

Poetry.

LOVE, HOPE AND PATIENCE.

Oh! ward childhood wouldst thou hold firm rule,
And smite in the light of happy faces.

GOLDEN GROVE, AND BISHOP JEREMY TAYLOR'S PREACHING.

The days spent in the neighbourhood of Golden Grove, were among the happiest in the life of Taylor.

He never grows weary of recording the noble usages and great endearments bestowed on him by his generous patron, and his amiable wife.

It was at Golden Grove that the genius of Taylor expanded into its full beauty and flower; under that fostering shade, he composed his Holy Living and Dying, a divine pastoral, in which the solemnities of piety and wisdom, like the painter's tomb in Arcadia, breathe a tender seriousness over all the scenery of fancy, of eloquence, and of learning.

In the same pastoral village, he composed and preached some of those wonderful discourses which have raised him to the side of the greatest masters of sacred eloquence.

Heber advances a very ingenious theory to account for his lofty style of argument and rhetoric.

Mr. Warren, the author of "Ten Thousand a Year," "Diary of a Physician," and last though by no means least memorable, the dramatic narrative "Now and Then," in the course of a lecture delivered in the Hall of the Law Society, in Chancery-lane, on Friday last, "On the Social and Professional Duties of Attorneys and Solicitors," recounted the following beautiful incident:—"A short time ago," said Mr. Warren "a gentleman of large fortune, a man, in fact, worth his £40,000, was indignant with his only child, a daughter, for marrying against his wishes. He quarrelled with her—he disinherited her—he left to her whole property of £40,000 to his attorney, and to two other gentlemen, all of whom were residing in Yorkshire. What did the attorney do? He went to his two co-legats, got them to sign their respective claims over to himself, and then made over every sixpence of the £40,000 to the daughter and her children!—When I mentioned this circumstance, this very morning, to a friend of mine, one of the most distinguished men at the bar, he exclaimed, 'God bless that man!'"

The above gratifying circumstance is literally true.—The gentleman of fortune was a manufacturer in a town celebrated for its linen manufactures within the district of the circulation of this paper, and the disinterested attorney is one of the brightest ornaments of his profession in the West Riding of Yorkshire, enjoying the fruits of an ample fortune realised by his own industry and talents. We could mention his name, but we feel that his honourable nature would shrink from the publicity thus given to a circumstance which is comparatively unknown, except to a few of his own immediate friends.—Leeds Intelligencer.

A SENSIBLE COOK.
At a recent meeting of one of the clubs at Paris, a violent democratic declaimed, amidst the applause of his hearers, against the evils of property and the injustice of Landlords, and urged confiscation. He was succeeded by a cook, who manfully stated his disinclination to concur in the recommendation of the orator. He endeavoured to show that the sweeping charge against landlords was unjust, that there were many good as well as bad, and that it would be unfair to include all in one condemnation. "But let us," he added, "take another view of the case. 'If you confiscate their property and give it to others, what advantage would result? I, for example, am cook to a gentleman, who until the late revolution held the rank peal the gates of Golden Grove would be always open. The king's adherents composed the educated classes of the country. Nor had the horrors of civil war beclouded the taste for literary or sylvan pleasures.—Charles loved to chase down the sun in the verdant glades of Woodstock, or to turn over the pages of splendid Virgils in college libraries. Shakspeare and Ariosto were the companions of his tent; and his saddest hours borrowed a light from the charms of Ariel, or the loves of Angelica. His followers would imitate his example.

Nor was Taylor likely to be ignorant of the character of those gay and accomplished gentlemen, whom the troubles of the time often sent, as I believe, to mingle with the humbler worshippers in the church of Llanvihangel Aberbythyc, or the chapel of Golden Grove. Viewed under that aspect, his manner of preaching was adapted to the place and season. We can, then, comprehend the beautiful propriety of those appeals to the noblest emotions of the soul, and those thrilling summonses to bravery, to purity and to faith. Who shall say that no generous, but indolent cavalier felt his heart burn within him, as that successor of the Apostles testified by the Scriptures, that Jesus was the Christ, and reasoned of temperance and judgment to come. I can remember that from the lonely church-door, in that sequestered valley, many youthful spirits returned with a holier devotion, to suffer or to die for their country and their religion. Some of the lustre of mature years may have been kindled by the fire of Taylor's lip. It is observed, by Clarendon, of Lord Northampton, who fell on Hopton Heath, that he was not well known till his evening; and that, as the tumult of those distractions gathered upon his ear, he seemed as if he had been awakened out of a lethargy. The voice of Taylor may have been a mighty instrument in rousing gallant minds from a deadlier slumber, and illuminating their evening with a brighter radiance.

But even for the simplest member of his flock, there is in every sermon something to interest the curiosity, to comfort the sorrow, and to build up the faith. He adopted, in the teaching of the pulpit, a system which is now deemed, for the most part, unworthy of pastoral industry or imitation. He endeavoured to obtain the attention of his auditors by enlisting their sympathies, and exciting their wonder. He knew that men are certainly deaf, when they are yawning.

If his discourses be inspected, they will be found to be exceedingly rich in all that engaging variety, which, in a different shape, made Montaigne the most agreeable of essayists, and Livy the most fascinating of historians. Sometimes he has a tale of a Persian king secluded himself in his magnificent metropolis during the winter, and returning to his palace at Susa in the summer, encircled by the servants of a hundred and twenty provinces, and glittering amidst all the princes of Asia. Does he seek to impress upon his hearers the incapacity of power in the present life to mould the future? He borrows the glass of the Greek satirist, and exhibits kings and warriors in Hades, selling salt fish, and crying muscles; or starts their ears with Philip of Macedon, hammering shoes in a miserable stall. Is the selfishness of man the object of his invective? He travels back to the Roman festival, and shows that while their religious offerings consisted of a little wine, and a handful of gum, "when they feasted themselves, they had many vessels filled with Campanian wine, turtles of Liguria, Sicilian bees, wheat from Egypt, wild boars from Illyrium, and Grecian sheep." When he proclaims the omniscience of God, the breaths of men are transparent to his gaze, and their thoughts are visible as the Chian wines in the purest crystal. Sometimes he sends his moral home upon an arrow out of the quiver of the epigrammatist; thus, he tells those who hurry into the tumult of business, in the hope of escaping from the inconvenience of solitude:—"The steps in the Greek epigram, whose knees were clogged with frozen snow upon the mountains; came down to the brook of the valleys, hoping to thaw their joints with the waters of the stream, but there the frost overtook them and bound them fast in the ice, till the young herdsmen took them in their snare." The government of the tongue is enforced by the example of a Roman gentleman, who "was a good man and full of sweetness and justice and nobleness, but he would read his noseuse verse to all companies,—at the public games and in private feasts, in the baths and in the beds, in public and in private, to sleeping or to waking people.—Every one was afraid of him, and though he was good, yet he was not to be endured." The transformation of the natural into the spiritual man is one of the most wonderful achievements of Divine grace, and this is the illustration that Taylor gives it.—St. Jerome tells us of the custom of the empire; when a tyrant was overcome, they used to break the head of his statue, and upon the same trunk to set the head of the conqueror, and so it passes wholly for the new prince. So it is in the kingdom of Grace. Sin is overcome, and a new heart is put into us, so that we serve under a new head, instantly we have a new name given us, and we are esteemed a new creation."

DISINTERESTED AND UNEXAMPLED GENEROSITY.
Mr. Warren, the author of "Ten Thousand a Year," "Diary of a Physician," and last though by no means least memorable, the dramatic narrative "Now and Then," in the course of a lecture delivered in the Hall of the Law Society, in Chancery-lane, on Friday last, "On the Social and Professional Duties of Attorneys and Solicitors," recounted the following beautiful incident:—"A short time ago," said Mr. Warren "a gentleman of large fortune, a man, in fact, worth his £40,000, was indignant with his only child, a daughter, for marrying against his wishes. He quarrelled with her—he disinherited her—he left to her whole property of £40,000 to his attorney, and to two other gentlemen, all of whom were residing in Yorkshire. What did the attorney do? He went to his two co-legats, got them to sign their respective claims over to himself, and then made over every sixpence of the £40,000 to the daughter and her children!—When I mentioned this circumstance, this very morning, to a friend of mine, one of the most distinguished men at the bar, he exclaimed, 'God bless that man!'"

The above gratifying circumstance is literally true.—The gentleman of fortune was a manufacturer in a town celebrated for its linen manufactures within the district of the circulation of this paper, and the disinterested attorney is one of the brightest ornaments of his profession in the West Riding of Yorkshire, enjoying the fruits of an ample fortune realised by his own industry and talents. We could mention his name, but we feel that his honourable nature would shrink from the publicity thus given to a circumstance which is comparatively unknown, except to a few of his own immediate friends.—Leeds Intelligencer.

A SENSIBLE COOK.
At a recent meeting of one of the clubs at Paris, a violent democratic declaimed, amidst the applause of his hearers, against the evils of property and the injustice of Landlords, and urged confiscation. He was succeeded by a cook, who manfully stated his disinclination to concur in the recommendation of the orator. He endeavoured to show that the sweeping charge against landlords was unjust, that there were many good as well as bad, and that it would be unfair to include all in one condemnation. "But let us," he added, "take another view of the case. 'If you confiscate their property and give it to others, what advantage would result? I, for example, am cook to a gentleman, who until the late revolution held the rank peal the gates of Golden Grove would be always open. The king's adherents composed the educated classes of the country. Nor had the horrors of civil war beclouded the taste for literary or sylvan pleasures.—Charles loved to chase down the sun in the verdant glades of Woodstock, or to turn over the pages of splendid Virgils in college libraries. Shakspeare and Ariosto were the companions of his tent; and his saddest hours borrowed a light from the charms of Ariel, or the loves of Angelica. His followers would imitate his example.

Nor was Taylor likely to be ignorant of the character of those gay and accomplished gentlemen, whom the troubles of the time often sent, as I believe, to mingle with the humbler worshippers in the church of Llanvihangel Aberbythyc, or the chapel of Golden Grove. Viewed under that aspect, his manner of preaching was adapted to the place and season. We can, then, comprehend the beautiful propriety of those appeals to the noblest emotions of the soul, and those thrilling summonses to bravery, to purity and to faith. Who shall say that no generous, but indolent cavalier felt his heart burn within him, as that successor of the Apostles testified by the Scriptures, that Jesus was the Christ, and reasoned of temperance and judgment to come. I can remember that from the lonely church-door, in that sequestered valley, many youthful spirits returned with a holier devotion, to suffer or to die for their country and their religion. Some of the lustre of mature years may have been kindled by the fire of Taylor's lip. It is observed, by Clarendon, of Lord Northampton, who fell on Hopton Heath, that he was not well known till his evening; and that, as the tumult of those distractions gathered upon his ear, he seemed as if he had been awakened out of a lethargy. The voice of Taylor may have been a mighty instrument in rousing gallant minds from a deadlier slumber, and illuminating their evening with a brighter radiance.

But even for the simplest member of his flock, there is in every sermon something to interest the curiosity, to comfort the sorrow, and to build up the faith. He adopted, in the teaching of the pulpit, a system which is now deemed, for the most part, unworthy of pastoral industry or imitation. He endeavoured to obtain the attention of his auditors by enlisting their sympathies, and exciting their wonder. He knew that men are certainly deaf, when they are yawning.

If his discourses be inspected, they will be found to be exceedingly rich in all that engaging variety, which, in a different shape, made Montaigne the most agreeable of essayists, and Livy the most fascinating of historians. Sometimes he has a tale of a Persian king secluded himself in his magnificent metropolis during the winter, and returning to his palace at Susa in the summer, encircled by the servants of a hundred and twenty provinces, and glittering amidst all the princes of Asia. Does he seek to impress upon his hearers the incapacity of power in the present life to mould the future? He borrows the glass of the Greek satirist, and exhibits kings and warriors in Hades, selling salt fish, and crying muscles; or starts their ears with Philip of Macedon, hammering shoes in a miserable stall. Is the selfishness of man the object of his invective? He travels back to the Roman festival, and shows that while their religious offerings consisted of a little wine, and a handful of gum, "when they feasted themselves, they had many vessels filled with Campanian wine, turtles of Liguria, Sicilian bees, wheat from Egypt, wild boars from Illyrium, and Grecian sheep." When he proclaims the omniscience of God, the breaths of men are transparent to his gaze, and their thoughts are visible as the Chian wines in the purest crystal. Sometimes he sends his moral home upon an arrow out of the quiver of the epigrammatist; thus, he tells those who hurry into the tumult of business, in the hope of escaping from the inconvenience of solitude:—"The steps in the Greek epigram, whose knees were clogged with frozen snow upon the mountains; came down to the brook of the valleys, hoping to thaw their joints with the waters of the stream, but there the frost overtook them and bound them fast in the ice, till the young herdsmen took them in their snare." The government of the tongue is enforced by the example of a Roman gentleman, who "was a good man and full of sweetness and justice and nobleness, but he would read his noseuse verse to all companies,—at the public games and in private feasts, in the baths and in the beds, in public and in private, to sleeping or to waking people.—Every one was afraid of him, and though he was good, yet he was not to be endured." The transformation of the natural into the spiritual man is one of the most wonderful achievements of Divine grace, and this is the illustration that Taylor gives it.—St. Jerome tells us of the custom of the empire; when a tyrant was overcome, they used to break the head of his statue, and upon the same trunk to set the head of the conqueror, and so it passes wholly for the new prince. So it is in the kingdom of Grace. Sin is overcome, and a new heart is put into us, so that we serve under a new head, instantly we have a new name given us, and we are esteemed a new creation."

DISINTERESTED AND UNEXAMPLED GENEROSITY.
Mr. Warren, the author of "Ten Thousand a Year," "Diary of a Physician," and last though by no means least memorable, the dramatic narrative "Now and Then," in the course of a lecture delivered in the Hall of the Law Society, in Chancery-lane, on Friday last, "On the Social and Professional Duties of Attorneys and Solicitors," recounted the following beautiful incident:—"A short time ago," said Mr. Warren "a gentleman of large fortune, a man, in fact, worth his £40,000, was indignant with his only child, a daughter, for marrying against his wishes. He quarrelled with her—he disinherited her—he left to her whole property of £40,000 to his attorney, and to two other gentlemen, all of whom were residing in Yorkshire. What did the attorney do? He went to his two co-legats, got them to sign their respective claims over to himself, and then made over every sixpence of the £40,000 to the daughter and her children!—When I mentioned this circumstance, this very morning, to a friend of mine, one of the most distinguished men at the bar, he exclaimed, 'God bless that man!'"

The above gratifying circumstance is literally true.—The gentleman of fortune was a manufacturer in a town celebrated for its linen manufactures within the district of the circulation of this paper, and the disinterested attorney is one of the brightest ornaments of his profession in the West Riding of Yorkshire, enjoying the fruits of an ample fortune realised by his own industry and talents. We could mention his name, but we feel that his honourable nature would shrink from the publicity thus given to a circumstance which is comparatively unknown, except to a few of his own immediate friends.—Leeds Intelligencer.

A SENSIBLE COOK.
At a recent meeting of one of the clubs at Paris, a violent democratic declaimed, amidst the applause of his hearers, against the evils of property and the injustice of Landlords, and urged confiscation. He was succeeded by a cook, who manfully stated his disinclination to concur in the recommendation of the orator. He endeavoured to show that the sweeping charge against landlords was unjust, that there were many good as well as bad, and that it would be unfair to include all in one condemnation. "But let us," he added, "take another view of the case. 'If you confiscate their property and give it to others, what advantage would result? I, for example, am cook to a gentleman, who until the late revolution held the rank peal the gates of Golden Grove would be always open. The king's adherents composed the educated classes of the country. Nor had the horrors of civil war beclouded the taste for literary or sylvan pleasures.—Charles loved to chase down the sun in the verdant glades of Woodstock, or to turn over the pages of splendid Virgils in college libraries. Shakspeare and Ariosto were the companions of his tent; and his saddest hours borrowed a light from the charms of Ariel, or the loves of Angelica. His followers would imitate his example.

Nor was Taylor likely to be ignorant of the character of those gay and accomplished gentlemen, whom the troubles of the time often sent, as I believe, to mingle with the humbler worshippers in the church of Llanvihangel Aberbythyc, or the chapel of Golden Grove. Viewed under that aspect, his manner of preaching was adapted to the place and season. We can, then, comprehend the beautiful propriety of those appeals to the noblest emotions of the soul, and those thrilling summonses to bravery, to purity and to faith. Who shall say that no generous, but indolent cavalier felt his heart burn within him, as that successor of the Apostles testified by the Scriptures, that Jesus was the Christ, and reasoned of temperance and judgment to come. I can remember that from the lonely church-door, in that sequestered valley, many youthful spirits returned with a holier devotion, to suffer or to die for their country and their religion. Some of the lustre of mature years may have been kindled by the fire of Taylor's lip. It is observed, by Clarendon, of Lord Northampton, who fell on Hopton Heath, that he was not well known till his evening; and that, as the tumult of those distractions gathered upon his ear, he seemed as if he had been awakened out of a lethargy. The voice of Taylor may have been a mighty instrument in rousing gallant minds from a deadlier slumber, and illuminating their evening with a brighter radiance.

But even for the simplest member of his flock, there is in every sermon something to interest the curiosity, to comfort the sorrow, and to build up the faith. He adopted, in the teaching of the pulpit, a system which is now deemed, for the most part, unworthy of pastoral industry or imitation. He endeavoured to obtain the attention of his auditors by enlisting their sympathies, and exciting their wonder. He knew that men are certainly deaf, when they are yawning.

If his discourses be inspected, they will be found to be exceedingly rich in all that engaging variety, which, in a different shape, made Montaigne the most agreeable of essayists, and Livy the most fascinating of historians. Sometimes he has a tale of a Persian king secluded himself in his magnificent metropolis during the winter, and returning to his palace at Susa in the summer, encircled by the servants of a hundred and twenty provinces, and glittering amidst all the princes of Asia. Does he seek to impress upon his hearers the incapacity of power in the present life to mould the future? He borrows the glass of the Greek satirist, and exhibits kings and warriors in Hades, selling salt fish, and crying muscles; or starts their ears with Philip of Macedon, hammering shoes in a miserable stall. Is the selfishness of man the object of his invective? He travels back to the Roman festival, and shows that while their religious offerings consisted of a little wine, and a handful of gum, "when they feasted themselves, they had many vessels filled with Campanian wine, turtles of Liguria, Sicilian bees, wheat from Egypt, wild boars from Illyrium, and Grecian sheep." When he proclaims the omniscience of God, the breaths of men are transparent to his gaze, and their thoughts are visible as the Chian wines in the purest crystal. Sometimes he sends his moral home upon an arrow out of the quiver of the epigrammatist; thus, he tells those who hurry into the tumult of business, in the hope of escaping from the inconvenience of solitude:—"The steps in the Greek epigram, whose knees were clogged with frozen snow upon the mountains; came down to the brook of the valleys, hoping to thaw their joints with the waters of the stream, but there the frost overtook them and bound them fast in the ice, till the young herdsmen took them in their snare." The government of the tongue is enforced by the example of a Roman gentleman, who "was a good man and full of sweetness and justice and nobleness, but he would read his noseuse verse to all companies,—at the public games and in private feasts, in the baths and in the beds, in public and in private, to sleeping or to waking people.—Every one was afraid of him, and though he was good, yet he was not to be endured." The transformation of the natural into the spiritual man is one of the most wonderful achievements of Divine grace, and this is the illustration that Taylor gives it.—St. Jerome tells us of the custom of the empire; when a tyrant was overcome, they used to break the head of his statue, and upon the same trunk to set the head of the conqueror, and so it passes wholly for the new prince. So it is in the kingdom of Grace. Sin is overcome, and a new heart is put into us, so that we serve under a new head, instantly we have a new name given us, and we are esteemed a new creation."

DISINTERESTED AND UNEXAMPLED GENEROSITY.
Mr. Warren, the author of "Ten Thousand a Year," "Diary of a Physician," and last though by no means least memorable, the dramatic narrative "Now and Then," in the course of a lecture delivered in the Hall of the Law Society, in Chancery-lane, on Friday last, "On the Social and Professional Duties of Attorneys and Solicitors," recounted the following beautiful incident:—"A short time ago," said Mr. Warren "a gentleman of large fortune, a man, in fact, worth his £40,000, was indignant with his only child, a daughter, for marrying against his wishes. He quarrelled with her—he disinherited her—he left to her whole property of £40,000 to his attorney, and to two other gentlemen, all of whom were residing in Yorkshire. What did the attorney do? He went to his two co-legats, got them to sign their respective claims over to himself, and then made over every sixpence of the £40,000 to the daughter and her children!—When I mentioned this circumstance, this very morning, to a friend of mine, one of the most distinguished men at the bar, he exclaimed, 'God bless that man!'"

The above gratifying circumstance is literally true.—The gentleman of fortune was a manufacturer in a town celebrated for its linen manufactures within the district of the circulation of this paper, and the disinterested attorney is one of the brightest ornaments of his profession in the West Riding of Yorkshire, enjoying the fruits of an ample fortune realised by his own industry and talents. We could mention his name, but we feel that his honourable nature would shrink from the publicity thus given to a circumstance which is comparatively unknown, except to a few of his own immediate friends.—Leeds Intelligencer.

A SENSIBLE COOK.
At a recent meeting of one of the clubs at Paris, a violent democratic declaimed, amidst the applause of his hearers, against the evils of property and the injustice of Landlords, and urged confiscation. He was succeeded by a cook, who manfully stated his disinclination to concur in the recommendation of the orator. He endeavoured to show that the sweeping charge against landlords was unjust, that there were many good as well as bad, and that it would be unfair to include all in one condemnation. "But let us," he added, "take another view of the case. 'If you confiscate their property and give it to others, what advantage would result? I, for example, am cook to a gentleman, who until the late revolution held the rank peal the gates of Golden Grove would be always open. The king's adherents composed the educated classes of the country. Nor had the horrors of civil war beclouded the taste for literary or sylvan pleasures.—Charles loved to chase down the sun in the verdant glades of Woodstock, or to turn over the pages of splendid Virgils in college libraries. Shakspeare and Ariosto were the companions of his tent; and his saddest hours borrowed a light from the charms of Ariel, or the loves of Angelica. His followers would imitate his example.

of Duke. He is a kind man, and liberal to those who serve him. I receive from him good wages, and I give him in return good dinners. We are mutually satisfied. Reverse the order of things!—I should be sorry, gentlemen, to invite you to dinners of his cooking."

Advertisements.

RATES.
Six lines and under, 2s. 6d. first insertion, and 7d. each subsequent insertion. Ten lines and under, 3s. 6d. first insertion, and 1s. each subsequent insertion. Above ten lines, 4d. per line first insertion, and 1d. per line each subsequent insertion.

From the extensive circulation of The Church, in the Province of Canada, (from Sandwich to Gaspe) in Nova Scotia and New Brunswick, in the Hudson's Bay Territories, and in Great Britain & Ireland, as well as in various parts of the United States, it will be found a profitable medium for all last certificates which are desired to be widely and generally diffused.

EVERY DESCRIPTION OF BOOK AND JOB WORK DONE IN A SUPERIOR MANNER AND WITH DESPATCH, AT THE OFFICE OF "THE CHURCH," No. 3, KING STREET WEST, TORONTO.

MR. DANIEL BROOKE, SOLICITOR IN CHANCERY AND BANKRUPTCY, Attorney-at-Law, Conveyancer, &c. Office on Division Street, next door north of Messrs. Brooke & Beatty's, COBOURG. July, 1848.

HUGH PAXNE SAVIGNY, Provincial Land Surveyor and Draughtsman, YONGE STREET. ADDRESS, TORONTO POST OFFICE. June, 1848.

DR. DERRY Has Removed to 101, Bishop's Buildings, ADELAIDE STREET. Toronto, May, 1848.

DOCTOR O'BRIEN Has Removed to 27, Bay Street, SECOND DOOR ABOVE WELLINGTON STREET, Toronto, Sept. 23, 1847.

JAMES BICKET, ACCOUNTANT, No. 2, City Buildings, King Street East, Toronto, Nov. 26, 1847.

MR. ROBERT COOPER, SOLICITOR AND ATTORNEY, Wellington Buildings, King Street, TORONTO. ENTRANCE NEXT DOOR TO MR. DIXON'S SHOP. Toronto, Nov. 1846.

DONALD BETHUNE, JR. BARRISTER AND ATTORNEY-AT-LAW, Solicitor in Chancery and Bankruptcy, CONVEYANCER, &c. DIVISION STREET, COBOURG, CANADA WEST. Cobourg, Oct. 21, 1845.

OWEN MILLER & MILLS, COACH BUILDERS, KING STREET, TORONTO.

J. P. CLARKE, Mus. Bac. K. C. PROFESSOR OF THE PIANO FORTE, SINGING AND GUITAR, Residence, Sumach Cottage, Ann Street, Toronto, Jan. 13, 1847.

T. BILTON, MERCHANT TAILOR, No. 2, Wellington Buildings, King Street TORONTO.

T. BILTON, BEGS to intimate that he has received, ex Great Britain, his usual Choice Assortment of SEASONABLE GOODS, 2, Wellington Buildings, Toronto, May 19, 1848.

THE TORONTO DRY DOCK COMPANY. NOTICE is hereby given, that Application will be made to the Legislature, at its next Session, to Amend the Charter of the Toronto Dry Dock Company, and to Extend the Capital Stock thereof to £40,000. WM. VYNNE BACON, Secretary. Toronto, 25th January, 1848.

OILS. BARNARD, CURTISS & Co., 111, WATER STREET, NEW YORK.

HAVE constantly on hand, from their HUDSON OIL Works, Bleached and Unbleached WINTER AND FALL OILS of all kinds; such as Sperm, Elephant, Whale, and Land Oils; and SPERM CANDLES, which they offer on favourable terms.

BAZAAR. A BAZAAR will be held in the TOWN HALL, NIAGARA, in the month of September next ensuing, for the purpose of procuring funds to repair and complete the Tower of St. Mark's Church, and to purchase a new Organ. Contributions of Furniture and other Work will be thankfully received by the Undersigned Ladies, who have kindly consented to preside at the Tables:— Mrs. Kingsmill, Mrs. Boulton, Mrs. E. Miller, Mrs. Hall, Mrs. Boomer, Mrs. E. Tench, Mrs. Campbell, Mrs. Sampson, Mrs. O'Brien, Mrs. W. H. Dickson, Mrs. Powell, Mrs. Crean. Niagara, April 20th, 1848.

SITUATION WANTED. A SALESMAN in a Grocery or Dry Good Store; a Man who can be well recommended. Reference to the Rev. H. J. GRABETT. June 28, 1848.

School Wanted. AN EXPERIENCED TEACHER competent to take charge of a Superior Common School, would be glad to meet with an engagement in the Western part of the Province. A Moderate Salary would be accepted if the Situation and Neighbourhood were satisfactory. The Advertiser would be happy to find a School, in which he could have a few CLASSICAL PUPILS. Most emphatic testimony has been borne to the Ability of the Advertiser, both by the Superintendent of the District in which he now resides and by public consent. Application may be made (post paid) to W. L., care of Mr. CHAMBERLAIN, "The Church" Office, Toronto, June, 1848.

WATCH MAKER AND MANUFACTURING JEWELLER, SILVER SMITH, &c. No. 9, KING STREET WEST, TORONTO. NEAT and good assortment of Jewellery, Watches, Clocks, &c. Spectacles, Jewellery and Watches of all kinds made and repaired to order. Utmost value given for Old Gold and Silver. Toronto, Jan. 28, 1847.

MORPHY & BROTHERS, WATCHMAKERS AND JEWELLERS, CITY BUILDINGS, (Opposite Saint James's Cathedral) AND AT 98, YONGE STREET, TORONTO. IMPORTERS of Watches, Clocks, Jewellery, Silver and Plated Ware, Fancy Goods, Accordeons, Musical Boxes, &c. &c. Clocks, Watches and Jewellery, Repaired & warranted. Accordeons and Musical Boxes tuned. Jewellery and Silver Ware made to order. Gilding, Silvering and Engraving. Old Gold and Silver bought.

AN IMPROVED FARM FOR SALE, West of Harcourt Street, Chinguacousy, No. 25, FIRST CONCESSION, Within Nine Miles of the Village of Brampton. CONTAINING 100 Acres, 65 of which are Cleared and under first-rate Cultivation; a Creek of good water runs through the Farm; there are also two good Wells. There is on the Farm a Log Dwelling House, and a Log Barn, 76 feet long, with other out-houses attached. Also, a Young Orchard, with choice Trees. For further particulars, apply to Mr. S. B. CAMERON, Brampton Post Office. If by letter, post-paid. No. 12, 1847. 17-4f

ONE MILLION FIVE HUNDRED THOUSAND ACRES OF LAND, FOR SALE IN CANADA WEST. THE CANADA COMPANY have for disposal about 1,500,000 Acres of Land, in blocks varying from 1000 to 10,000 Acres, distributed throughout most of the Townships in Upper Canada. Nearly 500,000 Acres are situated in the Huron Tract, well known as one of the most fertile parts of the Province; it has trebled its population in five years, and now contains upwards of 20,000 inhabitants. The Lands are offered by way of LEASE for TEN YEARS; or for SALE, CASH OR DOWN. The plan of one-half Cash and Balance in Instalments, being done away with. The Rents, payable first February each year, are about the Interest, at 6 per cent, upon the cash price of the Land. Upon most of the Lots, when LEASING, NO MONEY IS REQUIRED DOWN; whilst upon the others, according to locality, one, two, or three years' Rent must be paid in advance, but these payments will FREE the Settler from FURTHER calls until the second, third or fourth year of his term of Lease. The Settler has secured to him the right of converting his Lease into a Freehold, and of course stopping payment of further Rents, before the expiration of the term, upon paying the Purchase Money specified in the Lease. The Lessee has thus guaranteed to him the entire benefit of his improvements and increased value of the Land he occupies, should he wish to purchase. But he may, if he pleases, refuse to call for the Freehold: the option being completely with the Settler. A discount, after the rate of two per cent., will be allowed for anticipated payment of the Purchase Money, for every unexpired year of Lease before entering the tenth year.

Settlers' or Savings Bank Account. In order to afford every assistance to industrious and prudent Settlers, the CANADA COMPANY will receive any sum, no matter how small, the amount may be, for which their Lessee Settlers may not have immediate want, ON DEPOSIT, and allow interest at the rate of Six per cent. per annum for the same; but it is clearly understood, that the full amount, with interest accrued, shall at all times be at the disposal of the Settler, without notice. For this purpose the Company have opened an Account, which is termed "SETTLERS' SAVINGS BANK ACCOUNT,"—thus affording to the prudent Settler every facility for accumulating sufficient money to purchase the Freehold of the Land which he LEASES, whenever he chooses to do so, within the term of TEN YEARS; but Printed Lists of Lands and any other unforeseen misfortune might, he has always the amount deposited, with interest accrued, at his disposal to meet them. The advantages of this account are confined to the Company's actual Lessee Settlers, during the continuance of their Leases.

Printed Lists of Lands and any other unforeseen misfortune might, he has always the amount deposited, with interest accrued, at his disposal to meet them. The advantages of this account are confined to the Company's actual Lessee Settlers, during the continuance of their Leases.

Printed Lists of Lands and any other unforeseen misfortune might, he has always the amount deposited, with interest accrued, at his disposal to meet them. The advantages of this account are confined to the Company's actual Lessee Settlers, during the continuance of their Leases.

Printed Lists of Lands and any other unforeseen misfortune might, he has always the amount deposited, with interest accrued, at his disposal to meet them. The advantages of this account are confined to the Company's actual Lessee Settlers, during the continuance of their Leases.

Printed Lists of Lands and any other unforeseen misfortune might, he has always the amount deposited, with interest accrued, at his disposal to meet them. The advantages of this account are confined to the Company's actual Lessee Settlers, during the continuance of their Leases.

Printed Lists of Lands and any other unforeseen misfortune might, he has always the amount deposited, with interest accrued, at his disposal to meet them. The advantages of this account are confined to the Company's actual Lessee Settlers, during the continuance of their Leases.

Printed Lists of Lands and any other unforeseen misfortune might, he has always the amount deposited, with interest accrued, at his disposal to meet them. The advantages of this account are confined to the Company's actual Lessee Settlers, during the continuance of their Leases.

Printed Lists of Lands and any other unforeseen misfortune might, he has always the amount deposited, with interest accrued, at his disposal to meet them. The advantages of this account are confined to the Company's actual Lessee Settlers, during the continuance of their Leases.

Printed Lists of Lands and any other unforeseen misfortune might, he has always the amount deposited, with interest accrued, at his disposal to meet them. The advantages of this account are confined to the Company's actual Lessee Settlers, during the continuance of their Leases.

Printed Lists of Lands and any other unforeseen misfortune might, he has always the amount deposited, with interest accrued, at his disposal to meet them. The advantages of this account are confined to the Company's actual Lessee Settlers, during the continuance of their Leases.

Printed Lists of Lands and any other unforeseen misfortune might, he has always the amount deposited, with interest accrued, at his disposal to meet them. The advantages of this account are confined to the Company's actual Lessee Settlers, during the continuance of their Leases.

Printed Lists of Lands and any other unforeseen misfortune might, he has always the amount deposited, with interest accrued, at his disposal to meet them. The advantages of this account are confined to the Company's actual Lessee Settlers, during the continuance of their Leases.

Printed Lists of Lands and any other unforeseen misfortune might, he has always the amount deposited, with interest accrued, at his disposal to meet them. The advantages of this account are confined to the Company's actual Lessee Settlers, during the continuance of their Leases.

Printed Lists of Lands and any other unforeseen misfortune might, he has always the amount deposited, with interest accrued, at his disposal to meet them. The advantages of this account are confined to the Company's actual Lessee Settlers, during the continuance of their Leases.

Printed Lists of Lands and any other unforeseen misfortune might, he has always the amount deposited, with interest accrued, at his disposal to meet them. The advantages of this account are confined to the Company's actual Lessee Settlers, during the continuance of their Leases.

Printed Lists of Lands and any other unforeseen misfortune might, he has always the amount deposited, with interest accrued, at his disposal to meet them. The advantages of this account are confined to the Company's actual Lessee Settlers, during the continuance of their Leases.

Printed Lists of Lands and any other unforeseen misfortune might, he has always the amount deposited, with interest accrued, at his disposal to meet them. The advantages of this account are confined to the Company's actual Lessee Settlers, during the continuance of their Leases.

Printed Lists of Lands and any other unforeseen misfortune might, he has always the amount deposited, with interest accrued, at his disposal to meet them. The advantages of this account are confined to the Company's actual Lessee Settlers, during the continuance of their Leases.

Printed Lists of Lands and any other unforeseen misfortune might, he has always the amount deposited, with interest accrued, at his disposal to meet them. The advantages of this account are confined to the Company's actual Lessee Settlers, during the continuance of their Leases.

Printed Lists of Lands and any other unforeseen misfortune might, he has always the amount deposited, with interest accrued, at his disposal to meet them. The advantages of this account are confined to the Company's actual Lessee Settlers, during the continuance of their Leases.

Printed Lists of Lands and any other unforeseen misfortune might, he has always the amount deposited, with interest accrued, at his disposal to meet them. The advantages of this account are confined to the Company's actual Lessee Settlers, during the continuance of their Leases.

Printed Lists of Lands and any other unforeseen misfortune might, he has always the amount deposited, with interest accrued, at his disposal to meet them. The advantages of this account are confined to the Company's actual Lessee Settlers, during the continuance of their Leases.