NOTES AND NEWS.

UNITED STATES.

On the 17th inst. some Chicagoans roasted potatoes and lit their cigars by some live coals left by the great fire, and now they are bragging about it.

Bangor, says the Commercial, is a city of musicians. Everybody is an adept on the light catarrh, induced by six months of dust coming on before colds, induced by six months winter, have been fairly got rid of.

Sixteen valuable horses belonging to Thomas Farrell, a Brooklyn street contractor, who had been away sick, literally starved to death, after eating up their bedding, pine boards, etc., in the stables where they were locked up.

A paper is in circulation among the leading physicians of New York favoring a legislative enactment for the suppression of trade in intoxicating liquors, alcoholic drinks being regarded as wholly unnecessary for medical purposes.

A prize fight between Tierny and Sloane, took place Friday on Long Island, N. Y. Twenty rounds were fought in one hour and two minutes, and Tierny was the winner. Sloane had two teeth knocked out and was badly bruised. Tierny had his nose broken and his eyes closed.

A young lady from Massachusetts has received from the Michigan University the degree of "Bachelor of Law." A female bachelor was sometime a paradox, but in these days of progress there is no knowing how soon women may claim to be widowers.

Alleging the inability of cultivated gentlemen like Charles Francis Adams to lead the masses, the Louisville Courier-Journal says: "We need a brilliantly-educated ruffian—a heroic, statesmanlike, high-minded and honest blackguard—a blatherskite with courage and real genius for public business."

The N. Y. Tribune publishes a refreshing letter from a pickpocket, advising people to leave their names and addresses in their pocket books, as "it frequently happens in our business that we come in possession of portmonnaies containing private papers and photographs which we would be glad to return, but we have no means of doing so."

A St. Louis paper publishes a very cheerful article in which it takes the ground that most of the drugs sold at the shops for medicine are poisonous, and that to get sick is the surest way of getting dead. This is most true, and we should advise no one to get sick and dependent on apothecaries for sustenance.

Those Irishmen who held a meeting the other night in New York to take measures for the promotion of the study of their native language showed their appreciation of the importance of the subject by calling English a "mongrel of half a hundred breeds" and disparaging the classics in comparison with the Celtics. Perhaps it is the Irish after all that is to become the universal language.

Minnesota has a law forbidding any one to do work on Sunday, "except only works of necessity or charity," and the liquor dealers, who have been forced to shut their shops on the Sabbath, have caused the arrest of the printers of the Minneapolis Tribune by way of testing the law. It seem to us very plain that to furnish a lively newspaper in a place like Minneapolis is a work of charity.

And now the "amateur casual" business has been undertaken by the United States Government. It is stated that several Treasury clerds and Dr. Craig have been sent to Europe and will return in the steerage of the different steamships, they mixing with steerage passengers, receiving the same accommodation in every respect without the knowledge of the officers of the steamer, the object being to obtain and furnish the Government with facts as to bad treatment and accommodation afforded emigrants.

GENERAL.

Karl Blind wants England to see the Spanish Republic.

A paper has been started in Madrid called Los Descamisados, or The Shirtless, which advocates absolute communism, with war against marriage, against property and against God.

It seems that Sir Samuel Baker is safe after all. If a man desires to spend the evening of his life in reading obituary sketches and eulogies of himself he cannot do better than to become an African explorer. He can thereby get a large assortment of them.

A German editor in Boston has received a strange call. While engaged in the eminently peaceful occupation of editing a weekly paper he has been offered by telegraph a colonelcy in the Dutch army in Sumatra. There is no knowing from what quarter a man may receive a summons to go forth to battle.

The monuments of English soldiers who fell in the Crimean war have been greatly neglected, and it has become almost impossible to trace some of the graveyards at all. The English Government, after appointing a commission to investigate the condition of affairs, has taken measures for the repair and restoration of the graves and the building of a general monument on Cathcart Mountain.

The report, which reached us by cable, from London, on the 23d inst., to the effect that the Right Honorable Earl De La Warr (not Delaware) had committed suicide, proves to have been correct. His body was found in the river Cam. Chas. Richard Sackville West, Earl De La Warr, and Viscount Cantilupe, C. B., was a major general in the British Army, an officer of the French Legion of Honor, and highly distinguished for his services in India and the Crimea. He was High Steward of Stratford-upon-Avon. He was born on the 15th of November, in the year 1815, and succeeded to the earldom on the 23d of February, in the year 1869. The deceased peer was the sixth earl of the title. The heir presumptive to the coronet is his brother, the Rev. Reginald Windsor West. It appears that the suicide of the Earl De La Warr was the result of mental depression, caused by the death of a lady friend.

Street beggars are now representing themselves to be survivors of the wrecked Atlantic.

The estimate of the Barbadoes sugar crop this year is forty million hogsheads. They are raising cane there.

Donald McArthur—Lot 30—Prince Edward Island—suicide by hanging—Monday week—family difficulties.

At Alymer, Ont., a week ago, Edward Mainville outraged his niece, aged 5, causing her death. He had not been arrested at last accounts, but officers are searching for him.

The trial of the Tichborne claimant on the charge of perjury is in progress. The court room is crowded with spectators, including many titled and distinguished persons.

The editor of a paper published in Ireland was lately sentenced to pay a heavy fine with four months' imprisonment for criticising the punishment inflicted upon those concerned in the Belfast riots.

Money is so very stringent that some young ladies, driven to desperation by the impecuniosity of their fathers, have determined to hold a fair "to aid in clothing a number of poor girls," the proceeds—to be divided.

To any young lady boed with a superfluity of evening calls, we recommend the following method of getting rid of her too numerous admirers: Keep on hand a supply of tickets for fancy fairs and charitable concerts, and offer a few to every man who comes to see you. The effect will be surprising.

It appears that the story of the vast inheritance of the Chase family is the ghost of a former story industriously circulated twenty-five years ago, Even the original story was nothing but a phantom. A member of the family, evidently well informed on the subject, pronounces it a silly fabrication, which has caused much time and money to be wasted during the last thirty years. On such silly fabrications do mythical estates in England rest.

The famous Politi, ex-lady of honor to the Queen Isabella of Spain, has again been condemned to imprisonment, notwithstanding the appeal from that tribunal of Rome to the Court of Frosinone. Signora Politi having fallen into very straightened circumstances through an accumulation of misfortunes, to replenish her empty purse, had the courage to rob the families of her acquaintance of their jewels, replacing the precious stones with paste. She followed this plan successfully for a long time from the reason that, like Cæsar's wife, she wes above suspicion, but circumstantial proof laid its hand upon her, and positive evidence was forthcoming. Her term of imprisonment is fixed at three years.
