

WHITE FOX FURS
Favorites for Misses and Little Girls.

White fox furs (and other furs that look like fox) remain the favorite for misses' and little girls' wear. There are very excellent imitations of this fur. For millinery these are nearly always used, and as fox is a soft fur, they answer very well for the white sets worn by children and misses.

There is a fad just now for velvet hats with Tam crowns having a fox tail at the side for trimming. The smartest have plain brims like a narrow-brimmed, elongated sailor shape and a full crown. But narrow drooping brims or plaited frills about the face are selected for more youthful wearers.

For a little girl, hats are entirely or partially covered with fur. Sometimes the crown is of fur and the brim of velvet or plush. Such hats are trimmed with ribbon in bows or rosettes, often cleverly finished with cobwebs of fur. This combination makes a very durable hat.

A white fox set is sometimes worn with a plush turban finished with bows of plush. The scarf is short and full, with a tail at one end and head with paws at the other. The ample half-flat muff is also finished with garniture of a head and a pendant tail with paws. Another fur which is favored for young people and children, is that of the squirrel. This is made up for them in the natural gray. It is especially good color and in the Siberian squirrel shows at its best. There is a hint of blue in it. For older people it is usually dyed, but luxurious long coats are made of natural skins. Coats made of squirrel fur are worn by little girls, and in the cold-weather the little ones are entirely comfortable in them. There are many good plushes also that are almost as warm as fur.

These plushes are altogether desirable for neckpieces and muffs for children, and misses, as for grown-ups. Certain varieties, as chinchilla, bear and regulation silk plushes in colors, are made for children's wear. They have the advantage of great durability and can be quite successfully cleaned.

Besides these furs and fabrics, neckpieces and muffs with caps to match are crocheted or knitted of yarns made for the purpose. These are very handsome. The sets made of plush are not difficult to make, patterns may be found for them in any of the standard makes. The sets for muffs can be bought ready made or made at home. Woman's World for January.

DO YOU KNOW HIM?

(By Miriam Techner in the Detroit News) I'm sorry for all sick folks; yes, indeed; though maybe it's not sympathy they need. I'm sorry for the people ill in bed, with aching limbs or sorely throbbing head. I'm sorry for the patients who must lie for hours and hours, and see bright days but I'm sorriest for him who's not laid up. It seems to me he has the bitterest cup to drink, who has some nagging little ailment. For which he takes no medicine or pill, but simply sits there when at night he draws his face toward home; no face bright. I'm sorry for the people who, for the ladies know, their voices must be hushed, their play grow slow. I'm sorry for the people who, for the ladies know, their voices must be hushed, their play grow slow. To clean wool shawls or sweaters make a good lather of soap and warm water—just hot enough to be comfortable to the hands, and squeeze the shawl or sweater in this until it is clean. Do not rub soap on the garment. Rinse in several clean waters of the same temperature as the wash water, always squeeze the water from the wool. Never wring it by hand. After the final rinsing run it through the wringer, lay it on a clean sheet to dry. When partly dry smooth it gently into its proper shape.

Smart Boudoir Cap. If a woman has skillful fingers there is no reason why she should not be able to fashion the most fascinating boudoir-caps for herself, and hereby save very considerably on her dress allowance, for it is astonishing how little things have a tendency to mount up quickly. One can evolve all sorts of combinations and designs, which can be worked out with net and insertion and a little lace, if so desired. One seen at the other day, had been made of ordinary net with imitation Valenciennes insertion in a big bow under the chin or at the side, as fancy dictated.

"Are you the villain in the troupe?" asked the hazy-gazer, who was handling theatrical trunks. "No," replied the youth, who black eyes had "I used to be, but the real villain is the treasurer of the company, and by this time he's over a mile on his way to the next town."

IF YOUR BABY IS SICK
GIVE BABY'S OWN TABLETS

The little ills of babyhood and childhood should be treated promptly, or they may prove serious. An occasional dose of Baby's Own Tablets will regulate the stomach and bowels and keep your little ones well. Or they will promptly restore health if sickness comes unexpectedly. Mrs. Lenora M. Thompson, Oil Springs, Ont., says: "I have used Baby's Own Tablets for my little girls as occasion required, and have found them always of the greatest help. No mother, in my opinion, should be without the Tablets." Sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

SPELLING WITHOUT DRUGGERY.

Miss Haynes, a Boston school teacher, should have a monument raised to her memory by the boys and girls of the world. She has devised a way of "teaching spelling without druggery." Her pupils range from five to six years and she has made each one of them to represent a letter of the alphabet, and the class spends its time in playing a game called "putting the letters together." The consonants are all cousins, and the vowels are all long brothers or short brothers, representing the different pronunciations of the letters. The child who represents double-o wears a green coat because of the pigeons that coo in the green trees. There is a hint from which the whole game may be constructed.

YE WAISTLESS GOWN.

It is Nothing as Frightful as it Sounds.

A waistless evening gown does not sound attractive, but it is the most attractive of modes in reality, and when cut and draped by a master hand gives an air of symmetry to the figure which is superior to that given by any other fashion. When cut by a master hand there is nothing bulky, and the frock gives height and dignity to the small figure and an added grace to the tall woman.

These new modes require very careful cosetting to preserve their lines, and when attention is paid to detail they are very much on the lines of the ancient classic figure without the same accentuation of hips.

This waistless frock is very good for dancing in, as there is no pressure anywhere, and it is not as heating as a gown that is gathered in at the waist. They really amount to skirts cut high, the bodice being of tulle.

Two Essentials.

The essential things which distinguish one individual from another, which give one man a higher place among his fellows and another a lower, are just two: First of all, perseverance, the ability to keep everlastingly at it; and secondly, imagination or vision, the ability to see beyond the present moment, and to understand that the work at hand reaches beyond the present moment, and so is worth while.—St. Nicholas.

PUZZLE THE MAN.

And Wife Will Hold, Him, Says Author.

Zoe Anderson Norris, editor and magazine writer, who elects to live on the East Side among pushcart people, holds a brief for woman's mystery.

"Woman is almost as great a mystery to herself and to other women as she is to man," she said. "But men are the greater offenders, for they are often brutal in their lack of comprehension. The woman alone in New York has her every motive misinterpreted. Her whole life is misinterpreted. 'What keeps man from understanding woman?'"

"His egoism. He wants her to be a child, below him in intellect, without the same pride, without the same high instincts. He will not understand that she is possessed of these things."

"He will break her heart, then return, perhaps years after, and expect her to forgive all and take him back. He cannot understand that she is a tightly-strung instrument, the strings of which, once broken, can never be mended."

"Very few men comprehend music and poetry. How, then, could they understand women? Women's mental workings are chords composed of many notes, and their emotions and ambitions like poems, which the prose reading man can never decipher."

"But our work and our modern revealing clothes are removing our mystery. Who can remain inscrutable to men when she has on a fashionable gown, which advertises her every physical asset? No one can for long. We women should not reveal. We should shroud and cover body, soul and mind. For man loves only to be fooled."

"The really wise woman is she who remains a puzzle. She must learn to defend herself against man's blunders, but she must cling to her mystery as the Turkish woman clings to her veils."

"It takes a clever woman to live a score of years with a husband and keep him mystified. But most successful marriages are due to women's cleverness."

"Let women cultivate the mystery. Mystery breeds interest; interest breeds love—and you know what makes the world go round."—New York Evening Mail.

Like salt codfish that the fish boiled drained and shredded and mixed with the pulp, scraped from a hot baked potato. The fish and potato mixture should be seasoned with sweet cream, butter and pepper, and should be filled into the shell. Return the shell to the oven until the filling is reheated.

Any nut meats spread over a buttered baking tin, covered with melted butter, sprinkled with salt, and roasted in the oven until they are brown are delicious. The buttered nuts, which are hard to extract from their ironclad shell, but which are the richest of all the nuts, are especially tasty prepared in this way.

NO MALTESE CATS IN MALTA.

James Oliver Laing, American consul at Malta, informs the state department that many Americans have asked him to give names of breeders of pure blood Maltese terriers and cats. He says there are a few so-called Maltese terriers in Malta and they are not of pure blood. The puppies which the street hawkers offer for sale to tourists are more or less mongrel, with a strain of the old breed. Maltese cats do not exist in Malta, at least, not one of the color called Maltese in the United States has been seen there.

is Fatal Catarrh In Your Family?

It Runs Hand-in-Hand With Bronchitis, Weak Throat, Pneumonia, Consumption.

Doctors state that 95 per cent. of the Canadian people suffer from Catarrh. Few escape it. You can easily recognize it from the bad taste in the mouth and from lack of appetite in the morning. In bad cases the mucous drops from the throat into the stomach and causes nausea. The throat fills with phlegm, the patient sneezes and coughs continually, not infrequently there is last stage chilliness and aching in the limbs."

Doctors recommend Catarrhoxone; it is nature's own cure. It drives out the germs, heals sore spots, cleans away every vestige of Catarrhal taint.

You send the soothing vapors of the pine woods, the richest balsams and healing essences, right to the cause of your cold by inhaling Catarrhoxone. Little drops of wonderful curative power are distributed through the whole breathing apparatus by the air you breathe. Like a miracle, that's how Catarrhoxone cures bronchitis, catarrh, colds, and irritable throat. You simply breathe its healing fumes, and every trace of disease flies as before fire."

So safe, infants can use it; so sure to relieve, doctors prescribe it; so beneficial in preventing winter ills that no person can afford to do without Catarrhoxone. Used in thousands of cases without failure. Complete outfit $1.00; lasts three months, and is guaranteed to cure; smaller size 50c, all dealers or the Catarrhoxone Co., Buffalo, N. The Child's Wish.

Do you remember my sweet absent son, How in the soft June days, forever done, You loved the heavens so warm and clear and high?

And when I lifted you, soft came your cry, "Put me away up, away up in the blue sky."

I laughed and said I could not; set you down, Your gray eyes wonder-filled beneath that crown Of bright hair gladdening me as you raced by.

Another Father now, more strong than I, Has borne you, voiceless, to your dear, blue sky.

One Calls for Two.

Frederic Townsend Martin said of a restaurant notorious for its high prices and small portions: "After a meal there you feel like Count Tete de Veau."

"Tete de Veau was dining with a parsimonious aristocrat of the Faubourg Saint Germain. The dinner was served on gold plates, and on Sevres tureens than gold plate, but the portions?"

"The host, at the dinner's end, said hospitably to Tete de Veau: "And when, my dear Count, may I have the pleasure of having you to dine again?"

"Immediately, sir immediately," was the reply."

MAMMALS THAT FLY.

Won't Thrive in Captivity, So Rarely Seen.

The name flying squirrel is given to many species of little mammals found in different parts of the world, all belonging clearly to the rodent animals of the squirrel tribe, but having scarcely any point of resemblance, except the existence of a membrane which extends the skin from the flanks and performs the functions of a parachute.

The curious flying squirrel of Australia dwells in trees, seeks its food at night and feeds on insects, berries and the eggs of small birds.

It has a fleecy fur of whitish gray tinged with red. Its long bushy tail with prehensile extremity serves as a rudder when it flies from one tree to another and also enables it to cling to the branches while having free use of its feet. It has a ventral pouch for carrying the immature young.

It is almost impossible to study the manners of this nocturnal animal, as we have a limited knowledge of its habits. It passes the entire day in its nest, a hole dug in the top of a tree. Naturalists declare that this squirrel never drinks, in fact, that it never drinks, in fact, that it never descends to the ground. After sunset it can hear its cry, which resembles the twittering of a bird. On a moonlight night a very quiet observer may see the graceful evolutions of the little creature flitting in the air. They spring from the top of a tree and by stretching their four feet extend the folds of the membrane. The strange parachute dangles from the descent and the squirrel lands on a branch without the slightest shock to it as a result of its leap through space.

Observers do not agree on the maximum flight of these animals, but it appears to have been proved that they can fly a distance of from seventy-five to one hundred feet, though some claim for them a much greater distance. It is quite possible, of course, that many of these animals may vary in their leaping capacity.

Like all nocturnal mammals, they do not thrive in captivity, even in their native country, and therefore one rarely sees them in zoological gardens.—Technical World Magazine.

Arithmetical Prodigy.

A remarkable demonstration of mental calculating has been given at a meeting of the Ceylon branch of the Royal Asiatic Society of Colombo by Arumogan, a 16-year-old arithmetical prodigy. Arumogan is a Tamil boy, belonging to a working-class family. He is quite illiterate, and displays but little intelligence outside his faculty for calculation. He has five fingers on each hand, and six toes on each foot. Sir Hugh Clifford, Colonial Secretary for Ceylon, presided at the meeting, and a number of problems in arithmetic were put to the boy through an interpreter. In each case, says the Ceylon Morning Leader, he gave an answer in a few seconds. Among the questions were the following: Add together 5,396,718,256 and 36,298,593. Multiply 45,989 by 804,726. Find the fifth root of 49,435,957. What weight of water is there in a room flooded 2 feet deep, the room being 18 feet 9 inches by 13 feet 4 inches, and a cubic foot of water weighing 62½ pounds. The following problem, put in by a number of the audience, was answered in under three seconds: A Chetty gave as a treat to 173 persons a bushel of rice each; each bushel contained 3,411,272 grains, and the Chetty stipulated that 17 per cent. should be given to the temple. How many grains did the temple get?

"Children," said the teacher, instructing the class in composition, "you should not attempt any flights of fancy; simply be yourselves and write what is in you. Do not imitate any other person's writings or draw inspirations from outside sources." In me there is my stomach, lungs, heart, liver, two apples, one piece of pie, one stick of lemon candy and my dinner." Newark Star.

The Latest Fire Engine.

An interesting new type of automobile fire engine for Paris has just been decided upon by the municipal council. The machine will be of specially light construction, and will carry four men only, but will be fitted with a large tank, containing 400 liters of water. Thus, as the engine arrives on the scene of fire, it can begin pumping water while the firemen are making the necessary connection at the nearest main with a minimum waste of time. The new pattern is a vast improvement on the cumbersome automobile fire engines which the Paris brigade possesses at present, and which in the future will be used only as auxiliaries in exceptionally large fires.

The Ulster delusion is built on the astounding belief that the Irish people, having been put in control of their own affairs, will so abuse the grant of power and rights by aggression on prejudices and consciences of a part of the people as to destroy that for which they have struggled so long.
