Mr. Wedderburn's Budget.

The hopes of the Government and the fears of the Opposition were fully realized in the speech of Mr. Wedderburn on the Budget. For some years past Mr. Wedderburn's powers have been latent; his position placing him so that no evidence could appear of the very great ability as a political orator that he possesses.

But it would be interesting to know how Mr. Secretary intends to remodel this. The remodelling has to be within and without. How can the Government say, as matters stand, whether they can curtail these expenses or not?

Who is, we might reasonably enquire, responsible for the management of this institution? Is each teacher absolute in his own domain or rather can one teacher by his mere ipse dixit regulate and control all the others?

In reading the history of the illustrious men of past ages, we invariably find that most of them left their respective universities without having attained the great sine qua non, an M.A.B.A. or some other artificial appendage to their names, which was to give them brains and qualify them for a study of the world around them.

Take an example in point. Professor Creed in his own supercilious way informs a young student teacher, either male or female, that he cannot classify him or her, as the case may be.

And it is extraordinary how Mr. Blair can trade in dead stock. A comparison of figures and facts must prove beyond doubt that Mr. Blair, with all his ability, has the worst of it; that there has not been a shrinkage as charged by Mr. Blair, or rather a shrinkage without an increased burthen.

But the Opposition plummet has reached the bottom. The Secretary too in his matchless way made an open book of the Provincial affairs. All this reveal to us a sound state of affairs, but a little depletion in consequence of the general depression of trade.

Russian Autocracy in our Normal School. The Telegraph says that: Messrs. Gauer, Cummings and Skinner, who are the party who wish to settle on the Tobique, have had interviews with the Attorney-General and Surveyor-General who will do all they can to facilitate the settlement.

Our Fredericton people have received the National Policy with much grace. "Fredericton Star." "We should like to know whether the 'Fredericton people' will be as ready to say grace after the National Policy dinner, as before."

These young ladies and gentlemen come to the Training School—pass an examination,—are admitted, and make betimes more than an average in the different branches to which they have been required to apply themselves.

Is it not an extraordinary fact, (by the way) that this Mr. Creed has so admirably succeeded to make himself obnoxious and disagreeable to all the student teachers that have attended the Training School since his advent.

transmitted to the uttermost limits New Brunswick, by those whose lot it is to be subject to his strange humor and absolute control.

The Debate.

We are sorry that we have not been enabled to give a brief at least of Mr. Blair's very elaborate speech of yesterday evening. We may just state, however, that the burthen of his address was a set of complicated charges against the Government.

After Mr. Blair took his seat the Attorney-General arose. He was glad that the discussion had been of a searching nature, he said, for they had nothing to fear. He very justly pointed out the unreasonableness of Mr. Blair's charges against the Government in the Chatham Branch matter.

Mr. Fraser spoke at much length and we will have the rest of his speech in our next.

Setting the Tobique.

The Telegraph says that: Messrs. Gauer, Cummings and Skinner, who are the party who wish to settle on the Tobique, have had interviews with the Attorney-General and Surveyor-General who will do all they can to facilitate the settlement.

This is what we want to hear of, we wish to read of our Government doing something of practical utility. What say some of our destitute people from Fredericton, who can't make money enough to buy tobacco? Let them too see if they can't make a home for themselves in our forest wilds.

Mr. Wedderburn as a speaker has quite taken the House by surprise. It was little thought that the quiet Speaker of the past four years would take the foremost place among Parliamentarians; would develop such a keen and wide knowledge of the countries, finances, such glowing oratorical powers, and such scathing sarcasm.

The proof of the pudding will be in the eating. If it is bad they will say no grace. We have been obliged to hold over till next issue some editorial, local and other notes, which shall appear in our next.
