Who has not felt the need of a book in which to store away notes of interest concerning one's vacation? Can you not imagine what pleasure would be yours in years to come when turning the leaves of such a pretty souvenir as the Vacation Book shown in the engraving? In size the book measures 6 by 8 $\frac{1}{2}$ inches. It is neatly made of tinted cardboard, beautifully printed in colors, and contains appropriate headings under which both yourself and your friends are expected to record whatever incidents of the trip have given you pleasure and helped to make your vacation such a jolly one. Among the subjects suggested may be mentioned the following: "Arrival and First Impressions," "Walks and Drives," "The Guests," "Social Events," "Entertainments," "Autographs of New Friends and Acquaintances." Besides these there are several pages given up to a Diary, which may be utilized for jotting down items of interest not included under the preceding subjects. The last page is headed "Home, Sweet Home," giving date of departure and return, as well as space for recording the gain or loss in that all-important summer vacation item,—one's weight.
