An Exeter Man Who Expresses His Opinions Freely in the Local Newspaper.

Exeter. Nov. 18.-(Special).-Lorne Cann, a laundry man of this town, has sent a letter to the Advocate stating that Dodd's Kidney Pills have changed him from a sickly, delicate, run-down man to a strong, hearty and robust one.

Many who have died of consumption dated their troubles from exposure, followed by a cold which settled on their lungs, and in a short time they were beyond the skill of the best physician. Had they used Bickle's Anti-Consumption syrup, before it was too late, their lives would have been spared. This medicine has no equal for curing coughs, colds and all affections of the throat and lungs.

Mr. Andrew Morden responded briefly, expressing his pleasure at seeing his children and their families so fully represented among his guests, and also thanking his neighbors and other friends for honoring himself and wished long life and happiness to all. The health of the bride was proposed by her oldest son-in-low, H. F. Gardiner, who recalled his first visit to the home of their hosts, on which occasion he was more impressed with the excellence of his future mother-in-law's black current tarts might some time want one of her little daughters for his wife. He felt highly honored to be connected even by marriage with so old a Canadian family, for though his own father had lived in Canada since 1827, and his mother was born in Brockville in 1822 he realized that he was a parvenu Canadian in comparison with the Mordens. Looking over the records in the family Bible and other memoranda, he had discovered that his fatherin-law, Andrew Banghart Morden, the of the nine children of Ralph and Margaret Morden, and the only one surviving, was born in London town-Dec. 20, 1823. His father, Rev. Ralph Morden, was born in the township of West Flamboro, near the present town of Dundas, Jan. 3, 1797, and died in London, June 7, 1873. His mother, Margaret Banghart, was born on Oct. 27, 1802. They took up land on the 5th concession of London township, and on that farm all their children and all of Andrew Morden's children were born. An obituary notice of Ralph Morden, written by the late Rev. Thomas Webster, of Newbury, says that he "went to London at the commencement of the settlement of that township, and endured much hardship and severe privations, as did nearly all the early settlers, but he manfully struggled with the difficulties of the position, and lived to see the wilderness become a fruitful field. He united with the Methodist Episcopal Church in 1820, and continued a faithful Christian until the end of his days. In 1843 he was licensed to officiate as a local preacher. He was a strong temperance man, one of the first 'teetotalers' in London,"His widow died in 1891, aged 89 years. Ralph Morden claimed to be the first white child born in Dundas. He

Although he was a Quaker, and therefore a noncombatant, his preference for the British government and the assistance which he afforded to some British refugees making their escape to Canada caused him to lose his life, whereupon his widow took the first opportunity to remove to a counwhere she and her children could be secure under the protection of the British crown.
