly his Christian character and scholarly attainments and they had expressed their sentiments by a resolution recorded on their minutes. Personally he regretted to part with Mr. Cohoe but he was sure that he could say in behalf of the members of the association he represented that during all that time they had been an inspiration to them.

Archdeacon Raymond referred to Rev. Mr. Cohoe as a man whose sympathies were too large for any church, although he was loyal to his own church. His own intercourse with him had always been very pleasant. For the members of the Evangelical Alliance he was sure he could say they regretted as much as he did the necessity of parting. They might not always have coincided with him in his judgment but they were always sure that he was honest.

Rev. Dr. Phillips said he was glad to be present to say a few appreciative words of Mr. Cohoe. He had done incalculable good in St. John and many young men's lives had been made better by coming in contact with him. He had been a source of comfort and help to many.

Mr. Moore, who was the last speaker, referred to the interest which Rev. Mr. Cohoe took in the boys' work of the Y. M. C. A. Mr. Cohoe understood boys and his influence on them had always been for good. It was sorry that he was leaving the city.

The chairman then called Rev. Mr. Cohoe to the platform and read an address signed by the deacons of the congregation. In this document reference was made to the strong tie which existed between the church and Mr. and Mrs. Cohoe. Regret was expressed that the time had come to part. The excellence of Mr. Cohoe's work in all departments of the church was acknowledged as well as the larger field of citizenship. In conclusion, Mr. Chipman presented to him the purse of gold as a slight mark of appreciation and love.

Rev. Mr. Cohoe in his own behalf and in that of Mrs. Cohoe and his family acknowledged the gift in fitting words. The associations between him and the members of Brussels street church he affirmed had always been of the pleasantest. He had tried to do his part they had done theirs and he felt that no church could be so much to him in the future as Brussels street church had been. He would not go so far as to say that he saw any distinct marks of providence in his going, but he was sure that he was doing what he thought best. He assured those present that both he and Mrs. Cohoe would always have the kindest memories of them.

At the close most of those in the church pressed forward to the platform to say good-by to Mr. Cohoe and his wife.

WAR SCARE NOT WORTH WORRYING ABOUT

Captain Hunter's Views at St. George's Banquet—The Englishman in Canada

Captain A. T. Hunter, L. L. D., at the 75th annual banquet of the St. George's Society in Toronto gave his opinion that the war scare was nothing worth worrying about.

"Englishmen take their pleasures sadly," he said. "When twelve or more meet they make merry by shaking their heads over the decay of English trade and the demoralization of the nation. 'We had some things like that not long ago in Toronto when some men, ages averaging about 65, met in Association Hall.' They shook their heads, collected two Dreadsoughts and after enjoying a sensible deluge of trepidation went home quite pleased."

"This peculiarity of character is part of our national pettiness which deserves forgiveness. The blue rain pastime of the British has deceived many a smart man, not including Napoleon, into believing that John Bull was all in. Then there came an upper cut and the doctor was working on the other chap."

"I am not one of those who believe that England has shot her bolt. If she goes down it will be because of internal dissension, dividing her strength. I expect the next war will be caused by England defeating one of her colonies."

"The founders will be blamed on English generals and the victories attributed to colonial valor."

"Old holdings and old legends do not make an old country. No man is so young, so new, so impossible, new as the newly arrived Englishman in Canada."

"From his distinctive footgear meant for walking in, to his bushy cap he is one joyous and triumphant officer against the ancient and immutable traditions of the country."

"The confidence in his right to lead in any enterprise here is astounding and he is willing to impart instruction. It came time to lose a certain amount of valuable time in showing his job once in a week during the first three years of Canadian life."

While most of the cannibals were sleeping, the captive natives escaped. Their going was hastened by the sight of two of the cannibal chiefs donning the missionaries' clothes. The clergyman had already been eaten.

"The Whitehead brought news of a general revival of the continent's religious enthusiasm of the Tonga, the Society, the Solomon and the Cook groups. The natives are holding dances and feasting of human flesh as they did in the days before the white man interfered."
