

woke up they found the ground covered with dew. And when the dew vanished, behold, fine, white grains were left, which tasted as sweet as honey. It was manna, the bread God had sent his children.

Moses told the people to go out and gather it. They did; and everyone had plenty.

And now comes the most wonderful part of this wonderful story. Those children of Israel wandered about in the wilderness for forty long years. But during all that time God never once forgot them. Each morning the manna came down like rain from heaven. No one went hungry.

God feeds us to-day in different ways, for

Back of the bread is the yellow grain,
And back of the grain the mill;
And back of the mill is the corn, and the rain,
And the sun, and the Father's will.

An adaptation of "Give Us This Day Our Daily Bread," by Maltbie D. Babcock.

A VERSE TO LEARN

"Give us this day our daily bread."

—Matthew 6 : 11.

ANOTHER VERSE TO LEARN

"He gave them bread from heaven to eat."

—John 6 : 31.