Wales, he laid him a wager that he would see more cats than the Prince in his walk, and that he might take which side of the street he liked. When they reached the top it was found that Mr. Fox had seen thirteen cats, and the prince not one.

MOODY AND SANKEYISM.—Have you heard how Sankey walked up to a grenadier, and, taking him affectionately by the belt, said, "Young man, I like you as a soldier—a soldier of heaven." "Old un," returned the grenadier, "you're a long way from your barracks, anyhow." "Or what Moody said to the insurance agent, who wanted to insure his life? "My life is but a worthless life. If you could insure my soul I would gladly do business with you." "Thank you," replied the agent, "but we don't insure against fire." "Well, there was a very young man, whom Sankey saw staring around at the close of the meeting, and kindly asked, "Young man, are you looking for salvation?" "No," was the reply, "I am looking for Sal Jackson." "Let us sing a hymn," said Sankey.

SLEEP UPSTAIRS.—If we had a house with a bedroom on the first floor we would at once abolish the use of that room as a sleeping apartment, because we are satisfied that it is a wrong custom, it being much healthier upstairs.

NO CAUSE OF ACTION.—And the charge is drunkenness," said his honor, to Sarah Jane Doone.—"Come up here," she said to three or four witnesses in attendance, and every one of them swore that she was perfectly sober. "Where is the complaining witness in this case?" called the court, and Mrs. McNabb came forward and remarked, "I'm here and I'll send her to prison for fourteen years."

CHIRING AN INNOCENT OLD MAN.—One day last month when trade was dull a Vicksburg grocery clerk procured a piece of sole leather from a shoemaker, painted it black, and laid it aside for future use. Within a few days, an old chap from back in the country came in and inquired for a plug of chewing tobacco. The piece of sole leather was tied up, paid for, and the purchaser started for home.
