BEAUTIFUL FUR DISPLAY

Something About the Extensive Stock of Spittal, Sabine & Co.

Visitors to the Western Fair who have seized the opportunity to make winter purchases, have been greatly impressed and delighted by the beautiful stock of furs and skins displayed by the well-known firm of Spittal, Sabine & Co., whose warehouses are on the north side of Dundas street, between Richmond street and the market lane. It is doubtful whether a more extensive or beautiful collection of manufactured fur goods and uncut skins has ever been exhibited before in the west. It is, indeed, something that no visitor to London can well afford to miss, even whether he be inclined to purchase or not. The assortment is so varied and the material so rich, in both skins and manufactured sight. Every one of the fur-bearing animals which have been made to contribute to the pleasure and comfort of mankind, is represented in this arge and well-displayed stock. The advantage of being able to inat once apparent. The intending purchaser can, after having selected variety which pleases him best, order it cut to his measure and made into any style of garment his fancy may dictate. There is such a wide fur garments, that such an arrangement is a real boon.

Messrs. Spittal, Sabine & Co., it must be understood, do not confine their business to uncut skins, but carry an extensive stock of manufactured fur garments, designed along the line; of the latest London and New ork fashions.

Recently the firm adopted a novel form of advertising by means of kites. A banner, bearing the firm's name, is, by means of vari-colored kites, sent up to a great altitude, from where it can

WESTERN FAIR POULTRY OF VERY HIGH QUALITY

Exhibit Is the Best They Have Yet Seen.

The departments of the Western Fair this year are all far in advance of those of any previous year. This is particularly true of the poultry department, which is the center of attrac-tion not only to chicken fanciers, but but the irate citizen could not see it tion not only to chicken fanciers, but to the general public as well. The show is particularly fine this year, all classes of fowl being excellently well represented, and many of the most expert fanciers in Canada showing. A continued stream of visitors has swarmed the poultry shed the last few Experts Declare This Year's days, and comments upon the fine quality of the birds shown are heard on all sides. An amusing story is told at the grounds about the effect which the poultry show is having on some of the residents in the neighborhood of the park. A citizen who lives near there has complained to the directors of the crowing of the roosters, which, he says, disturbs his slumbers. The director with whom the complaint was lodged assured him that the Western Fair had. no patent method of preventing roosthat way. He said that something would have to be done, as he could not sleep. He threatened to get up a petition to have the nuisance abated. It is a moot question now with the directors whether it would be better to conciliate the gentleman with a pass or post up notices stating that crowing by roosters is strictly prohibited.

Agreement.

Must Be Maintained.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Sept. 17.-President Gompers, of the American Federation of Labor, in a statement issued today, takes a hopeful view of the strike situation. The statement follows:
"At this time it is impossible to say exactly when the strike will terminate, but after careful inquiry into the situation at the mines I am convinced that the struggle will end by agreement. The wage-earners and the general public are generously contribut-ing to the aid of the miners. It is essential that this aid be extended and

"If the manhood of the miners is to be maintained, they must at least have bread for their wives and little ones, as well as for themselves. The de-clared attitude of the president of the anthracite railroads has not apparently changed. Despite this fact, I am fully convinced that the strike will end through agreement, with improved conditions for the miners, and the union maintained. (Signed), Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor."

Smoothly-Bijou Co. at The London.

"Le Voyage en Suisse," the fair week attraction at the Grand Oepra House, was given a much better and smoother presentation last night than at the opening performance. The orchestra become more familiar with the musical accompaniment, and as a consequence the members of the company were able to de their work to much better advantage. The poculiar musical requirements and the elaborate staging excuse a few hitches the first night, but there was no complaint on either score last night, and the show is now well worth seeing. It should prove a profitable fair week attrac-tion. The regular Wednesday and Saturday matinees are being given. THE BIJOU COMEDY COMPANY AT

Letters to the Editor.

A CORRECTION.

To the Editor of The Advertiser; Will you kindly allow me space to correct a statement made in yesterday's Advertiser to the effect that on Sunday evening last I issued a challenge to the atheists of the city to public debate on the question of the existence of God? My remarks have been misunderstood. I simply challenged successful contradiction of the statement that every professed atheist has at some time in his life, and under some conditions, experienced an unshadowed and irrepressible conviction that there is a God. Yours, etc., W. G. HOWSON.

Meanwhile the Manhood of the Miners Rev. G. J. Bond to Edit The Guardian -Mission Representatives.

> Winnipeg, Sept. 16.—The Methodist General Conference disposed of a large amount of business today, the principal item being the election of chief officers for next term. An outstanding feature was the re-election by a large majority on the first ballot of Rev. Dr. man as general superintendent for the next eight years, after having occupied the post of head of the Methodist Church in Canada ever since the union, nineteen years ago. The honor thus paid to this veteran and popular presiding officer was a source of gratification to the entire conference.

Another important election was that of Rev. George J. Bond, of Halifax, as editor of The Christian Guardian, in succession to Rev. Dr. Courtice, whose health is unfortunately far from vigorous. Mr. Bond has been for the past eight years editor of The Wesleyan, the Methodist paper at Halifax, where he has displayed literary talent of a high order. Mr. Bond is a brother of Sir Robert Bond, premier of New-

ANOTHER JEWELRY STORE

Mr. Charles R. Sumner Opens Up a Place of Business at 380 Richmond Street.

Mr. Charles R. Sumner, a well-known jeweler, who has been connected for nearly fifteen years with Mr. Thomas Gillean, the Richmond street jewele:, has opened up a business stand for himself at 380 Richmond street, opposite the Masonic Temple. When a store of this kind is opened it must be stocked with a complete line of new goods. Nothing can be placed in stock without passing the scrutiny of the owner, as it is his desire to place before the public everything that is new and fresh. Mr. Sumner has an acquaintance with every branch of the business. From an experience of 21 years his skill should be relied upon, as he brings into his own business a practical knowledge of every important line of the jewelry business. repair department will be under the complete supervision of the proprietor. He was called, explained Mr. Meredith, on behalf of the female pris-oner, Mrs. Mayo. Dr. Graham, on being sworn, said that he had been practicing for 33 years, the first 18 years being at Newbury. He was for years reeve of the village, and as such member of the county council. 1887 he removed to London and has since practiced here.

At the time Mrs. Mayo came to his office in October last, witness said he was suffering from diabetes, having lost over 130 pounds of flesh in a short time, 80 pounds of it being lost in three weeks. Mrs. Mayo, then Miss Kilbourne, came to him and asked him to perform an operation, but he refused. Witness swore positively that he had committed no unlawful operation upon Miss Kilbourne. She engaged witness to attend her during her illness, and he, wishing to make sure of his pay, asked her to sign a note for $25, which he judged would cover the extent of his bill of $6 for confinement and $1 for each visit. Should the bill be less than $25, he would only take the amount of the bill: should it be more than $25, Miss Kilbourne would pay the additional amount. This Miss Kilbourne assented to as a reasonable arrange-Dr. Graham described his subsequent visits to Miss Kilbourne's bome, the calling in of other physicians, and Dr. Graham said that he had secured a judgment against Mr. and Mrs. Clark on a bill for medical attendance. He refused to answer a question as to the nature of the trouble for which treated them, as he claimed it would be a breach of professional ethics. Judge Lount excused him from answering the questions. This closed the

Mr. Clute cross-examined Dr. Graham closely, but failed to elicit any startling statements from him.

THE DEFENSE CLOSED. The next witness was Wm. Saunders, son of the proprietor of the blacksmith shop which adjoins the lane south of Dr. Graham's office. He swore that the lower part of the doctor's office window was covered with a curtain, while there was a fence in front of the window, which prevented those passing in the lane from seeing into the office.

To Mr. Clute the witness said he had never tried to look into the window at night, and could not say whether a view of the office could be obtained under the circumstances. "That is the case for the defense, your lordship." said Mr. Meredith.

Mrs. Mayo, in relation to Dr. Graham "I have no further evidence to offer," said Mr. McEvoy, representing Dr. Graham "I have no evidence to offer in reply," said Mr. Clute. Counsel for the prisoners again should be withdrawn from the jury.

Mr. Meredith, on behalf of Miss Mayo, began his address to the jury shortly before 11:30. He opened by ferring to the course pursued by the crown prosecutor as one fair to both the prisoners. He took issue with Mr. Clute's statement that the British method of choosing a jury was the most perfect on earth. Mr. Meredith said he considered the British system as very much equivalent to throwing dice for a jury. He preferred the United States system, where the jurymen may be asked if they have formed any opinion as to the case in hand. He referred to the serious nature of the crime charged against the prisoners, and asked if the jury were willing to send the prisoners to the gallows on the testimony offered. There were only the two alternatives for the prisoners. They must be pronounced not guilty by the jury and so go free, or they must be sentenced to should the jury pronounce them guilty. Mr. Meredith then referred to the evidence of Mr. and Mrs. Clark and dwelt on the damaging admissions made by them and their reluctance to answer the questions asked of them. He characterized Mrs. Clark's evidence as that of an accomplice and an abandoned woman. He contrasted the evidence for the crown with that of the defense. Dr. Graham, a respectable professional man, enters the box and gives his evidence clearly and in a straightforward manner, denying all

The defense was surprisingly short, only two witnesses being called. One was Dr. called upon in the endeavor to have a Graham, the male prisoner, who took crime committed. There was only her testimony to support the charge, and even that testimony could not, by the rules of evidence, be used against Dr. the performance of an operation upon her. The only other witness was a "not guilty" in the case of Dr. Gra-

ADDRESS FOR THE CROWN.

Mr. Clute opened his address on behalf of the crown at 12:20. Life, he said, is the gift of God, and may not be taken without just cause. The jury in such a case as this is to determine whether the facts of the case, as presented by the crown, are consistent with the innocence or guilt of the persons charged. The jury, in rendering a verdict, are not responsible for the results to the persons charged. They themselves are responsible for those results. Mr. Clute reminded the jurors that they were performing the most solemn duty which British citizens are called upon to perform, and he asked them to approach it in the proper spir-it. Mr. Clute then reviewed the evidence offered by the crown, and marshaled the important points. In con-clusion he spoke of the sanctity of intant life, and the growing disregard of it. It rested with the law to stop the spread of this evil. He asked for a verdict in accord with the facts set forth by the crown. Lount announced that he would charge the jurors at 2 p.m., on the reopening of the court, An ad-

MCARTHUR TRIAL THURSDAY. The trial of John McArth charge of manslaughter was set for Thursday morning, to allow the civil suit of People's Loan Company vs. Stanley to be disposed of at the con-clusion of the Graham-Kilbourne case.

JUDGE LOUNT'S CHARGE. Judge Lount commenced his charge to the jury immediately upon the opening of the afternoon session of the assizes. He first reviewed the law in the case and pointed out what constituted the crime charged against the prisoners. If Dr. Graham committed the operation, as alleged by the crown, then he is guilty of the crime charged. If Mrs. Mayo was a consenting party. then she is equally guilty. His lord-ship charged the jury to weigh the evidence carefully, and to give the prisoners the benefit of any doubt which might exist in their minds, for if the prisoners were found guilty the only course open to the judge would be to sentence them to death. He himself had no power to change the sentence, though the executive authorities of the nation might see fit to do Judge Lount said he deemed it proper to speak first of the case of Dr. Graham. If the jury found Dr. Graham not guilty, then they must of necessity find the same verdict in the case of Mrs. Mayo. If the case against Dr. Graham fell through, then the whole case must fall through, for the female prisoner could not be guilty if the male prisoner is innocent. All the evidence given by Mrs. Clark as to the statements made to her by

were not in the least to be considered as evidence against Dr. Graham. No prisoner can be convicted unless upon the evidence of a sworn witness. The only way in which Mrs. Mayo's state ments could be used against Dr. Graham would be by putting her in the box and submitting her to examination in chief and cross-examination. The statements reflecting upon lar. possible fabrication. Mrs. Mayo may not have been telling the truth in the statements repeated by Mrs. Clark as having been made to her by Mrs. Mayo. Then, Mrs. Clark may have misunderstood the statements made to her by Mrs. Mayo, or again, Mrs. Clark may from some motive be telling an
