WALLS FALL IN KILLING ONE, INJURING 14

HALIFAX, N. S., June 9.—One fireman was killed, fourteen more were injured and thirty thousand dollars' damage was done by fire that wiped out the shipping department of the Nova Scotia Furniture Company this afternoon. When the fire was getting under control the whole structure collapsed and fifteen men were entombed in the ruins. The foundation of the building had been undermined by the construction of a building next to it, is the explanation now advanced for the collapse.

James Tynan, of No. 4 steamer, was finally taken out dead, crushed under joists of the second floor. Fourteen other men who were more or less badly injured, were hurried to the Victoria General Hospital in ambulances, but all of them were able to go to their homes tonight.

Some of the firemen were on the roof and others inside when the building collapsed. Two or three minutes elapsed before the first man was taken out. They came in quick succession until finally only Tynan remained unaccounted for. He had been at work with a plaster book on the first floor of the building. The man who had been in with him had witnessed his way out of the debris and he pointed out where Tynan had been working.

Grapnels were attached to the wall and aided by hundreds of willing hands this was pulled away. Then Tynan was discovered pinned underneath the second floor. He was 38 years of age and leaves a widow and five children.

REDMOND IN REVOLT.

LONDON, June 9.—John E. Redmond, the Nationalist leader, hoisted the signal of revolt in the course of the debate in the House of Commons this afternoon on the second reading of the Finance Bill. He notified the government bluntly that the Nationalist party would vote against the budget on the ground that it was grossly unfair to Ireland and constituted a breach of the act of union. Mr. Redmond's objection was to the proposed increase in the taxes of whiskey which he characterized as a crushing impost on one of Erin's few remaining industries.

REFUSE UNSATISFACTORY IMITATIONS

AMERICAN BANKERS AFTER BIG LOAN

Syndicate Formed to Make Up $27,000,000.

For Hankow-Sze-Chien Railway—Government Lands Support for Political Purposes.

LONDON, June 9.—The British banking houses, which are participating in the tripartite loan for the financing of the Hankow-Sze-Chien Railway in China, in connection with which the contract for a loan of $27,000,000 was signed on June 6 by the representatives of the British, French and German groups, are greatly interested in the intelligence which reached them today that a powerful American syndicate with the strongest possible support from the government, proposes to participate in this enterprise.

The American firms composing the syndicate are Kuhn, Loeb and Company, J. P. Morgan and Company, The National City Bank of New York and the First National Bank. They base their claim for status in this enterprise on assurances which the Chinese government gave the American financiers in Peking in 1904—it is understood, in writing—that American and British capital would be invited to finance this railway if the Chinese were unable to raise the money themselves and that British and American capitalists would have preference over those of all other nationalities.

The American claim to participation in this business has been conveyed to the British, French and German governments by Ambassadors Redd, White and Hill respectively and also to China by the American minister, W. W. Rockwell. The American government believes that American interest in China railway development will add impetus to the powerful internal campaign by the Chinese for expanding their domestic and foreign commerce and for placing China in the position her wealth and resources entitle her to among the civilized nations.

The government's step in giving its support to American financiers is regarded as significant development in President Taft's policy of making the United States an influential factor in Oriental affairs. London bankers believe that it is one of the fruits of the Tang Shao Yih special mission to the United States.

LITTLE NORMA MCPALPINE WAS FRIGHTFULLY BURNED

Playing With Matches When Dress Caught Fire—Healing Easily Today.

Little Norma McPalpine was the victim of a serious burning accident yesterday afternoon. When playing with matches in the yard of Mr. Tremaine Gard, on Horsfield street, her cotton dress became ignited. Her entire clothing was almost immediately a mass of flames. Harry Needham, a driver for C. P. Francis, was attracted by the child's screams and rushed to her assistance. After considerable difficulty he was enabled to subdue the flames, but not before the little girl had been terribly burned about the body and limbs. Norman, a brother of the child, was also injured. The child is a daughter of H. M. McPalpine, who is resting today as easy as can be expected under the care of Dr. Bishop and Incha.

THEFTS HOLD UP AMERICAN SHIPS

Japanese Dealers Confederates of Warrant Officers in the Squadron at Yokohama.

YOKOHAMA, June 10.—The investigation of the wholesale thefts of brass gun fittings from the Denver and Calverton. The warrant officers are implicated and several sailors are now in irons. The thefts were committed in collusion with Japanese dealers. The fittings were lowered over the side of the warships into the hands of the confederates and taken ashore at night. It has been ascertained that one lot was sold for $300 and another for $300, and also other material from the ships. The greatest secrecy has been observed, but the foregoing is authentic. The thefts of the gun fittings occurred on Memorial Day, the petty officers implicated taking advantage of the absence of the officers at the ceremonies. The departure of the squadron was consequently delayed. The superintendent of the water police is now conferring with Rear Admiral Giles B. Harber with a view of taking steps for recovering the stolen property. The brass and other engine room material taken aggregates 2,500 pounds.

BRIEF DESPATCHES.

NEW YORK, June 9.—A good sized steamer went ashore shortly after 9 o'clock tonight about half a mile from the Point of Woods Life Saving Station, near the shore of Long Island. The weather was so thick that her name could not be learned and a heavy on-shore sea made it impossible to launch the lifeboat. Late tonight the life-saving crew were still trying unsuccessfully to get a line to the vessel.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., June 9.—Nobles of the Myrtle Shrine in annual convention today chose New Orleans for the convention in 1910, set the date of meeting back from June to April 12, chose the estate of Edgar D. Street, of Richmond, Va., imperial potentate.

HOT RIDE AFTER HORSE THIEVES

In the Borough of Brooklyn, New York.

Ended in the Thieves Getting Away, a Mounted Cop's Horse Being Damaged and Its Rider Hurt.

(New York Sun.)
"It's a thick night, par!"
The speaker was Orr, a clean shaven, well set up, broad shouldered, deep chested, muscular, clear eyed young man.

"Have you the makings?" asked the first speaker.

Orr and Sheppard were on a dangerous errand. The time was so late on Thursday night that it was practically impossible to see anything. Through the blackness of the Flatbush woods they had pushed on and on. For they were mounted cops chasing horse thieves.

"Give no quarter," said Capt. Duffer as he started Orr and Sheppard from the stable house in pursuit of the particular brace of horse thieves with which this account has to do.

Orr and Sheppard were riding through the thick night, pulling together with their teeth the strings of Sheppard's tobacco bag after Orr had borrowed the makings and had rolled the cigarette, when just ahead of them in the night they saw two other horsemen.

To the left was a wall of stone that separates Ninety-second street from the meadows beyond. Hence the wall-to show which is Ninety-second street, Kings, and white are meadows.

"Halt!" Orr and Sheppard cried out to the riders ahead of them, who were suspiciously riding two horses. Whips came down upon the backs of the two horses ahead. Then began a race. Heads were stuck out of the windows of the house which is out in that part of Brooklyn. The man living in the house is thought to be named Trumper and he follows the ice business. It is said, in the summer time.

Hot upon the horse thieves galloped the pursuers. Their trusty steers were gaining little by little when the horse thieves reined to the left and disappeared. Down the road, raced the riders ahead.

In another moment Orr was over the wall, mount and all, at full gallop, for into the meadow the horse thieves had scrambled. Orr heard a crash behind him, but he stopped not with teeth set and his trusty revolver ready he thundered across the meadow after the flying horse thieves. A shot barked forth.

"Has Sheppard bitten the dust?" young Orr asked himself. He leveled his own weapon at the Little Dipper and let the sky have it. Disturbed as he was by his frantic riding, his aim was a shade worse than usual and not a star fell. He shot again and again but with no better luck. His horse was not even powder marked.

When Orr had combed the field and had found no horse thieves he carted back to the wall. There he found Sheppard, whose steed had fallen in the attempt to clear the wall close behind Orr. The only one very seriously injured was Sheppard's horse, which had broken a leg.

Orr shot his friend's horse and then he looked after the bruited and writhing Sheppard. Ambulance Surgeon Plunkett was summoned and took the injured policeman to the Kings County Hospital. Sheppard was still a bit sore last night but the doctors said he would be all right shortly.

Flatbush pioneers who gathered after the noise made by horse thieves and pursuers said they had seen no horse thieves as they hurried across the fields. Orr and Sheppard certainly did see them for a few moments but not after they came to that wall which shows where Ninety-second street is.

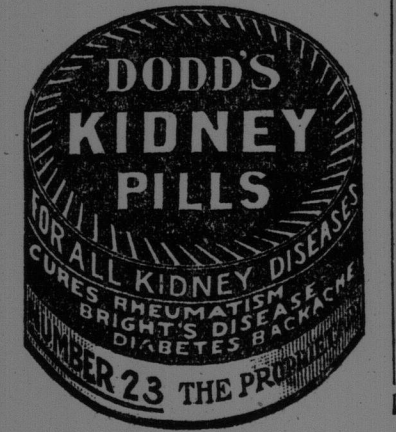

As a result of this most recent horse theft in Brooklyn, the police said yesterday that the mounted patrol in the troubled district is soon to be doubled, and that if horse thieves think they can go on with this rough stuff and get away with it things'll happen to the thieves.

CARUSO OPERATED ON.

Great Tenor's Throat Subjected to Knife of Specialist.

MILAN, Italy, June 10.—Caruso, the tenor, has undergone an operation upon his vocal chords in the clinical hospital here. Prof. Della Vedova performed the operation, in which he was assisted by three throat specialists. In the meantime the hospital is closed to the public. Caruso will remain under constant medical attention until the middle of July.

The actual result of the operation will not be known until July. It is said there is every chance of Caruso recovering his former freshness; but, it is added, he never again will be able to subject his voice to the overstrain he has put upon it during the past few years without incurring disastrous consequences.

$20,000 WOMAN STENOGRAPHER H. H. ROGERS' RIGHT HAND MAN

New York, June 10.—One of the least conspicuous, but most important persons in adjusting the machinery of the H. H. Rogers system after his death, was Miss Katherine Harrison, his stenographer.

Miss Harrison, a calm, stately gray haired woman, earned $20,000 a year, and was worth more. She knew nearly as much about Rogers' financial affairs as he did himself.

When Rogers was beyond reach of telegraph or telephone, Miss Harrison had authority to give orders herself in big deals. On one occasion the market broke when the financier was on a cruise. He expected to lose a considerable sum of money. Instead Miss Harrison had cleaned up $75,000 for his estate during his absence.

Miss Harrison was intrusted with the details of all the confidential movements in the Rogers office. Of the visitors who came to the office, not one in 40 reached her. Only one of those who reached her reached Rogers himself. Next to Rogers, she was the court of last resort.

Miss Harrison has a handsome house in Brooklyn, where she lives with her mother and sister.

EMPIRE MUST CO-OPERATE

LONDON, June 9.—The Imperial Press conference resumed the discussion on imperial defense this morning. A. J. Balfour presiding. Lord Roberts, Mr. Sheppard, the secretary of state for war, were present.

A grave note was again emphasized in the speeches of the home statesmen. Mr. Balfour, in opening, declared that all local defense, though it was necessary, was subordinate to imperial defense, and subordinate from the viewpoint of particular localities themselves, not only from the viewpoint of the Empire. (Applause.)

J. S. Briarty, of Montreal, followed. He assured the conference that Canada was willing to take her share of imperial defense consistent with the maintenance of her autonomy. These two elements were not inconsistent.

He expressed pleasure at the full recognition of home statements that the overseas states must be allowed full control of their own affairs. It was asked yesterday if the admiralty ordered Canadian warships to South America and the Canadian government refused to send them, what would happen? Well, they would not go, but it was a supposition question. He could not imagine that if the needs of the Empire demanded the most ships would not be sent. (Applause.)

Mr. Haldane addressed himself particularly to the necessity of the home-

NOVA SCOTIA GIRL KILLED BY AN AUTO

Miss McKay Run Over in Boston—Arrest Follows

BOSTON, June 9.—Miss Catherine McKay, aged 23, daughter of James McKay, Springfield, N. S., died today from the effects of being hit by an automobile near Jamaica Plain, Boston Highlands, last night. James Savage, proprietor of the automobile instruction school, who was in charge of the machine, was arrested today, charged with manslaughter. In court he pleaded not guilty and had his case continued to June 22. He was released under $4,000 bonds.

Miss McKay was housemaid at the home of Wm. C. Appleton, Jamaica Plain. Last night she was on her way from the home of her aunt, Mrs. James Murphy, to the Appleton domicile when the auto rounded a corner suddenly without sounding the horn. Her cousin, Miss Anastasia Harney, was with her, but was not hurt. The dead girl came from Springfield last September. She and Miss Harney were to leave June 21st to spend the vacation in Springfield. There was a fashionable gathering in St. Mary's Church of the Assumption, Brookline, today, at the marriage of Miss Genevieve Driscoll and Oswald Reid of Chipman, N. B., son of R. B. Reid. The bride is the daughter of Michael Driscoll, superintendent of streets in Brookline. A nuptial mass was celebrated at 8.30. The pastor, Rev. Fr. Michael T. McManus officiated on the altar. With him were Fr. John A. Sheehan and Fr. Coffey, assisting at St. Mary's; Rev. Fr. Thomas F. McManus of St. Lawrence church, Chestnut Hill, and Rev. Fr. Hoff of the Mission church, Roxbury. Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride. Later in the day Mr. and Mrs. Reid left on a wedding tour. They will ride to Chipman, N. B.

In dealing first with the military aspect of the questions, Mr. Balfour laid down two propositions: First, that all the forces of the overseas states should be organized on a common basis. Respecting the navy, he did not regard as useless any local attempt at naval defense, but anything in the nature of coastal protection should be rigidly subordinate to a fleet in action. (Hear, hear.)

The fate of the Empire would be dependent to fleet superiority and that superiority must be shown in home waters. If there was to be an armageddon, it would take place in the German ocean, the English channel, or perhaps the Mediterranean.
