

APPRECIATION OF EARL ROBERTS

Address by Rev. A. W. Hubly on Sunday Evening at Emmanuel Reformed Episcopal Church.

"As long as there are earthly kingdoms bounded by physical geographical lines, and ruled by kings subject to unholy passions and love of power, there will be needed soldiers to fight for king and country, to be the kingdom ever so righteous," so spoke the Rev. A. W. Hubly at Emmanuel Church Sunday evening at the memorial service for the late Earl Roberts.

"The uncompromising forerunner of Christ who bore testimony to His being the greatest of all prophets, did not say 'give up the calling of a soldier of a despotic king, new ideals of their calling when he said—'Do violence to no man, neither accuse any falsely; and be content with your wages.'"

"It seems difficult to consider a soldier's calling apart from doing violence to men when fighting in defence of his country; and yet there is a vast difference in killing in righteous combat, and murdering by violent methods unlawful, unjust, and unreasonable."

"A good man is a dual subject. He belongs to two kingdoms. If we regard a British soldier, he is a subject of the earth, and also the secret of the greatness of every man whom England delights to honor. Regarding the passing of Earl Roberts we have a glorious hope. He, who divinely led in safety, his footsteps amid the perils of war along the banks of the Ganges, and over the bullet swept sands of India, and under a rain of shot and shell over kopje and veldt in the land of the Southern Cross, also led him in triumph through the everlasting doors and into the City of Peace. The inhabitants of earth have become used to the noise of bursting explosives, the rattle of death-dealing machinery, the cry of the wounded and the sob of the dying. But above the roar of cannon, the clash of arms and the shout of the warrior, another sound was heard—it was a sigh, a moan! No! It was a whisper, but it reached the uttermost parts of the earth, it swept the globe! It was a whisper of satisfaction and peace, as the aged Christian soldier and warrior put off his sixty years well used armour and entered into rest, for so he sought the uttermost sleep."

"His last word was, 'I shall not recover! I am happy to die near my beloved regiment.' He, the gallant and brave leader in many a conflict for the defence of the flag he loved, the country he served, and the crown he honored, within the zone of war, and noise of conflict, heard 'peace,' and composed himself to rest until 'heavenly.'"

"This common name 'Bobs' that might easily be the first utterance from infant lips, did not discount the dignity of the titles of honor he won and bore with that lowly grace that breathes the odor of Him whose garments smell of myrrh, aloes, and cassia."

Lord Roberts was a great general! The people of England class him as equal with Wellington and Nelson, whose place of burial he remains now share. "Bobs" may have been equal to the Duke in all things, but in some ways, he was greater. Wellington was a great commander, and enforced obedience by the disciplinary power his rank gave him.

Roberts was a great commander and enforced obedience by the power of a Christ-like interest, and whose discipline was made necessary he appeased with heartfelt sympathy. Each could brave the perils of war with a determination to lead their men to victory or die in the attempt. But "Bobs" exhibited a bravery that many valiant generals would not dare to imitate. He could bare his brow to the sunlight of heaven, before officers and men, and pray to the God of Battles and the God of Peace for them. This bravery was given him at his own family altar.

"My son, on first seeing Lord Roberts in South Africa, and hearing his speech to the Royal Canadian Regiment, wrote in the highest terms of appreciation of both the man and his address. How he pleaded for sobriety and righteousness among the men. No British soldier can be loyal to England, if he, by word or deed dishonors England's God."

Dr. H. G. Berrie who was with the Y.M.C.A. in South Africa, on his return to Montreal paid high tribute to Lord Roberts for his interest in the work of the field association and for his powerful influence for good amongst the men, from the highest office to the lowest menial in the army.

"In the book 'G' Company by Russell Hubly, the characteristics and eccentricities of military officers on the field are given and would be interesting reading were it not so saddened by that which calls from the writer the comment 'the pity of it' that when it is so easy to win and maintain the good will of the men, so many officers will not cultivate those graces unnecessary." Lord Roberts was never heard to speak ill of a fellow officer of his rank. This is very well set forth in his speech at Cape Town at the close of the Anglo-Boer war. Let me quote: "Lord Roberts at that time paid a highly moving tribute to the Royal Canadian Regiment, and the men who worked with him. He said, 'My interest in South Africa will not cease on leaving its shores, but I will watch its settlement with the utmost eagerness. My proudest boast shall be that I have found nothing but what stress of war compelled, to hinder the friendly fusion of the two races in this country.'"

Thus we, though far from the spot where our hero lies buried, bear the testimony to his worth and honor to his memory, as one who believed in the Christian Covenant which has the pillars of immortality built of grain always resort. And it is so real that it orders the footsteps of its devotees, so that the Lord God Almighty is a place of refuge to which they can always resort. And as the last guns, enter into the City of Peace, Peace, perfect Peace!

discourse on the subject of "Justice and its Relation to the Great Conflict" to Bridge St. Epworth League. So that his hearers could get an unbiased opinion of the subject he read considerable of the correspondence between the various diplomats and Sir Edward Grey. The conclusion was reached at the end of the address that Austria was justified in her attitude towards Serbia, and England, while not upholding Serbia, have proceeded in no other way and retain her honour. The power of Sir Edward Grey as the first diplomat of the world, was clearly defined. The Judge received a hearty vote of thanks from the League for his address.

T. P. BROWN DIED IN TORONTO

(From Tuesday's Daily.)

Mr. Thos. E. Brown, a former well-known and popular resident and merchant of Belleville, died yesterday, at his home in Toronto, after a lingering illness of some months' duration.

Deceased was between forty-five and fifty years of age. He was born in St. Thomas, Ontario. Many years ago he came to Belleville and joined the staff of the Ritchie Company. Later he entered into the house furnishing and curtain business for himself and occupied at different times three large premises on Front street. His last store was in the building in which the "Palace Theatre" is now conducted. About four years ago he and Mr. W. S. Clark founded the Palace Theatre, which they conducted for about one year. Mr. Brown then went to Toronto and entered the employ of the T. Eaton Company, in the house furnishing department.

Mr. Brown was a Methodist, and in politics a liberal. He had gifts as a writer, and was a frequent contributor to "The Daily Ontario." He leaves a widow and one daughter to mourn his loss.

WIFE, NOT HUSBAND DEAD

A regrettable error occurred in last evening's issue as to the death of a Trenton resident. It is Mrs. Robert Stout who is dead, not her husband, Mr. Stout, as announced.

False Fire Alarm

(From Tuesday's Daily.)

A false fire alarm was rung in after six last evening. The carts went up Front street as far as the foot-bridge, but no signs of smoke and fire could be discovered.

Horse Dropped Dead

A horse belonging to a farmer, dropped dead on Pinnacle street last evening while being driven by the owner, as the owner had been put under arrest for being drunk while in charge of a team of horses and wagon. This morning the animal was buried. The coroner was called with a warning, the court not dearing to increase his trouble by the imposition of a fine. He paid the costs of the night's keep of the remaining horse.

Only the uninformed endure the agony of corns. The knowing ones apply Holloway's Corn Cure and get relief.

Requisite on the Farm.—Every farmer and stock-raiser should keep a supply of Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil on hand, not only as a ready remedy for ills in the family, but because it is a horse and cattle medicine of great potency. As a substitute for sweet oil for horses and cattle affected by colic it far surpasses anything that can be administered.
