Editor Toronto World: As perhaps the most enthusiastic advocate of orthografic reform in England since the deth of Sir Isaac Pitman, I should like to congratulate you on the bold stand you hav taken in regard to this matter. You hav cited The London Mail as aprooving the efforts of your jurnal towards this end, but our Star and Morning Leader hav from the first adopted the shorter spellings of words like honor, labor, program, etc., while the influential and conservativ Times emplois program, etc., while the influential and conservativ Times emplois the Websterian form of all terminations in "ize," eschews largely the pedantic dubl letter in words like medieval, fetid, and drops the redundant signs in benefiting, biased, quartet, forgo, rectifying also the vagaries frequently indulged in by thohtless riters in the spelling of such words as meter. employee, tire, cipher, cider, connexion, embarcation.

Many other papers and magazines uze, tho capriciously, the simplified spellings of these and other words, as, for instance, toxin, lentil, naught, recal, dulness, dumfounded, garot, hibrid, picket, center, stedfast, loth, whisky, salable, develop, jewelry, woful, by, sty, epaulet, omelet, absinth, icon, renicon, plaster, villary, stanch

Clearing Out Men's Gloves

Our Spring stock of Men's Gloves must be cleared. We want to finish our spring trade next week, and all our surplus lines and left-overs are to go on bargain tables. Some will be cut down a half and others more than half. It does seem a pity to deal so recklessly with glove prices in a stock so worthy as ours, but the command has been given, and so here goes for the first attack on Monday, when we sell:
