

BRITAIN'S COMMERCE

A Grand Gathering of Delegates From the Mother Country's Colonies.

Hon. Mr. Chamberlain Talks About Preferential Trade Within the Empire.

And Says, in Effect, if it is Generally Backed up it Might be Entertained.

London, June 9.—The third congress of the chamber of commerce in the British empire opened at 9 o'clock this morning in the hall of the Grocers' company, Princes street, with Mr. Joseph Chamberlain, colonial secretary and honorary president of the congress, in the chair. The splendid hall was filled with delegates from all parts of the empire, those of each colony being grouped under their own banner. Canada had two tables, the others had one.

The Canadian delegation was headed by Sir Mackenzie Bowell and Mr. Sanford Fleming. The gallery was filled with ladies. Sir Albert K. Rolit, M.P., president of the London chamber of commerce, welcomed the delegates at the head of the staircase. Mr. Chamberlain was accompanied by a number of noted colonists and agents general, including Sir Henry Brongniart, Leon, Lord Knutsford, Earl of Jersey, Sir George Baden-Powell, and many others.

Mr. Chamberlain was enthusiastically cheered as he officially welcomed the delegates. Among other things he said he was rejoiced at every indication of the great unity of the empire, upon which was founded all their hopes. He trusted the deliberations of the congress would result in an advance towards the goal to which all patriotic aspirations tended.

Continuing, Mr. Chamberlain remarked that the existence of this congress was evidence that we have to a great extent annihilated space, and further knowledge must tend to a complete agreement between the colonies and the mother country.

He then referred to the resolutions, but all proposals are deferred into a future session in comparison with the proposals to secure commercial union of the empire. Such commercial union was the first object of the congress, and the committee of the empire, to which would be committed all questions of commercial law in which the whole empire is interested.

HOW VISCOUNTS LOVE.

There is Something of the Order of Sacrelegiousness in it.

London, June 10.—The trial of the suit for breach of promise brought by May Gore, actress, against Viscount Sudley, lieutenant in the Royal Horse-guards, oldest son of the Earl of Arran, damages to the amount of $75,000 being claimed, was concluded to-day and resulted in a verdict for the defendant.

Viscount Sudley, during the course of his cross-examination, said he never mentioned marriage to the plaintiff, either by word or letter. Her statements in this connection were pure invention, he said.

Continuing, Viscount Sudley said that when he asked plaintiff to leave Lieut. Stourton, he had not offered her any inducements except affection. He loved and respected her, and his long association with her had not changed that feeling, but he did not intend, however, to make any sacrifice, except a financial one, and if he maintained his connection with her, he had to give up his allowance.

This caused the chief justice to remark that this was not a very high order of love and respect.

Counsel for plaintiff, referring to the "God bless you" in defendant's letter, asked: "Do you mean you commended to God the woman you were trying to purchase with a portion of your allowance?" "Certainly, I did," replied the viscount. Defendant's answer caused a sensation in the court. Answering further questions during the cross-examination, Viscount Sudley said he had intended to provide a permanent home for plaintiff.
