No tation, while every other university in rovince has a denomination at its There can be no doubt about the trangth of denominational feeling in this ountry. Let the prestige of the church only be at stake and the sympathy of its ents is at once enlisted. It is a fine thing for a religious body to have a university, especially if the university be one to it credit; and in order to make hundred dollars or two now then without a murmur. No hundred and then without a murmur. No nuch feeling can be aroused on behalf of Toronte university. It has subsisted so far en an endowment furnished by the state and now that its income is known to be and now that its income is known to be insufficient it has no special constituency to which to appeal-except its own alumni. Unfortunately their interest in it is by the operation of certain causes rapidly ned after they leave its halls and go out into active life. Nothing is ever done by the senate to keep the institution and its needs before them. Until very recently was known only to the few initiated one hat the usefulness of the university and of iversity college was greatly impaired for want of funds. The senate holds eighteen to twenty-four meetings a year, and yet the raduates know scarcely anything of what s transacted at them. The business is so nanaged that members of senate residing out of Toronto can attend the meeting only at needlessly great personal sacrifice. But for the annual election of sontatives of convocation the interest would lie out altogether, and there are indications that in spite of these temporary workings it is becoming less from year to

What is the remedy ? Clearly one is to make the graduates more thoroughly conversant with the workings of the institution, in order that they may not be in a measure, as they are now, compelled to forget all about it amidst the pressure of proessional cares. Arrange the business at senate meetings in such a way, and hold the meetings at such times as will enable outside members to attend, and then outside graduates will vote in the election of entatives. Then throw open the meetings to the press and let the public, as well as the graduates, know all about the itution. Until this is done the indiffernce cannot be dispelled.
