PAINTING THE TOWN RED.
Apropos of the slang phrase "to paint the town red," a well-known politician relates the following episode:—Mr. B— represented a rural constituency in Congress, and he wanted to be Senator. His opportunity came one day, and when he found that his name had been balloted for in the Legislature, he left his farm and went to the State capital to keep his eye on things. When at last it was announced that he had triumphed in the contest, he rushed to a telegraph office, and in the mad enthusiasm of the moment sent this message to his family: "Elected! Hooray! Paint my old home red!" He stayed at the capital, celebrating his good fortune, and then returned to his rustic seclusion. On alighting from the train he was half dazed by a scarlet glare that appeared above the apple-trees of his orchard.

"What's happened to the house?" he asked in amazement.

"Nothing," replied one of his fellow-townsmen; "only you telegraphed us to paint your old home red, and we've done it. Here's the bill."

They had painted the house, and barn, and pens, and hennery, and stables—in fact, there was hardly a stick on the premises that had not been painted a jubilant red.
