BA'FOUR WANTS A CHANGE.

REVERSE BRITAIN'S FUNDAMENTAL FISCAL POLICY.

Retaliation the Plan—Controversy of 1846 of No Interest to the Present Generation.

Sheffield, Eng., Oct. 2.—The artillery drill hall, in which Premier Balfour made his promised tariff reform speech last evening in connection with the annual convention of the Conservative Association, was packed by an expectant audience long before 8 o'clock, the hour at which Mr. Balfour was announced to begin speaking. An overflow meeting in Albert Hall was also crowded, while thousands unable to obtain seats joined those inside the hall in patriotic songs and cheering. Mr. Balfour did not even hint at the successors in the Cabinet to Mr. Chamberlain, Lord George, Hamilton and Mr. Ritchie. In fact, he did not mention the Ministerial resignations. He confined himself strictly to the tariff, and his speech, which had been heralded as the first heavy gun in the fiscal reform campaign, was to a large extent a repetition of arguments contained in his recent pamphlet.

Mr. Balfour attributed the prominence of the fiscal reform movement to the fact that the country was in closer touch with the colonies as a result of the late war, and that the representatives of the Ministers in the colonies had brought before the empire the question of tariff reform, also because for a long time prior to the development of the present controversy there had been great uneasiness among all parties as to the condition of British trade in relation to the trade of the world. Mr. Chamberlain's speech of last May would not have had the effect it did if it had not fallen on prepared ground, and if Canada's effort to give a preference to the mother country had not brought out threats from at least one foreign country of retaliation. This had brought home to many minds the helplessness of Great Britain under such circumstances to meet a situation so unexpected and so dangerous.

"Free trade is, indeed, an empty name and a vain farce if it is a fact that foreign nations are setting themselves to divert our industries, exclude our manufactures, and limit the international play of supply and demand. There has been a development of which Cobden and his contemporaries never dreamed—the development of the trust system under protection. The phenomenon is so new that I dare scarce venture to prophesy what development it is likely to take, but you may be absolutely sure that in the alliance of trusts and tariffs there is a danger to the capital and enterprise of this country which acts and reacts, not mainly upon the capitalist, for he is at liberty to go to those regions where his industry will be looked after, but it will fall with its heaviest weight upon the artisan and the labor classes, which are incapable of protecting their interests against such a calamity."

"Now, if I have rightly described the dangers and evils we suffer, you are entitled to ask me whether I know of a cure. My answer will be disappointing. I know of no cure, but I do know of a palliation. The ill has gone too far. You will not get the great commercial nations of the world to abandon protection. I fear that you will not get the great self-governing colonies to retrace the steps which we without remonstrance permitted them to take. I am here, therefore, to recommend a palliation, which I believe to be still possible. Cobden hoped and believed in free trade throughout the world. What, in fact, we have got to deal with is a world where international commercial relations are regulated entirely by treaty. It is against common sense that we, the greatest commercial nation, should come forward and say, 'We want to arrange treaties with you, but we have nothing to give you nothing to withhold from you. We throw ourselves upon your mercy and consideration.' Did any man ever hear of successful negotiations without a nation having something to give, which in case of necessity it might withhold? My fundamental and essential request to you to-night, to which the rest of my speech is subsidiary and accidental, is that the people of this country should give to its Government that freedom of negotiations of which we have been deprived, not by force of circumstances or by the pressure of foreign powers, but by something I can only describe as our own pedantry and self-conceit."

Concerning the question as to whether it was intended to reverse the verdict of the great case of free trade vs. protection of 1846, his answer was that the controversy of 1846 was of no interest to the present generation, and was utterly inappropriate to 1903. He said: "Our grandfathers fought the battle in view of the actual situation. I ask the nation to-day to follow their example, and not be misled by misty debates. The second question is, 'Do you desire to reverse and alter the fundamental fiscal tradition, which has prevailed for two generations?' My answer is, 'Yes, I do.'"

He had given the topic his best thoughts, and he was firmly convinced that his policy harmonized with the best traditions of the party, and as leader of the party he meant to lead it. Patience and earnestness are passwords to success.

WEAK AND NERVOUS.

Thousands of Lives Made Miserable by a Trouble Easily Overcome.

Thousands of people throughout this country suffer continually from nervousness—their blood is poor and watery, their nerves unstrung and jaded. They are pale, weak, often troubled with headaches and dizziness, are exhausted by the slightest exertion, and often feel as though life were a burden. There is only one absolutely certain way to get new health and strength and that is through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. These pills make new, rich, red blood, strengthen the nerves and bring health, strength and happiness to those who use them. Mr. D. W. Daley, Crystal City, Manitoba, proves the truth of this. He says: "I have used Dr. Williams' Pink Pills with wonderful results. Before using them I was weak and nervous; my blood was poor; I was pale and suffered from pains in the region of the heart. Now, after the use of eight boxes, of the pills my nerves are strong; my blood is pure and rich; I have a good color and my heart action is regular. I think there is no medicine can equal Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for these troubles."

This is the verdict of all people who have given the pills a fair trial, and those who are sick can obtain new health and strength through the use of this medicine. Do not waste money and further endanger your health by the use of any substitute. See that the full name Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People is printed on the wrapper around every box. If you cannot get the pills from your dealer they will be sent by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 by writing to The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Hopeless Case.

"If you weren't so lazy you wouldn't be so pessimistic."

"Oh, nonsense!"

"Why don't you make hay while the sun shines, and—"

"Huh! If I tried to do that I'd just be my luck to get sunstruck."—Philadelphia Ledger.

The Nobility of Life.

There is no action so slight nor so mean but it may be done to a great purpose, and ennobled thereby; nor is any purpose so great but that slight actions may help it, and may be so done to help it much, most especially that chief of all purposes—the pleasing of God. We treat God with irreverence by banishing him from our thoughts, not by referring to his will on slight occasions. His is not the infinite authority or intelligence which cannot be troubled with small things. There is nothing so small but that we may honor God by asking his guidance of it, or insult him by taking it into our own hands; and what is true of the Deity is equally true of his revelation. We use it most reverently when most habitually; our insolence is in ever acting without reference to it; our true honoring of it is in its universal application. God appoints to every one of his creatures a separate mission; and if they discharge it honorably, if they quit themselves like men, and faithfully follow the light which is in them, withdrawing from it all cold and quenchless influence, there will assuredly come of it such burning as, according to its appointed mode and measure, shall shine before men, and be of service, constant and holy. Degrees infinite of lustre there must always be, but the weakest among us has a gift, however seemingly trivial, which is peculiar to him, and which, worthily used, will be a gift, also, to his race forever. Says George Herbert:

For all may have,
If they dare choose a glorious life or grave.

—John Ruskin.

MODES OF THE MOMENT.

Some Smart Black and White Effects. The Short Skirt.

Many women look their smartest in black, which is of course always useful, but navy blue runs it very close in popularity. A charming blue alpaca skirt seen recently was made with five flounces, just clearing the ground, with a smart little bolero fastening into the waist by a broad satin band. This bolero had a collar of Irish crochet decorated with black applique, and the sleeves were loose and open. This was lined with a spotted black and white foulard and was worn with a foulard blouse and a treader to the top of black straw trimmed with a black and white bird.

SILK MULL GOWN.

The short skirt with box plaits is practical and becoming. The plaits look their best coming from a small shaped hip piece, which keeps the hips plain while the fullness is allowed to spring out around the feet.

Deep purple hats are smart with linen costumes, and especially so when worn with purple petticoat and stockings and a purple sunshade.

Very full elbow sleeves are seen on lace evening dresses.

The illustration shows a gown of silk mull having a fichu effect and a large chiffon rosette.

WHAT IS WORN.

Smart Wraps Both in White and Colors—Walking Skirts.

A smart evening dress seen recently was of rose pink taffeta cut princess with a high sash belt of point d'alencon, which lace also fell in points on the low décolletage. The sleeve consisted of a tiny puff at the top of rose chiffon. This chiffon also formed innumerable frills right up the trained skirt to the knees.

The popularity of the sack coat never wanes. There is no more becoming garment for mountain wear, and in fact for outing wear generally.

Many walking skirts are made in checks and plaids, and most of these have a little short bolero to match.

AUTOMOBILE COAT.

Red and white and green and gray are considered the smartest, but of course they can only be worn by women with slight figures.

Skirts are more gauged than ever, and the smarter ones are cut all in one piece with a fullness around the feet sometimes measuring ten yards. They are pretty in muslins and other supple fabrics.

The white wrap is a very modish thing and ranges from the little sack coat to the elaborate half length sack of white lace on a foundation of white satin or taffeta.

A beautiful evening gown is of yellow chiffon over yellow satin, the chiffon, running in long lines from waist to hem. Pale pink roses and clusters of forget-me-nots are worked on the skirt in satin ribbon embroidery, and on the low bodice there are little hanging garlands of ribbon forget-me-nots. A large black hat, with a white ostrich feather under the brim, is worn with this lovely frock.

The cut shows a smart automobile coat of deep red.
