I filled my house with flowers for Easter day,
All that the lovellest and sweetest bloom; In every nook some fragrant cluster lay,
Perfume and beauty gracing every room.

The flowers were all for him, my boy, my boy!
I thought he might from Heaven look smiling down,
And gain, mayhap, some little added joy.
Seeing his mother's love in blossoms shown.

The delams a little worn. The modern brass bedistead is surely an ugly object, with its hard, unsympathetic glitter. How much better to have bedsteads of hard wood well designed, or with head and foot paneled and painted.

Surely, taking into consideration the greater attention now paid to matters of cleanliness and sanitation, the old dangers that led to the disuse of wooden beds need scarcely be feared.

was a time when so little false halt was worn. The simpler the knot at the back of the head the more stylish, and this knot is worn low to suit the hats for day-time and high for evenings, being the only covering to the top of the head in most cases, as the evening bonnet is merely a wreath of flowers or a bandeau of jet or steel which fits around the hair instead of covering it as formerly.

FURNISHING THE BEDROOM.

It is well to remember that in times of ill-ness your bedroom is either your prison or your pleasaunce. Cheerfu'ne's and absolute comfort are the requirements hers. early youth he has lived in or near Chicago. Since his marriage, not very many years ago, he has lived in Indianapolis, where he is engaged with Mrs. Sewall in managing an educational institution know as the Girl's Classical School. In appearance he is of medium height and rather slender. His hair and eyes are brown and he wears a wedge-shaped beard. He is a man of high culture and appreciation, of an amiable disposition and possesses a keen sense of humor. As a member of the humbler sex whose one-time glory is now fading in the fierce lustre of the New Woman, Mr. Sewall shows his shirewiness in turning his attention to things of future moment rather than to issues upon which the soorn of the coming femininity has already set the seal of oblivion. It may truly be said of him: He is a fit helpmeet for her.
