COUNTY constables in parts of Ontario are after a change in the schedule of fees. They are paid now for the work they do in the county, but assert that the entire system of policing the counties should be changed. The present tariff of fees was formulated 40 years ago, and few changes have since been made. If the county council should sanction a change, the decision would rest with the Provincial Government. Farmers, merchants and others can be county constables, and while under the jurisdiction of the county, can exercise duties in other circles. The county constables assert that they are at the beck and call of everyone, and should be paid higher fees to accord with the higher cost of living.
