First Day in Camp.

The first day in camp was a nard or, rather, first night of its existence.

The mass meeting of street railway employes this morning at 2 appointed the grievance committee of the union to confer with the officials of the company this morning at II.

A resolution was adopted making the committee of the Board of Trade of Toronto the go-between for both sides to the controversy. The result of the conterence with the company will be reported to this committee at a mass meeting of the employes.

The employes are willing to waive the matter of recognition of the union, it it proves to be a stumbling block in the path of amicable settlement of there differences.

All signs now point to the impression that their will be no strike of the street railway employes, a consummation devoutly to be wished.

A. E. Ames said at the close of the meeting: Everything now points to an early settlement of the difficulty and there is little prospect of a strike in the judgment of the Board of Trade delegation. They manifested a fine spirit of fairness.
