Higinbitham having been left over at London while reporting to the officer in command, Lieut. Arm-strong replied on behalf of the Com-pany. The Mayor then proposed three cheers for the Quéen, and three for the Guebph Rifles, which were given by the thousands on the Square. Lieut. Armstrong then proposed three cheers for the Drill Association, which was heartily responded to by the Rifles and the crowd. Oheers were also given for the Mayor and Corpora-tion, the band, the ladies, the Drill. Association, followed with one more rousing cheers for the Rifles. A very great improvement was ob-servable in the way in which they driked, and their prompt movements, admirable order, and soldierly bear-ing, were the admiration of all. They then marched to Ellis' hotel, where some refreshments were provided. On their way up, and returning, they sang some of their patrictic songs, to the great delight of the citizens. They then marched to the drikt shed, when the Mayor and Bev, Mr. Ball addres-sed them in a few well chosen and complimentary remarks, Capt. High-botham also spoke a few words and gentlemanly conduct of the men while on duty. After three cheers were given for the Mayor, the captain and the press, the men were dismissed. On the succeeding Friday eyening the public reception was given at the drill shed, was on a scale surpassing any celebration ever given in Guebph, and was completely covered with flags, banners, and appropriate de-vices. In the centre was a beautiful star of bayonets, besides other in-signia of war. The top of the com-mittee room to the right was adorned with stacks of rifles, and in the cen-tre was a very pretty royal crown. The other committee room was also draped in flags. Here the Union brass band was placed which, at intervals during the evening, enlivened the pro-ceedings by giving some of their choicest pieces of music. Immediately opposite the main entrance was a scroll with the words, "We welcome you," Several transparencies and mil-itary emblems graced the walls, and the light thrown from scores of lamps gave to the building a splen-did appearance. Shortly after the doors were opened a continuous stream of people poured into the building, which, by half-past seven o'clock, was well filled, over 1200 being present. Shortly before that hour the Rifle Company were marched into the hill, and took their place in front of the platform. The Drill Association mix-ed with the company and their scarlet uniforms-the many colored dresses of the dates mingling with the darker clothing of the gentlemen-presented a scene ever varying and ever pleas-ing and animated, Dr. Ford, who act-ed as unce ever varying and ever pleas-ing the flates in a bisence of the Mayor and Eneign Leitch of the Elora Rifles, Mr. Geo.
