Right Hon. Joseph Chamberlain Dies Celebrated English Statesman Succumbs to Paralytic Stroke Aged 78

London, July 3.—Right Hon. Joseph Chamberlain's death occurred at 10.30 last night at his London residence. His wife and son Austen Chamberlain were at his bedside. His last public appearance was at the garden party on the grounds of his Birmingham home, May 6th when he received several hundred constituents. He then appeared very feeble and emaciated but his death came as a surprise. He was 78 and was active in Parliamentary life from 1876 till 1896 when he suffered a paralytic stroke, which disabled him. Birmingham constituents nevertheless continued to return him at each general election, although he only once again appeared in the House of Commons. The Right Hon. Joseph Chamberlain was born in 1836, and has been a conspicuous figure in English politics for more than a quarter of a century. He was three times mayor of Birmingham, then entered the House of Commons in 1876, and was the parliamentary colleague of John Bright. In 1880 Gladstone made him president of the Board of Trade, and this position gave him a seat in Gladstone's cabinet. Owing to the character of the Home Rule Bill as formulated by Mr. Gladstone, he retired from the Cabinet, in 1886. On June 7, 1886, the Home Rule bill was defeated. From 1887 to 1892, he co-operated with the Conservative government under Lord Salisbury. In 1887, he was one of the plenipotentiaries to the United States regarding the Canadian fisheries. In 1888 he married a daughter of William C. Edwicks, and in 1895, when the Marquis of Salisbury was returned to power for the third time he became the Colonial Secretary in the Cabinet. He took a large part in the affairs in South Africa, and was responsible for the confederation of the Australian colonies in 1900. Other leading acts of his are the Bankruptcy Act of 1883 and the Workmen's Compensation Act of 1897, and the Birmingham University which was largely successful through his efforts. He is the author of Municipal Institutions in America and England and a comparison of Birmingham and Boston in the Forum of 1892.

INSTRUCTIONS IN BEE KEEPING TO BE GIVEN

Next in doing a thing yourself, the best way to learn is to see it done. It is one thing to sit in some confectionery room and hear a man tell how he manages his bees; it is far better to go with him into the apiary and have him show you. That is what you will have a chance to do at the apiary of Mr. Amos Eby, Floradale, Woolwich township, 1 mile west of Floradale, July 10th, 1914, at 1.30 p.m. sharp. A qualified apiary instructor, sent by the Ontario Department of Agriculture, will show how to examine hives for disease, and will actually put a colony through the treatment for cure. Other manipulations will be shown, such as finding the queen, removing bees from supers, operating to prevent swarming, etc., etc. Prominent local beekeepers will be asked to take part and assist in the discussion of practical questions. These apiary demonstrations are being held all over Ontario and it will be well worth your while to attend one. Ladies are especially invited, and all are advised to bring bee veils so they can come right out into the apiary with comfort.
