TOO MUCH DELAY

A strip thirty feet in width, in front of certain properties on the west side is needed to widen Union street, to provide facilities for winter port business. It is needed at once. There is no time to be wasted in fruitless negotiations. The Messrs. have been asked to name a figure at which they will give up their claims upon the property and have asked what the aldermen declare to be an unreasonable price. The question was discussed on Tuesday evening by the board of works, and the special committee which had the matter in hand was called together last evening, to negotiate further with the Messrs. of the property. The latter still asked too high a price, and the morning papers intimate that there will be further delay and more negotiations. This is an inexcusable waste of time. The city council, if it must have this strip, should make an offer, and if that be rejected proceed at once to expropriate. The winter port business must not be held up in this fashion.

EARL GREY IN THE WEST

The suggestion made by Earl Grey to the people of British Columbia, relative to the development of their fruit industry, by an organized scheme to settle a desirable class of English people on orchard lands, shows that his excellency goes about with a keen interest in what he sees, and a desire to be of service. His address on the subject is elsewhere quoted in this issue. The Victoria Colonist regards it as "a most important utterance," and adds:—

"The picture that his excellency's suggestion brings up before the mind's eye is an exceedingly attractive one. Nothing can be better for this province; nothing can be better for Canada; nothing can be better for the Empire than that the people to whom Earl Grey refers should be brought out here and assist in building up a new Britain on the Pacific slope. It is something that we have all hoped for, but have not seen our way to accomplish. His excellency has shown the way. His endorsement of such a plan ensures its success."

HEARST IN THE PILLORY

If New York state elects Hearst as governor after the flaying process to which he is being subjected by Mr. Hughes and the newspapers the state will have put a premium upon hypocrisy of the most blatant type. For example, Mr. Hearst has denounced the employment of Chinese on the Panama canal as a blow to American working men. It is not only shown in reply that American workmen will not go to the canal zone, but that on the Hearst estate in "the glorious climate of California," Chinese workmen are employed to the exclusion of white men. Mr. Hearst replies that his mother is responsible for that, but it is pointed out that he has been reaping the benefit of the profits from this Chinese cheap labor for years.

Again, Mr. Hearst denounces the trusts. Mr. Hughes shows in reply that Hearst, in order to evade payment of taxes, has a holding company in connection with his newspapers, which is the latest device of the trusts. The Hearst newspapers began the campaign with the announcement that they would print the speeches of Mr. Hughes. Since Mr. Hughes began to produce official records to show what kind of a friend to the people and a foe to the trusts Mr. Hearst really is, the Hearst newspapers have ceased to print his speeches. Those papers sneered at Mr. Hughes as "a corporation lawyer." Mr. Hughes has proved that they were waked up the wrong lawyer.

A FEW REMINDERS

A New York journal is moved to ironical protest by the outcry about the "course of wealth in politics," and the attacks made upon public men who have been engaged as corporation counsel or have become owners of stock in railroads.

After pointing out that several gentlemen have felt it necessary for them to deny that they are very rich, this journal proceeds:—

"In an older and more worldly day wealth was less of a stigma in public life than now. The fathers of the Republic were thrifty souls who would have sent thrills of horror up the spines of the young patriots of the Gile House. In proportion to the wealth of the country Washington was almost as rich as Rockefeller. Today Washington would be kept so busy answering questions as to 'where he got it' that he would have little time left for being a Father of his Country."

"John Hancock, who signed the Declaration in letters that George III. could read without spectacles, was probably the richest man in Massachusetts. Moreover, he laid the foundations of his fortune in smuggling, which the moral obliquity experts must admit is quite as reprehensible as rebating. Franklin was not only rich but he was low minded enough to believe that there was merit in the accumulation of property. Even Jefferson was at one time wealthy, and died poor only because he was an impractical business man."

"A later generation of statesmen was even worse than the fathers. It was Webster who won the Dartmouth College case, the very ark of corporation vested rights in the nation. For more than half a century the Supreme Court has been slowly undoing this mischief, whittling the decision away in order to protect the people from the folly of their servants and the greed of their creatures. Yet despite Webster's service to corporate capital in this matter many people thought highly of him as a patriot. Henry Clay was no better than Senator Bailey in his yearning for big fees. Indeed, he quit public life at one time to practise law and make money."

"When we get to Lincoln we have a spectacle to make the angels weep. Not only was he a corporation lawyer, but he gave his ability to the Illinois Central Railroad Company in its battle for the lake front at Chicago. Both Lincoln and the nation were fortunate in that he appeared on the scene before it was taken for granted that a man who acted as counsel for a corporation necessarily sold his manhood and his conscience along with his legal services."

The prompt action of the authorities in connection with the strike-riot at Buckingham, Quebec, which had resulted in the death of two men and the wounding of several others, has enabled the milling company to resume work, but there are rumors of further trouble when the soldiers are withdrawn. Pending the verdict at the inquest, the blame for the fatal collision cannot be fully placed, but the fact that the strikers were armed is sufficient evidence that they intended to make trouble. The affair is a most unfortunate one, and is of a class from which Canada has hitherto been largely free. The result of the enquiry now in progress should be such an assertion of the supremacy of law in Canada as will tend to discourage any further outbreaks of the same kind.

The postponed forestry convention in this province is to be held in December. The timber areas of New Brunswick are increasing in value from year to year, and if this convention is able to formulate an educational campaign and protective policy it will do great good. This paper has contended that the children in the schools should be taught the value of our forests and the great danger from fires carelessly set in their neighborhood during the dry season. It may be assumed that the convention will deal with practical matters in a practical way, since the need of forest conservation is already taken for granted.

Ontario derives much revenue from succession duties. The Toronto Globe says: "The treasury department received in succession duties in the month of September $23,032, an increase over the corresponding month of 1905 of $13,345. The aggregate of receipts up to the end of September was $408,118, which was $4,235 better than the first five months of last year."

The board of health are to be commended heartily for their action in reference to the city's milk supply. The citizens are forced to pay a very high price for milk, and the dairymen and dealers should be compelled to provide the liquid in its purity, and with every attention to cleanliness in handling the supply.

Another influential Tammany man has renounced his allegiance to Hearstism, and will support Mr. Hughes. All these defections will have a moral effect that will influence the silent voter.

The influence of Archbishop Howley will be a very powerful factor in crystallizing into action the discontent of the people of Newfoundland in regard to the modus vivendi.

AND NOT AN AUTO IN THE TOWN. The new tax laws which were brought to light hidden personal property, disclose the fact that a prominent music teacher does not own a piano, that a wealthy capitalist has no household furniture, and that not one man in fifty owns a watch.—Wheeler, W. Va., Register.

SINGER TO AUDIENCE

(By Curtis Hidden Page.)

I was inside—body and soul and voice
I gave myself to be inside's self
In full abandon. . . . But inside died
With that last note of death love. I know
The trust of you Iain would make no sign
But one deep silent breath, and slowly going
Feel the inside still.

It can not be. . .
I am the woman now, and need your frame
Let me sink back and rest in your applause
Uplift me on its waves that swell and rise
And break in shouts of praise—lest I should fail.

After inside—let I, too, should die
Falling from that last note of death in love.
From The Pacific Monthly.

IN LIGHTER VEIN

WHEN HE LAST SAW HIM.

"When you last saw the deceased did he strike you as being sober?"
"No, sir; he struck me as being dead."

MORE SO THAN EVER.

"Is he as much of a lady killer as he was before his marriage?"
"More; he's got an auto now."

NOT ON EARTH.

"I get terribly sick."
"Don't; there's nothing on earth can make me sea sick."
"Nor me, either."

ANOTHER WRECK.

"Another wreck in Chinese waters!"
"One of our warships gone down?"
"No, my ship has come home with the boom torn out of it."

THE VERY PLACE.

"I would like to find a place to live where I would not be eternally beset by the fear of being run down by an auto."
"Have you tried Venice?"

CANCELED.

If you lend money here and there
To friends both far and wide,
When you pay nature's last great debt
They'll all be glad you've died.

WHAT, INDEED.

"She has fallen in love with old Money-bags."
"How do you know she has?"
"Why, she is going to marry him."
"What's that got to do with it?"

AT EACON RIDGE.

"Any gambling in town?" asked the sportsy drummer in the little hotel.
"No, siree," replied the proprietor, emphatically.
"Laid on tight, eh?"

"You bet. Ever since Zeb Crosby won a plug of tobacco from Sile Reytow in a game of croquet the papers have been roasting this town something awful."

SHE GOT A JOB.

(Owing Magazine.)
There is a true story of one young woman who had devoted almost a year to pulling wires and using all possible influence to gain an interview with a certain theatrical manager. At last her hopes were realized; she got her appointment and she was finally ushered into the manager's private office. He received her most cordially and offered her a chair.
"Thank you," she said, gratefully, "I think I will sit down. I've been just ten months getting here and I'm a little tired."
And the manager, who is really a great man and hence has a sense of humor, promptly engaged her.
