

The Canadian Banking System

The course of this series of articles has been a long one, and it is now time to bring it to a close. The subject of banking is a vast one, and it is impossible to cover it all in a single series of articles. However, it is hoped that the series has been of some help to the reader in understanding the Canadian banking system.

Again, the fact that the Provincial Governments have not taken any steps to regulate the banking business, and that the Federal Government has not taken any steps to regulate the banking business, is a matter of great concern.

Provincial Governments have power to create such institutions as Loan Boards, and our Western Provinces have established such institutions. However, the fact that the Provincial Governments have not taken any steps to regulate the banking business, and that the Federal Government has not taken any steps to regulate the banking business, is a matter of great concern.

The State of North Dakota recently tried the experiment of State Banks. These banks appeared to flourish; money was plentiful, and the premium, wages high, and top-notch prices were being paid for farm products. However, a reaction has set in, and the State Banks are now closing their doors.

The writer of this article is not an apologist for Canada's Banks, but it should be borne in mind that the conditions of this country have stood the severest test of economic conditions during the last several years, and it is so vital to every interest in Canada, and it is so easy to make accusations and unfounded assertions, and thus shake public confidence.

One characteristic common to all the fish that live near the ocean floor is that they are powerfully armed with fierce-looking long teeth for defence. For as the Prince of Monaco says, "They live on their fighting (prowess)." Another curious feature that has puzzled this investigator is the condition of the eyes of some of the species. "They are very small and rough," he says, "and have a sort of fog over them."

It is, however, how the eyes of the fish are used in the darkness of the deep, where all is intense darkness of the blackest, that is the real mystery.

No, Sah. "The fish that live near the ocean floor are powerfully armed with fierce-looking long teeth for defence. For as the Prince of Monaco says, 'They live on their fighting (prowess).'"

Victim—That's no good to me, on total abstinence, learned that what I want is a book that will tell me how to live without economic pain or suffering, but do that with a minimum of suffering.

His Real Need. "Not long ago Mr. Kipling wrote a story for an American magazine. The story was about a man who was a victim of economic pain and suffering. The man was a victim of economic pain and suffering, and he was a victim of economic pain and suffering."

Miller's "Form Ponderance" is a story of a man who was a victim of economic pain and suffering. The man was a victim of economic pain and suffering, and he was a victim of economic pain and suffering.

value. They do not cause any violent disturbances in the stomach, any pain or cramping, but do their work quietly and painlessly, so that the destruction of the worms is imperceptible. Yet they are thorough, and from the first dose there is improvement in the condition of the patient, and a cessation of the various symptoms.

Small Banks Fail Again

The farmers of North Dakota are said to be holding their grain for higher prices, and as a result they are unable to pay their bills. This is a serious situation, and it is one that is likely to lead to the failure of many small banks.

Small banks are in a very difficult position. They are not able to compete with the large banks, and they are not able to attract deposits. This is a serious situation, and it is one that is likely to lead to the failure of many small banks.

Oral Hygiene Lay Education Series

"YOUR TEETH" DISEASES OF CHILDREN. By Rea Proctor McGee, M.D., D.D.S., Editor, Oral Hygiene. The highest death-rate is between the ages of two and six years of age. At two years the eruption of the temporary teeth is just being completed, and at six years the eruption of the permanent teeth is just beginning.

The temporary teeth are of greater importance to the child than the permanent teeth to the adult, because the child must not only be nourished to keep up the ordinary life processes, but it must have nourishment for the growth of its body.

The temporary teeth decay much more rapidly than the permanent teeth because their structure is not so dense and in addition the pulp is more quickly exposed because it is larger in proportion to the size of the tooth. Nearly all dentists agree that the treatment of a temporary tooth with an exposed pulp is hopeless.

Trade With West Indies

As a result of the reciprocity treaty with the West Indies, manufacturers' agents there are endeavoring to stimulate trade with Canada, and have written the Vancouver Board of Trade, explaining the methods of business in the West Indies, and are making an effort to have the British Columbia manufacturers extend their operations to that country.
