AMONG THE CANNIBALS.

A Canadian Relates His Pleasing Adventures in the South Sea Islands.

Unwilling Witness of a "Feast" and the Victim of the Tattooing Process.

Roderick McKenzie, who left Huron, Ontario, nearly forty years ago for the South Sea Islands, was the first white man to live and trade with the natives of many of the islands in that comparatively unknown archipelago. He relates many thrilling incidents in his life amongst the natives, his adventures with the cannibals of the Gilbert group being among the most interesting. The story is best told in Mr. McKenzie's own

I shipped as A. B. on a whaler from Sydney. After cruising about for four months we landed on one of the islands belonging to the Gilbert group. Dissatisfied with the treatment received on board, I detrmined that I would, if possible, leave the vessel. I was aided in whaler, where he picked up sufficient of our language to understand what I wanted. He followed the whaler with his canoe when we sailed away the next day. I jumped over the bow and let the vessel pass over me. He took me in his canoe and we were soon on shore. A few days afterwards we were walking along the beach and saw about forty car, as it weighed 26,000 pounds. natives, some of whom were digging in the sand. They soon uncovered the body of a man. It seems that the unwritten code of their laws provide the death penalty for theft, or the man from whom the guilty one steals can save him from execution by making him his slave for life. This was the body of a man who had suffered death for theft. After exhuming the body they impaled it on a pointed stake. To this they fastened a rope on either side, and several men taking each end of the rope amused themby jerking the body about. I became so sickened by the disgusting sight that Rosalie. They went over to work in the stay in the city . I ordered my companion to come away. He did so, but either for the sake of having a joke at my expense or because his cannibalistic nature delighted in the gruesome sight, he soon led me by a lfor the wages offered. Some of the detour through the woods to the place growers did not even pick their hops, and from whence we came. The natives were on the whole the season has been most 1250 cases of canned salmon, several now within the hut. We entered and unsatisfactory to the Indians. A DIFFERENCE SETTLED. City Health Matters in Dispute Will be Referred to the Board.

The members of the city council sat as board of health this morning to again take up the matter of defining the duties of the medical health officer and sanitary inspector. Mayor Teague presided, and Ald. Bragg, Humphrey, Wilson, liams, Macmillan, Cameron and Hail were present. Dr. George H. Duncan, medical health officer, Sanitary Inspettor Conlin and W. J. Taylor, city solicitor, were also in attendance. The was a long general discussion of the matter, participated in by everybody. Ald. Williams desired to give the medical health officer absolute authority, but Ald. Macmillan excepted to that. He believ ed that there were any number of small matters, particularly nuisances, which came directly under the authority of the sanitary officer and with which the health officer should not be bothered. Conflicts of authority should come before

Mr. Taylor pointed out that the by-law defined their respective duties, but 'n some sections gave both the right to do the same thing. There were many things which the doctor should not be asked to concern himself in, but as matter of law when it came down to the fine point the professional man's opinion would be taken first. Mr. Taylor then framed a resolution requiring reference to the board in case of the medical heal+ officer disapproving of the course of the sanitary officer, and it passed with the approval of everybody except Ald. Williams. It was moved by Ald. Cameron and seconded by Ald. Wilson and was as
