The Famous Bootles' Baby.

The New York Times thus describes the story of "Bootles' Baby," the Madison on Wednesday evening: "A baby is born to a girl, and this girl's husband, an arredously contemptible officer in an English regiment, refuses, for utterly selfish and base tensons, to acknowledge her amount of the barracks of the regiment and leaves it to its father oare. But it so happens that the waif is laid upon the bed of Captain Algernon Ferrers (Mr. Chas. Stevenson), Algernon Ferrers (Mr. Chas. Stevenson), Algernon Ferrers (Mr. Chas.
