BIRDS RETURN TO ANCESTRAL HOME

New York Herald Sees Humor in Canadian Imports of Hungarian Turkeys.

The New York Herald, commenting humorously upon the report that Canada is importing turkeys from Hungary for the Christmas dinner table and that these Hungarian birds are being sold at lower prices than the Canadian-grown turkeys, says that for the confirmed pessimist this news must offer additional evidence that the world is at sixes and sevens.

"Turkeys are as native to North America as skylarks are to the Old World," continues the Herald. "Once the wild turkey was common all the way from southern Canada down to Mexico. The Colonial farmer whose land included a patch of woods had a wild turkey run at his door. There are some left in unsettled sections of Canada, in our own South and Southwest and in Mexico."

"The Hungarian birds that are to be in state on the dining room tables of the Dominion are undoubtedly descendants of the noble North American turkey. Europe first became acquainted with these birds when the Spaniards brought them over from Mexico in the sixteenth century. They were imported birds that call 'Turk, Turk, Turk,' with a Czecho-Slovakian accent."

"Benjamin Franklin wanted to make the turkey the national emblem of the United States. And some day we may be importing birds that call 'Turk, Turk, Turk,' with a Czecho-Slovakian accent."
