ENGINEER CAHILL KILLED IN TRAIN ACCIDENT

The Westbound freight train in charge of Conductor Howlett, which left Northern Bight 9:55 Tuesday morning, got locomotive and four box cars derailed about eight miles west of Northern Bight station.

Engineer Charles Cahill got caught under boiler and was instantly killed. Fireman and other trainmen injured. Cause of derailment due to extra heavy rains washing away the embankment. As soon as the news of the accident reached St. John's, Manager Russell informed Rev. Dr. Kitchen, who broke the sad news to the bereaved widow and family. The deceased was one of the most widely known engineers in the employ of the railway, having spent a lifetime on the road.

Several other places along Railway suffered from washouts, particularly on Placentia Branch, Bonavista Branch and vicinity Clarenville. Repairs are being effected as quickly as possible.

MONDAY'S STORM

All day on Monday the wind blew from the South-East with hurricane force, and by the evening the storm was at its height. Fences, trees and other movable things went before its fury. At intervals heavy showers of rain added to the fierceness of the storm.

Although no serious loss was effected in this vicinity, other places fared worse. News from Cape Race stated that the steamer Aurock went ashore near St. Pierre in the height of the storm but all the crew landed in safety.

The schr. Electric Flash, 80 tons, owned by S. Harris, Ltd., Grand Bank, went ashore at Renew and will likely become a total wreck.

The vessel had 3500 qtls. of codfish on board and was being loaded by T. S. Devine for the Gorton Pew Co., Gloucester.

It is likely that greater damage occurred around the coast, but at this writing these are the only wrecks reported.
