NEARLY A CENTURY OLD. Death of Francis Creegan at the Old Men's Home.

Few of the men who came to British Columbia in the early fifties as grayhaired old men have lived until this late day to tell the story of their adventures. Most of the survivors of those stormy days came as young men. One, and probably the only exception to the rule, Francis Creegan, died this morning at the Old Men's Home. Creegan came to Victoria about 1855, and even at that time was close upon sixty years of age, a rather old man, many will say, to face the hardships that the few white settlers had to put up with. But the old man was better able Westfield News, bearing date of April to stand them than even many of his younger companions.
